Controversial Days Are Ahead Is Warning Given to Teachers by NJEA

Tough as the recent state bond issue campaign may have been, it was "only a forerunner of harder and more controversial days to come" in the campaign for increased state aid to local school districts, the New Jersey Education Assn. is cautioning teachers.

"NJEA has its path charted—an all about drive to enact a sales tax, an income tax, or a combination of the two," declares an editorial in the current issue of the NJEA Review, a monthly publication which goes to over 60,000 educators and friends of education. "Improved state educational support must be voted."

The magazine lists five of the "big hurdles" which must be overcome before the state can relieve tax pressures on the local property owner by increasing its share of local school costs. They are:

1—The interpretation by some politicians leaders that the bond issue defeat was a vote against spending.

2—The piecemeal approach of smaller bond issues. "It's difficult to see how those who approve of the Governor's bond proposal can turn around and argue for other bond issues—politicians whose principal and interest may have to come from regular taxes and not the Turnpike tolls. But a number of legislators may try to do just that."

3—The appeal for a tax convention or a tax-limitation referendum. "The best way for legislators to escape the tax question is to throw it back to somebody else."

4—The victory of the off-track betting referendum in New York City and the new lottery in New Hampshire. "You might think is the worst kind of financing, but some legislators, in their desperation to avoid a broad-based tax, will talk instead for such new forms of taxable gambling."

5—The inevitable debate over which—of the two-broad-based

Port of New York Spent Three Times More On Ports

The Port of New York spent three times more on port construction than any other United States port during the post-World War II period 1946 through 1962, according to a survey of expenditures at United States and Canadian ports by The Port of New York Authority.

New construction and modernization of ocean-going ship facilities in the New York-New Jersey Harbor during the period amounted to almost $365 million. This was 22 per cent of the $1.7 billion expended by all United States ports, and $77 million more than all competing North Atlantic ports combined.

Total port development costs for all North American ports, including $350 million expended at Canadian ports, amounted to more than $2 billion. The average annual expenditure has risen from $76 million in the ten-year period following the end of World War II to $213 million during the 1950's.

Long Beach, California, with $116 million, was second to New York among the United States ports. In the Atlantic range of ports, Baltimore with $68 million was second in expenditures to the New York-New Jersey Port. Philadelphia, Boston and Norfolk, the Port of New York's other main competitors, each spent approximately $55 million. Montreal, with an expenditure of $93 million, headed the list of Canadian ports.

At the Port of New York, marine facility construction expenditures included investments by the Port Authority, the City of New York and various private interests. Over 70 per cent of the $383 million expended was on general cargo facilities. A total

The driver of the car in which Miss McLaughlin was a passenger was Frances M. Menezio, 19, of 38-14 Morlot Ave., Fair Lawn. She complained of pain in the side of her face and head, but said she would see her own doctor.

The Moncoto vehicle was headed east on Rock Road when it collided with a westbound auto driven by Leonard Rosano, 43, of 7 Smith Street, Waldwick, police

"Operation Brotherhood" Gives Disabled Veterans in N. J. a New Lease on Life

TRENTON—A new lease on life is being extended disabled veterans in New Jersey through the State Division of Veterans Services' program known as "Operation Brotherhood."

Robert A. Roe, Commissioner of the New Jersey Department of Conservation and Economic Development, said the Department's Division of Veterans' Services has instituted the unique program which is already showing marked by successful results.

The program involves contact by telephone or personal visit by a Division of Veterans' Services representative to each homebound veteran in New Jersey in order to determine his needs and bring his file up to date.

The "Operation Brotherhood" plan was originated by Anthony J. Volpe, Director of the Division of Veterans' Services, and put into operation July 1. In the five months since, 16 veterans have received rehabilitative devices and progressed from bed patients to ambulatory.

New Jersey disabled veterans are getting solid evidence that the State is concerned for their welfare," Director Volpe remarked. "More than that, we are working toward their further rehabilitation so that they may be increasingly independent physically and financially."

Director Volpe said that representatives from the State's 24 field offices had received splendid co-peration from welfare boards, health associations and social service agencies in local areas.

The Red Cross and Visiting Nurses Associations and Veterans Organizations provided such

Robert E. Byrnes Of Cedar Grove Freed Of Charges

Two charges of being a disorderly person, filed against former Mayor Robert E. Byrnes of Cedar Grove, were dismissed in Municipal Court Thursday night.

