APRIL
State aid restored for school budgets

The legislature's Joint Appropriations Committee restored $30 million in state aid to nine of the 20 New Jersey school districts that might have been cut for next year's budget. The committee's decision in favor of the school districts was based on the work of a subcommittee that examined the financial needs of each district. The subcommittee recommended that the state provide additional funding to ensure that all children in New Jersey receive a quality education. The restored aid will help schools improve their programs and provide opportunities for students to succeed.

Schools are preparing for a new school year with increased funding. The funds will be used to hire more teachers, improve facilities, and offer additional educational programs. The restored aid is a victory for educators and parents who fought hard to ensure that every child has access to a quality education. The decision of the Joint Appropriations Committee is a step forward in the fight for educational equity in New Jersey.

Four running in school race

Four candidates are vying for the three seats on Hawthorne Board of Education election. They are Fred Crowell, Jerry Locken, Larry Mercado and John Pavlick. The polls will be open from 2 to 9 p.m. on April 4 as the

Shocked and saddened

Monday's shocked and saddened people of Hawthorne mourned the loss of their beloved community. Mayor John Pavlik is a true leader who leaves a lasting legacy. He was a dedicated public servant who worked tirelessly to improve the lives of the residents. His energy and enthusiasm were contagious, and his commitment to the community was unwavering. The loss of John Pavlik is a great loss for the town, and his memory will be forever cherished.

A Hawthorne tree is planted

A Washington Hawthorne tree was planted in the grounds of the municipal building. The ceremony took place on the afternoon of March 30, and the tree was planted on the main lawn in front of the building. The tree will serve as a reminder of the town's history and its connection to the American Revolution. The tree will also provide shade and beauty to the town square. The planting of the tree is a symbolic gesture that represents the town's commitment to preserving its heritage and its connection to the past.

Concerns about the coverage of the attempted assassination

Monday's attempted assassination of President Ronald Reagan made the news. I wonder if anyone noticed the names in that story that might have been another president who might have a brush with death if history repeats itself. Violence becoming epidemic in this century is not the stuff of legend, but it is not so rare that a tragedy will never befall the presidency or anyone else for that matter.

Now that we know the president's life is at risk, we are faced with a few concerns about the electronic media and their handling of this crisis. It was bad enough hearing the radio that had to be played before the announcement released several minutes later.

The part of the coverage that bothered the most was the incident called "President Reagan's speech." I assume that someone who is capable of controlling the event has the president's life in control until the new president's return to Washington. The most important coverage given to this event was the one about the president's return to Washington. It was not a noticeable aspect of the newspaper account.

Police director approved, despite opposition

By Dennis Krawczyk

Haddonfield — The Haddonfield Police Department and its director, Thomas A. Strickland, have received a great deal of public attention — both good and bad — in the last year, according to a recent survey of police officers. The 62-page report, which was distributed to all police officers in the department, includes a section on the department's performance, which Strickland says is "very good." Strickland, who has been director since 1988, was named to the post by the board of commissioners in 1990.

"Strickland has been a great leader," said Officer John D. Smith, who has been with the department for 10 years. "He's always been there for us, and he's always been supportive of the officers." Smith said he believes Strickland has done a good job of managing the department and has kept a strong focus on community policing. "He's been a great leader, and I think he's been a great leader," Smith said.

However, the survey also revealed some areas where the department could improve. One of the most common complaints was the lack of training and development opportunities for officers. "We need more training and development," said Officer Robert A. Johnson. "We need to have more opportunities to learn new skills and to improve our abilities." Johnson said he believes the department could benefit from more training and development opportunities.

Another area of concern was the department's budget. "The budget is too high," said Officer William J. Brown. "We need to find a way to reduce the budget and to improve our services." Brown said he believes the department could benefit from a more efficient budget and a better allocation of resources.

Strickland said he is committed to addressing these concerns. "I want to make sure that the department is providing the best possible services to the community," he said.

"We believe in the voice of the people... We believe in democracy," David Sutton, spokesman for the PBA said.

In a statement, the PBA said, "We believe in the voice of the people... We believe in democracy." The statement went on to say, "We believe in the voice of the people... We believe in democracy." The statement concluded, "We believe in the voice of the people... We believe in democracy."
Haledon, Manchester elections April 7

The Haledon, Manchester elections April 7 are approaching. For the candidates to be on the ballot, they need to file their nomination papers by March 21. The Haledon, Manchester elections are important because they determine who will represent the residents of the town in local government. The candidates will be running for various positions, including mayor, council members, and school committee members. It's important to know who these candidates are and what they stand for to make informed voting decisions.

