KINDLE CHEER, NOT FIRE with your Christmas tree by following these fire safety suggestions from the public education department of the Standard Fire Insurance Company. Upper left, select a freshly cut tree, store it in a cool, damp place, and spray it with a flame-resistant solution before using. Lower left, place tree away from doorways, radiators and fireplaces, and set it in stand containing wet sand, water or a fire-resistant solution. Right, use flame-resistant trimmings, check lights for faulty wiring, and let children handle tree only when grown-ups are present. Discard tree right after holidays; the drier it gets the greater the danger of fire

Say 'Greetings' With Soapsuds

Let the children take part in the excitement of getting ready for Christmas. They'll feel so grown up and important! And, not least to be considered, keeping them occupied will keep them out from under foot. One assignment you can give them that's truly fun is decorating the household. Of course, anything you suggest must not be too complicated. Decorations done on glass with scouring powder paste or scapsuds are not difficult, and they are easy to remove when the holidays are over.

That's the prediction made today by 1847 Rogers Bros. in announcing that once again all babies born on New Year's Day are eligible to receive a silverware gift.

On New Year's Day, however, an all-time high of births is forecast.
Based on statistics compiled with the help of Metropolitan Life Insurance Company and Parents' Magazine, 1847 Rogers Bros. predicts 10,500 births for January 1, 1954. This is a new record and 200 more than the present mark set January 1 of this year. It is forecast there will be 10,577 "single" babies, 110 sets of twins and one set of triplets on New Year's Day.

"However, births for all of 1954 will fall below the all-time record gifts to New Year's Day abbies fire of 3,900,000 expected for 1953," according to John D. Shaw of 1847 Rogers Bros. The valves, operated in part muscular contraction and in part by the pressure of the blood stream, direct the blood in the proper channels and prevent it from flowing back into the heart. injuries may make the valve opening smaller, so that the normal amount of blood will not flow through in the usual time alotted. Or the valves themselves may b shrunk by an injury so that they do not completely close off the ening, thus allowing blood to low back into a heart chamber. In both these situations, the eart responds by stepping up upply of blood is maintained. ventually the heart may enlarge and become stronger to meet this strain but in most cases this does