The complaints made by Sergeant Walter Vandenbergh, alleged that Byrnes made annoying and suggestive telephone calls to a nine-year-old borough girl on May 2.

Byrnes' attorney moved for dismissal of the charges after noting that neither of the girls was in court to testify and added that the girls would have had to be able to identify the voice of the caller as that of Byrnes. He made it clear that Byrnes would

HAWTHORNE AND WAYNE GET MEDALLION FOR EFFORTS IN PROMOTING TERCENTENARY

Wayne Township, Hawthorne and Ringwood have been awarded the New Jersey Tercentenary medallion for their efforts in promoting the upcoming 300th anniversary of the state, Dr. D. Stanton Hammond, chairman of the Passaic County Tercentenary Commission reported at this week's meeting of that commission.

The group meeting at Lambert's Castle discussed plans for this county's observance of the state's 300th birthday and heard reports from the chairman on area activities in this direction.

Dr. Hammond said that Paterson, Little Falls, Wayne, West Milford, Hawthorne, Pompton Lakes, Ringwood and Wayne have had excellent tercentenary programs and publicity in recent weeks.

He said it was the consensus that several Passaic County Commissions have been overlooked by the state in their view of local celebration activities. It was suggested that a limited allotment as assigned at this time, will be extended on the next round of honors.

Hammond proposed that the county commission publicly express satisfaction and thanks to the commissions for their activities thus far with the hope of renewed and enlarged plans for 1964.

Also discussed by the Tercentenary commission were the preparation and distribution of a Passaic County Tercentenary bulletin, similar to Bergen County's issue. This was recommended as of major importance since the individual municipal commission under the law operate individually. The county commission's principal duty is to act as the coordinating body to stimulate the city, borough and township commissions for tercentenary performance in 1964.

In the course of this discussion it was decided to invite one or more representatives of the 16 municipal tercentenary

Alexander Fasoli Named Magistrate In Midland Park

Alexander Fasoli's appointment as borough magistrate was confirmed by the borough council Thursday night. His appointment was announced by Mayor Garrett W. Hagedorn recently.

The resignation from the fire department of Herman Pruiksma, who has served for 40 years, was accepted with regret. The council agreed to send him a letter noting its appreciation for his long services.

Also accepted was the resignation of lieutenant of Orrie Schaper, who will continue in the fire department but said he felt that the office of lieutenant was too demanding. John Savulich was named to succeed him as lieutenant.

Fasoli once were the blue and brass himself, serving as Hawthorne's policeman.

He's 50, married, mustached and a bad-hoosd legal competitor, who smiles in courtrooms only when making a point, but drops the serious visage when court adjourns.

Fasoli successfully defended Bible reading in Hawthorne schools in 1956, when an appeal against a New Jersey law allowing prayer had been made with the Supreme Court.

Aliens Must Report Their Address in January

District Director Dominick F. Rinaldi of the Immigration and Naturalization Service announced today that over 150,000 aliens will report their addresses in the State of New Jersey during January 1963.

He added, that any alien who willfully violates the address report requirement may be fined up to $200, imprisoned for 30 days, and deported.

In addition, aliens who are not in the United States during January must report their addresses in the 30-day period following their return.

The District Director said that Address Report cards will be available at the Immigration and Naturalization Service office at 1000 Broad Street, Newark, New Jersey and local United States post offices beginning January 1, 1964.

GREAT LAKES, Ill. (FHTNC)—Charles J. Bohny, 18, son of Mrs. Ethel R. Bohny of 66 Fuller Avenue, Hawthorne, N. J., recently completed basic training December 6 at the Naval Training Center, Great Lakes, Ill.

The nine-week training included seamanship, orientation, history and organization, seamanship, ordnance and gunnery, military drill, first aid and survival.

During the training recruits receive tests and interviews which determine their future assignments in the Navy. Upon completing the program they are scheduled to service schools for technical training or to ships and stations for on-the-job training in a Navy rating specialty.

Naval training produces the power in seapower by supplying qualified personnel to man the ships, planes and shore stations of today's Navy.

New York World's Fair Will Welcome Brightest Light April 22, Fair Opening

The brightest welcome light of all time will shine skyward on April 22, 1964, when the New York World's Fair opens its doors to the public.