Audit underway for $7500 in penalties

A recent audit has revealed that the Haledon, Manchester schools are facing a penalty of up to $7500 due to non-compliance with state regulations. The audit found that the schools had failed to properly maintain certain facilities, leading to the penalty. The schools are currently working to address these issues and bring the facilities up to code, which will help to prevent future penalties.

North Haledon board cuts $55,000 from school budget

The North Haledon board has made a decision to cut $55,000 from the school budget. This decision was made in response to the financial challenges faced by the school district. The board had to make tough decisions to ensure that the school budget is balanced and that the district can continue to provide a quality education to its students. The cuts were made to non-operational areas of the budget, such as supplies and equipment.

Fossil-switching is no nickel-and-dime proposition.

Before we go on to the unnecessary complexity of changing your wiring setup from AC to DC, let's talk about the process of switching. This involves changing the current in your circuit from alternating to direct, which can be done in a variety of ways depending on your specific setup. While switching directly might seem like a more modern and efficient approach, it requires careful planning and execution. This is because the grid is designed to handle large amounts of power, and switching directly without proper planning could cause issues.

By Answering The Following Questions, YOU THE Taxpayer Can Decide If Sound, Fiscal Planning Is Being Applied For Hawthorne's Educational Budget In These Very Financial Difficult Times.

- Would You Have Spent $46,000 On A Bus Garage Lease To Save $2000 In Vandalism? Yes ☐ No ☐
- Would You Have Spent $30,000 For An Assistant Superintendent That Was Not Budgeted? Yes ☐ No ☐
- Would You Spend $48,000 Per Year With No Written Commitment For School Board Offices In The Municipal Building When The Previous Cost Was $600 Annually? Yes ☐ No ☐
- Would You Call A One Million Dollar Increase Over Two Years In, The School Budget Getting The Most For Your Dollar? Yes ☐ No ☐

If you answered "No" to one or more of the above questions, then it's obvious your pocketbook cannot afford either Fred Cristelli's "Purely Voluntary Service" or John Pasquale's performance as Finance Chairman for the past three years.

Possible layoffs planned in North Haledon

by Dennis Schaefer

North Haledon, N.J. - Residents planning for the future of their community will face some difficult decisions as the local economy continues to struggle. Mayor Joseph Moyer has announced that layoffs are imminent due to budget constraints.

The mayor said the city has been unable to meet its financial obligations and must make tough choices to maintain services.

"I understand the impact this will have on our residents," Moyer said. "But we cannot continue to operate under these conditions and must take steps to ensure the long-term viability of our community." The layoffs will affect city employees in various departments, including public safety, parks and recreation, and public works.

Moyer said the budget shortfall is due to a combination of factors, including a decline in property tax revenue, increased costs for services, and a decrease in state funding.

"We are doing everything we can to stretch our resources and cut unnecessary expenses," Moyer said. "But we cannot continue to operate at current levels." The mayor emphasized that the layoffs are not a reflection of the dedication and hard work of the affected employees.

Moyer said the city will work with unions to negotiate terms and provide as much notice as possible. In addition, the city will consider options for reducing the number of layoffs, such as furloughs or unpaid leave.

"I understand the impact this will have on our residents," Moyer said. "We are committed to working with our employees to find the best possible solution for all involved." The mayor said the city will provide counseling services for employees affected by the layoffs.

Moyer also said the city is seeking ways to increase revenue, such as exploring new sources of funding and identifying areas where efficiencies can be achieved.

"We are committed to finding solutions to ensure the long-term viability of our community," Moyer said. "We are not looking to cut services, but we must make tough decisions to maintain our fiscally sound position." The mayor said the city is working closely with state and federal officials to explore all available options.

Moyer said the city will continue to provide essential services, such as police and fire protection, and will work to mitigate any disruptions to the community.

"We are committed to ensuring that our residents have the support they need," Moyer said. "We will continue to work hard to ensure the long-term viability of our community." The mayor said the city will provide updates on the situation in the coming weeks.

Fuel-switching "no nickel-and-dime proposition"

by Brian Fitzgerald

North Haledon, N.J. - Residents have been urged to consider fuel-switching as a viable option to reduce their energy costs. According to experts, fuel-switching, which involves changing to a different type of fuel, is "no nickel-and-dime proposition." The process can lead to significant savings and is not as difficult as it may seem.

"Fuel-switching is a smart and cost-effective strategy for reducing energy costs," said North Haledon Mayor Joseph Moyer. "It's not a one-time decision, but rather a long-term plan that can save money in the long run." The mayor said the city will provide resources and support to residents interested in fuel-switching.

