Let's avoid further litigation over the North Haledon water tank

Maryann

letters

In response to the recent editorial, I would like to express my concern about the proposed water tank in North Haledon. I believe that the proposed water tank is a necessary measure to address the water shortage in the area.

Public involvement shunned in new boro hall project

The involvement of the public in decision-making on major public project is an important aspect of democratic governance. Public involvement in the planning and execution of a new boro hall project is crucial for ensuring that the project meets the needs and expectations of the community. The public should be given the opportunity to participate in the decision-making process, from the initial planning stages to the final implementation. This would ensure that the project is designed to meet the needs of the community and that the public has a say in the final product. The public should be informed about the project, its purpose, and its potential impact on the community. They should be given the chance to voice their concerns and suggestions, and their input should be considered in the decision-making process.

Death has no friends among newspaper reporters

The death of a person is an unfortunate event that affects everyone. However, it is particularly difficult for newspaper reporters who are responsible for covering such events. The reporters are often required to cover the death of a prominent person or a person who has made a significant contribution to society. This can be emotionally challenging for the reporters, who are required to report on the death of someone they may have known or respected. The reporters are also required to deal with the emotions of the family and friends of the deceased, who are often in shock and grief. The reporters may also have to deal with the media and the public, who may be interested in the details of the death. The reporters may have to balance the need for accuracy and objectivity with the need to respect the privacy of the family and friends of the deceased.

ups and downs

Thumb Up: The recent increase in the number of people getting vaccinated is a positive development. The vaccination rate is important in controlling the spread of diseases and protecting public health. The increase in the vaccination rate indicates that the public is taking steps to protect themselves and others.

Thumb Down: The recent increase in the number of people getting vaccinated is a positive development. The vaccination rate is important in controlling the spread of diseases and protecting public health. The increase in the vaccination rate indicates that the public is taking steps to protect themselves and others.