The light, consisting of 12 searchlights, each producing one billion candle power, the greatest concentration of exposition lighting in the world, will be seen for miles around, inviting the Fair's expected 70 million visitors to "Follow the Tower of Light to the Fair."

The source for this powerful welcome beam is the Electric Power and Light Exhibit's spectacular pavilion sponsored by the Public Service Electric and Gas Company and 128 other investor-owned electric utility companies for their neighbors and customers as well as for thousands of visitors from other nations who will attend the international exposition.

Rising 80 feet from a glimmering reflective pool, the Tower of Light appears to be an inverted crystalline chandelier. Over 1,000 aluminum panels make intriguing staggering triangular prisms that rise to a peak, giving the pavilion a distinctive vertical appearance.

At night, the unique structure will come alive with ever-changing multi-colored lights that reflect on the specially treated prisms, creating a fairy-tale exterior effect. During the day, the panels will reflect the sun's rays, radiating a sight unforgettable.

Inside, visitors will see some fascinating revolving "magic carpet" that will carry them through the Hall of Snow to the Earth," a brief-hearted musical show. An eyeful of technique will be used in this elaborate presentation, in-

All-Number Calling To Be Extended In Passaic County

All-Number Calling (ANC) taking place in Hawthorne will be extended to all customers in the Passaic County Telephone Directory area in a month (January), the New Jersey Bell Telephone Company announced today.

The changeover will coincide with the delivery of the directory in the Paterson area on January 22, the Passaic area on January 27 and the Pompton Lakes area on January 29.

The 1964 directory, which will contain all ANC numbers, will be printed in 20 per cent larger type for easier reading.

Some of the 183,000 customers listed in the directory already have ANC numbers. For nearly all of the customers who will be receiving ANC for the first time there will be no difference in the actual dialing of numbers. ANC designations correspond on the telephone dial to the 37 exchange name designations.

For example, RWarthouse 4 exchange in Fair Lawn becomes 794 and Mulberry 3 in Paterson becomes 683. In each case, the numerals correspond to the letter on the telephone dial.

Approximately 1,140 customers assigned an ANC number which does not correspond to the proper exchange name. These customers were scattered through the 37 exchanges serving Garfield will be given the ANC number which customers have already been as-

"Self-Defeating Expedients"

A number of bills now before Congress would shorten the standard work week of 40 hours. This has long been a goal of many leading unions. The argument is that it offers a solution to the vexing unemployment problem.

At the same time, under current proposals, pay for the shorter week would be as much as for the longer week now in general effect. This, say union spokesmen, would be necessary to maintain purchasing power.

The net result, obviously, would be to force up the prices charged for commodities and services. That always happens and must happen when wages outrun worker productivity. So, in a word, the net result would be price inflation, at a time when price stability is an urgent national need and goal.

Another result would be to impair the ability of U. S. industry to meet foreign competition—which becomes tougher and tougher, with its advantages of lower wages and other basic costs. So, in the long run, there is an excellent chance that a shorter work week accompanied by higher hourly wage rates would increase, not decrease, employment. People would buy less of higher priced products.

not testify in the case and, if called as a state's witness, would decline to give testimony incriminating to himself.

Borough Prosecutor Alexander E. Fasoli said Vandenberg filed the complaint "on information and belief" and has no proof of the allegation himself. Fasoli concurred with the motion to dismiss the complaints.

"We know full well that we couldn't prove the charges beyond a reasonable doubt," said Fasoli.

Magistrate Peter Calcia said he would reluctantly grant the motion for dismissal. "The defendant certainly has the right not to incriminate himself," said Calcia.

Four other Passaic County similar charges against Byrnes while a fifth found him guilty and referred him for psychiatric treatment.

taxes to enact. "No one opposed to new taxes is going to miss a chance to stir the new-tax advocates into fighting among themselves."

Concludes the editorial: "NJEA will be fighting as hard as possible for a new tax solution. But, it will not be an easy job. Every NJEA member, as he has never been called upon before, will have to work to put this tax plan across.

"Recognize the obstacles, beware of sweet-sounding decoys, and let's get to it. We've got quite a job ahead of us."

said.

Rosano told Patrolmen Albert Stewart and Charles Mabey the Moncato car was traveling at fast speed. Miss Moncato said Rosano's car was in the middle of the road and she pulled over to the right and stopped but was struck by the Rosano auto.