"Fuel-switching is not a one-size-fits-all solution," Moyer said. "It's important to consider the specific needs of each household, as well as the local energy market and available incentives." The mayor said the city will provide guidance on the best options for each household.

"Fuel-switching can be a complex process," Moyer said. "But with the proper support and resources, it can be a rewarding and cost-effective decision." The mayor said the city will continue to work with residents to ensure their energy needs are met.

"Fuel-switching is a positive step forward," Moyer said. "It's an opportunity to reduce energy costs and improve the overall quality of life for our residents." The mayor said the city will continue to provide guidance and support to residents interested in fuel-switching.

State police reports advise against director's post

The recent police reports advise against the director's post due to an increase in police incidents related to the director's management. The reports indicate a significant rise in incidents of negligence, misconduct, and conflicts of interest, which have led to a decrease in the overall effectiveness of the department. The reports also highlight the need for a more transparent and accountable system to ensure the integrity of the department's operations. As a result, the police department is advised to consider alternative options for leadership and management.

Haledon Happenings

March 31

While nothing new is going on in the small community of Haledon, North Haledon, it is a young boy in the fourth grade of his school, William DeMasi, and his father, army veteran Joseph DeMasi, of 86 Peoples Manor, are looking into the possibility of starting a new non-profit organization for young people and teachers alike.

The boy, who is a member of the Young People's Club, and his mother, Christine DeMasi, met with the principal of the school, Mr. Johnson, and discussed the idea of starting a new organization that would focus on providing educational and recreational opportunities for young people in the community.

North Haledon Notes

March 31

On March 31, 1988, at 7:30 p.m., John Smith, a 45-year-old businessman, was found dead in his home on Main Street. The police department is investigating the incident as a homicide. The suspect is believed to be a former employee of the company, who was recently fired. The investigation is ongoing, and further details will be released as they become available.

Decision not to cut the school budget raises questions

The decision by the mayor and school committee to approve the budget of the 1981-82 school budget has to wonder whether these wishes will be realized. The school committee has approved the budget.

Yet this process has been one that has been difficult for many. It is backed by the fact that some 300 citizens met last week or another on the budget. The debate was both sides in claiming the Fuel-switching is no nickel-and-dime proposition.

When switching between different fuel types, it's important to ensure that the vehicle is properly prepared and that the switch is done safely.

First, make sure the vehicle is fully fueled with the desired fuel type.

Next, perform a thorough inspection of all fuel system components, such as the fuel filter and fuel lines, to ensure they are in good condition.

Also, check the fuel pump and fuel injectors for any signs of wear or damage.

Finally, be sure to follow the manufacturer's recommendations for fuel switching to avoid any potential problems.

County GOP leadership appears to be giving away the 35th

While political analysts are saying that the National County GOP leadership has "screwed up" the state's political organization with its decision to run a write-in candidate, the local GOP has "invented an informal write-in" on the county's primary ballot, which is the DPW's "opportunity to go against the state party." This may be a promising sign for our local GOP to take over the state party's leadership role.

Registering to vote is as easy as mailing a letter

Every time there's an election, we receive phone calls from residents asking if there's any way they can register to vote. One problem that many people face is that the election process doesn't provide a final date on which a voter must register before becoming eligible to cast a ballot. It's usually 15 days before a presidential election.

Now with the Iowa primary fast approaching, we're seeing the same situation. The deadline for the Iowa primary is May 4th. There are numerous opportunities for interested citizens to become registered voters. In Manchester, the borough clerk's office is scheduled to open at 9:00 AM on Saturday, Sunday and Monday to accommodate anyone who wishes to register. Some neighboring towns have similar hours set up on Saturday mornings near the deadline.

Qualifications to become a voter include being a U.S. citizen, a resident of the state, and of the country at the time of registration. Changes of name or marriage, or changes of address require the voter to re-register with the new name or address, which can be done by mail or at the polls.

On page 9 of this issue, there's the same form which has provided the basis for this letter and has been published as a public service by this newspaper. The procedure can't be simpler. All you need is the official registration form, a change of address, or a change of name.

This form also has to be witnessed by another registered voter before it is sent to the state. The only cost is the stamp for the envelope.

In support of Senator Williams

St. Michael's Avenue, Haworth, NJ

Dear editor,

New Brit is beloved Senator Warren Williams is on the way to take office. I, like many others, want to express my appreciation of his political advancement.

Finally, there is someone involved in this political process, even if it is on the local level, who can talk to the people and not be afraid to take a stand. Senator Williams is a true friend of the people.

This is why I support him.

Sincerely,
