Gymnastics exhibit held at Franklin

By Jyoti V. Khaparde

A group of girls from the 11- to 16-year-old age group were the stars of a gymnastics exhibition held at Franklin School on April 11. The event was organized by the National Physical Education Association (NPEA) and lasted for about two hours. The girls' skills and grace were highlighted as they performed routines on balance beams, trampolines, and other apparatuses. The audience was impressed by the girls' dedication and hard work.

The program started with a warm-up routine led by Mrs. Edith Martin, a former gymnastics coach. The group included Tara Smith, Laura Johnson, Ashley Green, and Jessica Brown. Their routines were well-rehearsed and executed flawlessly. The girls were mentored by Mrs. Rose Peters, a professional gymnast, who guided them through their routines.

The event was supported by the Franklin PTO, which also provided financial assistance. The school's principal, Mr. Henry Williams, and the NPEA representatives were present to cheer on the girls. The exhibition was a great success, and the girls received much praise for their performance.

Zone change denied

A request for a zone change by Frank Jones, a resident of the city, was denied by the City Council on April 11. The request was for the zone change to be from R-1 (residential) to B-2 (business) on a parcel located on Main Street. The request was made by Mr. Jones, who argued that the area would benefit from business development.

The City Council took the request under consideration and reviewed the zoning regulations. They concluded that the change would not be in the best interest of the community. The council members were concerned about the potential for increased traffic and noise pollution in the residential area.

The decision was made after lengthy discussions and consultations with the Planning Commission. The council members agreed that the current zoning regulations should be maintained to protect the quality of life in the area.

It's So Long to the store and hello to the golf course

Yes, it's been 15 years that we've been busy keeping shop on Diamond Bridge, and now we want some time to relax, so come April 4th, Kent's has been under new management.

We'd like to thank all our customers and friends for helping us make these years possible, and hope that you'll all come in real soon to meet the new owner, Mrs. Terri Dobet. We're sure she and the Kent's 'regulars' will continue to give you the same friendly service we have in the past.

My warmest personal thanks to all the 'girls' in the store who have been such a great help and good friends, and to all of you!

Sincerely,

Meetings - hard to follow

When the municipal bond issue came before the voters of this city, several changes were implemented for the procedures in which applications were to be handled by the Board of Adjustment and the Planning Board. One change that has benefited the property owner is that his entire case can be presented by one board. There is no longer a shuffling back and forth between the board and the planner and we think this is a considerable improvement.

However, one situation has not changed at all. Having attended, not one planning board session under the new regulations, we find that it’s just as difficult as ever to know what’s going on. The need for an agenda is apparent to anyone sitting in the audience trying to follow the list and numbers in between the board members by whom the agenda is required.

Listening to the meetings is different enough for those on the inside, but the main concern is that the agenda is not finalized until the last minute. However, that’s not the fault of any of the members, who are in written form and could easily be remade into the public and the meeting the public. They are earnest in their duties, but we feel there must be a more efficient way of handling matters during the meetings.

Use your library

A Gallup Poll taken last year showed that one-third of the U.S. population has never used a public library. These people are missing out on what’s available, and there are a lot more resources available to them, not just books, but audio-visual materials and employment information. Next week (April 27-28) the Hawthorne Public Library is celebrating the 125th anniversary of the National Library Week. An observance highlighted by the slogan: "Use your library. It’s the best thing you can do for your library and yourself."

Although we frequently hear criticism that our library does not match the magnificence of libraries in neighboring locations, it does provide many excellent services. Nationally, library circulation statistics indicate that the biggest jump in the 15 years that circulation records have been kept. We urge borough residents (to take part of this growing trend.

Letters to the Editor

Dear Mr. and Mrs. Hawthorne

Our bank has been dating and courting the Hawthorne Historic League program. We would like to extend our congratulations to the League for the many successful projects that have resulted from their hard work and dedication.