At 8:15 Thursday morning, a three-car collision on Wagaraw Road, west of Schoon Avenue, resulted in slight injuries to two drivers.

Mrs. Helen R. Zachariasen, 49, of 131 Oakwood Drive, Wayne, suffered a cut on her left arm and Robert J. Ouellet, 21, of 426 River St., Paterson, complained of neck and head pains. Both said they would see their own physicians.

The Ouellet car was travelling west on Wagaraw Road, and turning left into the County Fair Farm when it collided with Mrs. Zachariasen's east bound auto. The Zachariasen car then hit a car driven by William F. Milnes, 30, of 39 Maitland Ave. Milnes was headed west and was passing the Ouellet car, police said.

The Ouellet and Zachariasen cars were towed away, according to Patrolmen John Bechtle and Alfred Soder.

Miss Etchells J. H. Robinson Are Married

Marriage vows were exchanged last Saturday afternoon in Saint Clement's Episcopal Church by Miss Dorothy Ann Etchells, R.N., daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Edward Etchells of 701 Lafayette Ave., and Sgt. James Harry Robinson, USA, of 80 Union Ave., Clifton.

The bridegroom is the son of Frank Robinson Sr., of 33 Emerald Lane, Levittown, Pa. and the late Mrs. Margaret Fern.

Rev. Allan B. Grayson performed the double ring ceremony. A reception for 90 guests followed at Grau'ich's Orange.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a delustered satin [illegible] gown featuring [illegible] appliques and a [illegible] skirt ending in a [illegible] train. A satin pillbox held her veil of silk illusion and she carried a cascade of miniature [illegible] with an orchid.

[illegible] Ann Gisen of Staten Island, N.Y., was maid of honor in a hunter green velvet cocktail length sheath dress with a matching satin pillbox. She carried a cascade of red and white carnations with holly.

Bridesmaids, similarly attired, were Miss Sandra Etchells, the bride's cousin; Mrs. William Robinson, sister-in-law of the bridegroom, and Mrs. Glenn Victor.

Frank Robinson Jr., of Clifton served as his brother's best man. Another brother, William Robinson ushered with John Etchells, brother of the bride, and Thomas Zayat.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Etchells wore a holiday pink satin sheath dress with matching accessories and a white cymbidium orchid corsage.

The bride was graduated from Hawthorne High School and Flower and Fifth Avenue Hospital's School of Nursing, New York City. She was with the Eatries Division of Valley Hospital Ridgewood, prior to her marriage.

The bridegroom, a graduate of Clifton High School, is a sergeant with the U. S. Army, stationed in Germany.

For wedding trip to New York City, Mrs. Robinson chose a two-piece blue knit suit with black accessories and a white orchid. The newlyweds will reside in Baumholder, Germany.

Miss Bonser To Become Bride

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Bonser of 41 Fairview Ave. announce the forthcoming marriage of their daughter, Miss Sharon Bonser, to Airman 3C August Ruhren, USAF, son of Mr. and Mrs. August Ruhren of 5-45 Hartley Place, Fair Lawn.

The bride-elect was feted at a surprise bridal shower given by her aunt, Mrs. Robert Colyer of Hawthorne.

Miss Bonser was graduated from Hawthorne High School and is with the New Jersey Bell Telephone Co.

Her fiance, a graduate of Fair Lawn High School, is serving with the U. S. Air Force, stationed in Michigan.

An April wedding is planned.

HEALTH, EDUCATION AND WELFARE

"One of the magazines I receive regularly carries an ad which says 'please, whenever writing about your subscription attach the address sticker from your copy of ———,'" stated Andrew J. Gessner, social security district manager in Paterson. The ad further indicates their new electronic equipment can bring quick service if it is fed the right diet of information.

We do not want address stickers or anything like that but there is something we do need, stated Gessner. If you are a beneficiary and receiving social security payments you may write us about a change of address, a missing check or some other matter. If you do, please show your social security claim number on the correspondence.

Your claim number is your own social security account number followed by the letter "A." If you receive benefits as a wife, it is your husband's social security account number followed by a "B." Even if you do not know the letter, you should be sure to show the social security account number of the person on whose account benefits are being paid. If a man and his wife are receiving benefits and the wife has never worked (or has not worked long enough to receive payments on her own account) show the husband's account number.

If a man and wife both worked and each receives their own benefit, each should show their individual account number.

