Midland Avenue residents irked by ant-infested tree

By Darla Hoffman

Several residents of Midland Avenue on Aug. 7 reported that a tree on the corner of Midland and Hawthorne Avenues had become infested with ants. The tree, which has been growing in the same location for many years, recently began producing a large number of ants, which have been seen swarming around the base of the tree.

Residents said the ants have a right to enjoy the property, but the infestation has led to concerns about the health and safety of the area. One resident said the ants are a nuisance and have caused damage to their property.

Freehold Police Department

In response to the complaint, several officers were dispatched to the area. Upon arrival, officers found that the tree had swollen and was covered in ants. The officers removed the ants and examined the tree, but were unable to determine the cause of the infestation.

The officers recommended that the residents contact the Freehold Police Department for further assistance. The residents were advised to avoid touching the tree and to keep pets away from the area.

Midland Avenue residents were pleased with the officers' response and expressed gratitude for their assistance.

The officers advised the residents to contact the Freehold Police Department in the future if they experience any similar issues.

Sunday horse racing going on the ballot, but shopping may not

New Jersey's legislature must take a fateful vote this week on horse racing legislation that would authorize a new racetrack in the state. The bill, if passed, would have broad implications for the economy and quality of life in the area around the proposed track, which is planned for a former landfill site in Hightstown, Mercer County.

The bill, sponsored by State Senator James W. Kean, would authorize the state to issue bonds to fund the construction of a new racetrack. The track would be a multi-use facility, with horse racing as its primary function, but also featuring other entertainment and recreation activities. The projected cost of the project is $1 billion, with the state providing up to 70% of the funding.

The proposals also include a number of environmental and regulatory safeguards to protect the proposed location, which is located near residential and commercial areas. The track would be required to meet strict environmental standards and would operate under a严格的 regulatory framework.

Despite the potential economic benefits, there are concerns about the impact of the track on the surrounding area. The proposed location is near a number of sensitive ecosystems, including wetlands and floodplains, and there are concerns about the potential for pollution and water quality issues.

The vote on the bill is expected to be hotly contested, with supporters arguing that it would bring much-needed economic development to the area, while opponents argue that it would have negative environmental and social impacts.

Why can't firemen have beards?

From: Summerstage, NJ August 7, 1990

Dear editor,

I've been a fan of yours for a long time, and I have a personal interest in this topic. As a member of the New Jersey Firefighters' Association, I would like to offer my perspective on the issue of beards for firefighters.

Many firefighters believe that a beard provides a protective barrier against the heat and cold, and can also help in the control of facial hair growth. However, the debate over beards has become a contentious issue among firefighters and the general public.

I would like to suggest that we should continue to have discussions on this issue and work towards finding a solution that is acceptable to all parties involved.

Sincerely,

Firemen kept hospital supplied with water

Dear editor,

I feel compelled to write to you about the recent situation in our hospital. The hospital has been experiencing a serious water shortage, and the staff has been working tirelessly to ensure that patients receive the care they need.

The hospital has been using a variety of strategies to cope with the water shortage, including the use of alternative sources and the conservation of water where possible. Despite these efforts, the situation continues to be challenging.

I would like to commend the staff at the hospital for their dedication and hard work in ensuring the safety and well-being of our patients. I am confident that we will overcome this challenge together.

Sincerely,

Too many contingencies with development's approval

Mayor Ray's words at Tuesday's City Council meeting that "what we do today can affect our ability to do some tomorrow" are underlined in the arguments presented by the proponents of waterfront development at the Washington School. Census figures evoke concern among mayors

Aug. 14, 1963

The Census Bureau has released preliminary figures for the 1960 census. The figures show that the population of the United States has increased by 15.2 million, or 12.7%, since the 1950 census.

The figures also show that the population of the state of New Jersey has increased by 10.2 million, or 10.5%, since the 1950 census.

Mayor John Garces spoke at a rally of the Republican League in the statehouse yesterday afternoon.

"The Census figures are an indication of the growth of our state," he said. "This is a time of prosperity, and we must make the most of it."