May I suggest an idea that we believe might help in the continuation of the program? In the case of a building that is no longer habitable, there have been long-time residents who have not yet moved but who would be willing to sell their property to the League for use as a museum or a history center. This could be a way to preserve our local history while also providing a space for the community to learn about the past.

Sincerely,

Dr. W. Pierpont

Can We Afford to Ignore Politics?

by John W. Galtier

The high percentage of Americans who avoid politics is alarming, for those who don’t feel strongly about politics are likely to make decisions based on what they perceive to be their best interests. By avoiding politics, they ignore potential solutions to problems that affect their lives, and thus, they may miss opportunities to improve their lives. In addition, political apathy can lead to a lack of accountability in government, as citizens are not held responsible for their actions. It is important for citizens to engage in politics, as it is necessary for the functioning of a democratic society.

Sincerely,

Mr. and Mrs. Hawthorne

Chamber of Commerce should be revitalized

The campaign to reestablish the Chamber of Commerce in Hawthorne is a worthwhile endeavor. The task will not be easy, as the group has been inactive for some 30 or 40 years. The reactivation process will be more like organizing a brand new group. Despite the difficulty involved in creating a dynamic organization, there are many benefits to be reaped by those who choose to become involved. For one thing, the chamber will give local businesses a forum in which to share ideas and work toward solutions of common problems. Too often, we rarely hear voices of local businesses except at school functions, at which such topics can be discussed in depth. For example, some merchants, who operate a business along Davidson Avenue, are aware of the need for additional parking. Another issue is uniform business hours, especially regarding a common night to stay open in the central business district.

However, the function of a chamber of commerce is not restricted to these topics. In neighboring towns where chambers of commerce are vital parts of the community, the merchants have a voice and some clout when zoning and planning issues are addressed. Commercial organizations also run promotional sales and contests to encourage residents to shop locally instead of driving to shopping centers in pursuit of the same goods offered in Hawthorne's stores. Hawthorne has close to 1000 businesses of all sizes and types which operate here. About 300 of these own property and are substantial taxpayers. It's about time they all joined together in the benefit of Hawthorne.

THE AMERICAN DREAM

by John W. Gardner

There have been, of course, as many American Dream as there have been Americans who have dreamed it. The image of the new American Dream bears no resemblance to that of the old. It has no root in rural Americans, in the dream of a better life. The American Dream as a whole is a complete mirage.

Epidemiology of AIDS

by Dr. John Johnson

AIDS is a disease that is caused by a virus known as the human immunodeficiency virus (HIV). The virus attacks the immune system, making the body more vulnerable to other infections. The disease is transmitted through sexual contact, intravenous drug use, or transfusions of infected blood.

The disease has serious implications for the medical community. It is estimated that there are currently 300,000 cases of AIDS worldwide, with the majority of cases occurring in sub-Saharan Africa, Southeast Asia, and South America.

The disease is particularly devastating for those who are already weakened by other diseases. It is estimated that 90% of all AIDS deaths occur in low-income countries.

The disease is also known for its stigma. People who are diagnosed with AIDS are often discriminated against, and their families are left to cope with the emotional and financial burdens of the disease.

In conclusion, AIDS is a serious and deadly disease that requires continued research and education to help prevent its spread. It is important for individuals to take steps to protect themselves, and for the medical community to work together to find a cure.

Opposes school transfer

Dear Mr. Woodside,

I write to express my concerns regarding the proposal for a school transfer that has been brought to the attention of the school board. As a long-time resident of the community and a parent of three children attending [School Name], I believe this move is not in the best interest of our students.

The proposed transfer would affect [total number of students] students, and it is evident that this change will disrupt their educational journey. The current community supports a strong local education system, and I believe that our children are better served by staying in their current schools.

I urge the school board to reconsider this proposal and explore alternative solutions that can meet the needs of our children without compromising their educational experience. Thank you for your attention.

Sincerely,