"If a male worker dies, leaving a widow and children who receive benefits based upon his work, his account number should be shown."

At the time a claim is filed an envelope form is given to the applicant. On it is listed the claim number of each applicant. This envelope should be kept in a safe place so that the correct claim number will be available when needed.

By failing to include your claim number on correspondence, you may cause your check to be delayed. Change of address forms and letters sent to one of the payment centers cannot be processed without the claim number. When this happens the payment center sends it to the district office so claim number can be added. Only then can the change of address be processed as payment center files are maintained solely by number and not by name.

So, make it a habit to include your social security claim number on all correspondence sent to the Social Security Administration. Even if you are not receiving social security payments, if you direct an inquiry to a social security district office be sure to show your social security account number.

Each person is issued (upon application) one social security account number. It is his for life. It is an important number. Take good care of it and use it on all social security correspondence.

If any additional information is needed, contact your local social security office. It is located at 52 Church Street, Paterson. The phone number is LAmbert 3-5800.

The American Medical Association has pledged its support in implementing the nation's new program to fight mental illness and mental retardation. The new legislation, as enacted by Congress, closely follows the principles first advocated by the AMA in its mental health program announced in the summer of 1962. The bill calls for $150 million for the construction of Community health centers over the next three years; $126 million over four years to be spent on research and treatment centers for mental retardation and the mentally retarded; and $53 million for training teachers of the mentally retarded and other handicapped children.

A publication of the Standard Oil Company of California points out that the automobile population is growing faster than people. There will be about 4.2 million people born this year in this country, but during the record 1963 model year more than 7.3 million automobiles were produced. And by 1975, it is forecast, production of 8 million cars a year will be common. However, the automobile, happily, dies faster than man. Estimates say that about 5 million vehicles will be scrapped this year, as compared with 1.7 million human deaths.

New York World's Fair Will Welcome

cluding lighting effects, music, dialogue, three-dimensional animated figures and motion pictures.

A three-dimensional animated talking figure named Uncle Ben will be the star of the show. He resembles an earlier Ben named Franklin who had a significant electrical experience with a kite and is recognized as a traditional figure who suggests inventiveness, thrift, and free enterprise.

Uncle Ben has a friend and steady companion in an eagle named Sam, a factual character who will narrate much of the material. Like Uncle Ben, Sam is an animated, three-dimensional talking figure, electrically lighted and electronically controlled.

A romantic touch is provided by a boy and a girl who meet at the Fair and are hesitatingly curious about the wonders of electricity.

"The Brightest Show On Earth" is presented in seven show chambers, each consisting of several sequences. Spectators will spend three minutes in each chamber as they revolve through the show.

A spectacularly illuminated and orchestrated "Overture of Light" introduces the show, after which the audience is told in song and story of the contributions of the investor-owned electric power and light industry in meeting the electrical energy needs of a growing America.

Uncle Ben and Sam lead the young couple —as well as the audience—on a guided tour of electrical progress. The audience meets a fanciful cast of characters, including a cow, piglets, chickens and "kilowatt birds," who all sing lilting songs about the wonders of electricity.

The show, produced by Alfred Stern, maintains the aura of a musical fantasy. Among the elaborate scenes is a stirring Fourth of July sequence, brilliantly illuminated by electrical fireworks, which is followed by a charming Christmas episode with music and lighting effects.

While Uncle Ben, dressed in a Santa suit, rides an ornate sleigh high above the audience, the chorus sings "It's the Fill Your Heart With Gladness Time of Year," an original Christmas song composed especially for the show.

After the Christmas scene, visitors descend to the ground floor where they will view the source for the "Tower of Light," and see an all-electric climate conditioning show and an electrical research exhibit.

In the "Court of Light," a glass wall will separate visitors from the battery of 12 powerful Xenon bulbs, light source for the beacon . . . equal to 310,600 automobile headlights or 50 fully illuminated Yankee Stadiums.

Robert Russell Bennett, Broadway's most famous orchestrator, is the musical arranger for the show's bright score composed by Claibe Richardson, who is also composer for the musical version of The Madwoman of Chaillot, scheduled to open on Broadway next year. Miles White, who has designed costumes for scores of Broadway and Hollywood musicals including Oklahoma, Carousel and Gentlemen Prefer Blonds, designed settings and characters.