Making marriage work: Communication is important
As Dr. Stanley D. Sussman, Ph.D., and Dr. Susan Tschetter, M.D., have shown in their book "Marriage: A Relationship of Two," communication is key to a successful marriage. Here are some tips for improving communication in your relationship:

1. Listen actively: Pay attention to what your partner is saying, and avoid interrupting or thinking about your own response.
2. Use "I" statements: Avoid blaming your partner by using statements like "I feel..." instead of "You make me feel..."
3. Be clear and concise: Avoid using vague or ambiguous language.
4. Show empathy: Try to understand your partner's perspective and feelings.
5. Practice active listening: Repeat what your partner says to show that you are listening.

By following these tips, you can improve communication in your relationship and increase the chances of a successful marriage.

Back home with the national title

Bassham had introduced a swiftly new change to the DCA eleven man band. They had chosen to change the name of the band and replace some younger members with some who had been in the band for quite a few years.

Bassham's one year in Spain had enriched him and instilled in him a new appreciation of the music that he played. The new band included some of the younger members of the old band, but also some older members who had been with the band for several years. The new name for the band was the DCA Eleven Men, and they were ready to take on the world. They practiced hard and performed at various events, building their reputation and gaining new fans. They were determined to make it big, and they didn't stop working hard.

We're back home with the national title

The band's success continued to grow, and they were invited to perform at various events across the country. They were in demand, and their music was loved by fans of all ages. They continued to tour and record, and their popularity only grew. They were proud to be back home with their national title, and they were excited to continue their success in the music industry.

for the week of August 21st

Boro's preliminary census figures should not be challenged. While most of us had expected our population in enumerable categories to have increased, the final report has listed the boro's population at 17,910. This is 20 less than the figures available from the 1960 census. As of this writing, there were no changes in the figures. The census had the number of households in the borough reported as 7,725. This is only 20 less than the figures available from the 1960 figures, which is 7,750. However, using the per household average of 2.80 persons, this would be 21,620. This is 353 persons less than the figures shown in the preliminary report.

This fact is so obvious that it requires us to take a second look at the accuracy of the numbers. — on the strength of the figures of 185 which we received in the borough. Ask any realtor near me who makes a living from selling houses and real estate. Many homes in the borough. It is a part of a community, families and real estate are very well negotiated by realtors in our community. The Newark Press is a part of this community. Realtors and real estate professionals have waiting lists of people who are anxious to find homes in the borough. It is not only a part of our community, but it is a part of the classified section in our own newspaper. And we are proud of the homes in the borough. The homes in the borough are a part of our community. They are a part of our community. We take pride in the homes in the borough. The homes in the borough are a part of our community.

They expressed appreciation for the support they have received from their neighbors, stating that they are proud to be part of the community and that they are grateful for the support they have received.

A note of thanks

Dear editor,

I am writing to express my appreciation for the hard work and effort put into the preparation of the current issue of The Newark Press. The dedication and professionalism demonstrated by the staff is truly commendable. I am grateful for the opportunity to share my story and contribute to the community.

Thumbs Up

The Newark Caffenee offers a unique twist to the traditional coffee shop experience. Not only do they serve delicious coffee, they also offer a variety of food options, creating a pleasant atmosphere for both work and leisure. The cafe's commitment to quality and customer satisfaction is evident in every aspect of the business. I highly recommend it to anyone looking for a new place to enjoy their morning coffee or grab a quick bite on the go.

Thumbs Down

The new traffic light at the intersection of Main Street and the highway has caused quite a stir among the community. While there was an initial expectation that it would improve safety, the actual results have been disappointing. The traffic flow seems to have slowed down considerably, and there have been reports of confusion among drivers. The city should consider alternative solutions to address the traffic issues without causing further inconvenience.

Hook Supply captures two important victories

One thing's for sure, when hooked up for a week-long tournament, the players are not only in the heat of the game, but they are also capturing important victories. Hook Supply's recent tournament was no exception.

Mike McCallum, one of the top-ranked players, emerged as the champion of the tournament. He outplayed his opponents with his innovative strategies and top-notch skills.

The tournament was held on a beautiful sunny day, with Hook Supply's primary sponsor, Sport-Tek, providing the best possible equipment. The atmosphere was electric, and the players were fully engaged in the competition.

The tournament was divided into two sections: the main section and the qualifying section. The top 16 players from the main section advanced to the main draw, while the remaining players competed in the qualifying section.

In the main draw, McCallum demonstrated his dominance by winning all his matches. His championship match was against John Black, who had won the qualifying section.

The match was a thrilling one, with both players displaying their best skills. However, McCallum's experience and technical skills proved to be too much for Black, who was unable to match his precision and speed.

