Dr. Liebman knew that the change of growing old is mothing to fear—that the transition we call death is a long time project which actually begins the day we are born.

This subject of old age is fast becoming of great importance to Americans. Today there are more old people in this country than ever before. The average life expectancy has increased nearly 20 years since 1900. For men it rose from 48 to 65 and for women, from 51 to 70.

Thousands of additional Americans are annually reaching the age when such diseases as cancer take their heaviest toll. To protect those oldsters as well as the thousands of youngsters who die of cancer, a great deal must be accomplished and at cancer death rate has taken a serious upswing, far greater than had been anticipated. One reason for this is increased fongevity. People have been saved from the infectious diseases, rampant in earlier life, only to find the spectre of cancer.

Every home and property owner with one or more elms is urged to take up the battle against the yest by Martin L. Davey, Jr., president of the Davey Tree Expert Co.

He recommends a two-phase program—spraying with suitable chemicals to control the elm bark beetle, and "sanitation," or prompt removal and destruction of all weakened or fallen elm wood.

Spraying elms with DDT before leaves are fully unfolded for the first flight of the beetle and again in mid-season for the second flight—in many sections of the country—is important. To control the beetle will break the cycle of the disease it causes Such spraying will also control lear spraying will also control le eating insects which seriously weaken our arboreal friends until they in turn become vulnerable to beetle invasion. Keeping down the population of the bettle will keep a check rein on the advance of the disease.

Sanitation augments spraying and calls for the pruning of all dead and broken branches or even those that are merely suspect.