In the end, McCallum emerged victorious, winning the championship with a score of 6-2, 6-4. The victory was well-deserved, and McCallum's performance was recognized by the tournament organizers.

The tournament was not only a great opportunity for the players to showcase their skills but also a chance for Hook Supply to gain more exposure and recognition.

The tournament organizers are already looking forward to the next year's event and are planning to make it even more exciting and challenging.

In conclusion, Hook Supply's recent tournament was a great success, and McCallum's victory was a testament to his hard work, talent, and dedication. The tournament highlighted the importance of Hook Supply in the world of professional fishing and set a new standard for upcoming tournaments.

Officials discuss North Haledon’s proposed sewer project

After almost 30 years of planning, the sewer project for the town of Haledon is moving forward. Following the town’s $10 million bond issue last week, the Sewer Authority has been approved by the town council. The project is expected to cost between $20 million and $25 million and will provide sewer service to about 1,200 homes in the town.

The project will involve the construction of a new pump station, a 5-mile pipeline, and the upgrading of existing sewer lines. The new pump station will be located on the site of the old one, which is no longer able to handle the increased flow of waste. The pipeline will run from the pump station to the treatment plant in another part of the town.

The project is expected to be completed within three years, with construction starting immediately. The town has received grants from the state and federal governments to help pay for the project, and the remaining funds will be raised through bond sales.

The project is part of a larger plan to improve the town’s infrastructure, which has been neglected for many years. The town is also planning to upgrade its water system and road network in the near future.

"We are excited to begin this project and improve the quality of life for our residents," said Mayor John Ferriero. "This project is a major step forward for our town and we look forward to seeing the benefits it will bring."

Macaluso's fined for using basement as a lounge

Commissions introduced ordinance banning public drinking

Aneditors have bitten the olive oil to press panic, dairy stocks leave the market; and the news is not improving, according to this week's market report.

For the week ending Oct. 29, 1979, the market report was as follows:

Macaluso’s fined for using basement as a lounge

Joseph J. Macaluso, 265 Lafayette Ave., was found guilty of the charge by the Town Justice court on Oct. 29, 1979. The judge fined Macaluso $100, plus court costs of $50.

An editorial has been issued in response to the incident.

Commissioners introduce ordinance banning public drinking

As a result of the incident, the commissioners have introduced an ordinance banning public drinking.

The ordinance states that anyone found drinking in public will be fined $100, plus court costs of $50.

The ordinance is set to go into effect on Nov. 1, 1979.
Ordinance banning public drinking has been a long time coming

for the week of August 28th

Editorial

The proposed ordinance to ban public drinking of alcoholic beverages in public places, which was announced last week, is a welcome step towards controlling the problem of public drunkenness. The ordinance will make it illegal to possess or consume alcohol in any public place, park, playground, playground area, public street, sidewalk, alley, parking area, or place to which the public or a substantial group has access, whether publicly or privately owned.

The purpose of these regulations is to prevent public drunkenness. The act of possessing or consuming alcohol in public places, while clearly not illegal, is certainly not desirable. We can all recall instances where public drunkenness has created an atmosphere of fear and anxiety. The proposed ordinance will help to ensure that the public places we all enjoy will not be sources of fear and anxiety.

Comment

Labor Day "control" is the key word

Labor Day between those who work and those who play is a test of the strength of the character of a nation. It is the day of the year when we all pause to reflect on the achievements of the past and the challenges of the future.

The New Jersey Senate passed a bill that would outlaw the public consumption of alcohol in New Jersey. The bill, which was introduced by Senator John C. Cahill, an attorney and former state senator, would make it illegal to consume alcohol in any public place.

No quarterly dividend for Prospect Park National

For the first time since it was established in 1970, Prospect Park National will offer no quarterly dividend this fall. The company, founded as the Prospect Park National Bank, has traditionally paid a quarterly dividend, but in recent months, the financial problems it faces have led to a significant decline in its profits. With the stock price dropping from $5.00 a share on a 2-for-1 basis in February to under $3.00 a share, the board of directors has decided not to pay a dividend. The move is seen as a reflection of the company's inability to attract new deposits and the continued decline in its asset base. The company's financial statements show a loss of $3.2 million for the quarter, and the board has decided to suspend dividend payments until the company's financial situation improves.