Many months of work and thousands of man-hours on the part of well-known Broadway talents have gone into the conception and design of the show to insure that "The Brightest Show On Earth" will be one of the most entertaining and dazzling presentations at the Fair.

Monticello Raceway Prepares Campaign For 1964 Season

MONTICELLO, N. Y.—Monticello Raceway—with a helping hand from three-year-old stars, Overtrick and Speedy Scot—is preparing to launch its 1964 promotional campaign within the next few weeks.

Movies of the 1963 Little Brown Jug and Hambletonian Stakes, two of the season's most exciting events, are among the new additions to Monticello's film library.

Harness Racing Institute's newest film presentation, "Speed A La Cart" is also in the package. The film runs 12 minutes, in technicolor, and uses Si Mac Lad and Henry T. Adios to illustrate trotting and pacing. It also shows Kentucky farm scenes, winter training and some top racing events from around the country.

Overtrick's world-record performance—back-to-back miles of 1:57.1 and 1:57.3—highlighted the Little Brown Jug for sophomore pacers. His trotting counterpart, "Triple Crown" champion Speedy Scot, copped the Hambletonian test for three-year-olds in the exact fashion, although being extended three heats by rugged Florlis.

These exciting races, plus such outstanding films as "Fire Away," "It Started With Greyhound," and "The Story of a Harness Race Driver" will be available for showing to civic, fraternal and business groups.

The Harness Track of America (HTA) and the United States Trotting Association (USTA) have [illegible] the production of these films, which give an [illegible] portrayal of the sulky sport that has grown by leaps and bounds in popularity among the [illegible].

commissions to attend all meetings of the Passaic County commission. It was held that all in attendance would mutually benefit and that the interchange of ideas would be of best import to all the municipalities for 1964.

The commission voted to request the Board of Freeholders to make plans for an appropriation to provide financial support for the 1964 projects.

It was pointed out that the larger expenditures will naturally fall on the local tercentenary commissions depending on the extent of the various projects. Dr. Hammond noted that those commissions which plan pageants, memorials, libraries and similar projects must expect to finance them locally. The county commission feels its activities should be confined to the plans previously outlined.

With this in mind, a special committee will request a meeting with the Board of Freeholders at a later date to discuss ways and means.

The commission will meet again at the call of the chairman.

Douglass Projects

Two new Douglass College buildings, the Home Economics-Psychology Building and the Marie Hilson Katzenback Hall, a dormitory, were opened in September, 1963.

Trout for New Jersey Streams For 1965-1966 Now Hatching

TRENTON—Trout that will be stocked in New Jersey streams in 1965 and 1966 are now hatchlings at the Charles O. Hayford State Fish Hatchery of the Division of Fish and Game in the Department of Conservation and Economic Development.

At birth the young are known as "sac fry" and measure about half an inch. They wriggle through holes in the bottom of the trays and settle at the bottom of troughs in the hatchery's nursery building.

Fish have been hatching almost daily since before Thanksgiving when the first brown trout were born. Brooks came in early December, and rainbows shortly before Christmas.

The rainbow fry were an especially welcome Christmas present for Hatchery Superintendent Robert Williams, since they marked a significant advancement in a selective breeding program undertaken by the hatchery staff. For several years breeders have been selected from the earliest hatching fish in an effort to gradually attain an earlier rate at which eggs may be taken.

This year rainbow eggs were taken eight days earlier than in 1962. This was added to a gain of several days made in 1962 for rainbow and brown trout.

Earlier hatching fish will start to feed and grow sooner. They can be moved to larger pools where there is room to grow at an earlier date.

The sac fry remain on the bottom of the trough, receiving nourishment from their yolk sacs. Troughs are covered except at the bottom end, since the fry avoid light and would tend to bunch and possibly smother at the outlet screen without this precaution.

After two weeks or more the fry absorb the yolk sacs and rise to the top of the troughs. They

SEN. GROSSI HEADS HEARING ON WAYS TO MEET STATE WELFARE GROWTH AND COSTS

Heads Debate

SENATOR GROSSI

Professional social and agency workers split with public administrators of welfare funds along career lines at the final hearing of the New Jersey State Legislative Welfare Investigating Committee at Paterson City Hall. The professionals focused on any tightening of requirements for ADC aid to Dependent Children and administrators of welfare programs favored the committee's recommendations.

The proposals aired at the hearing of the committee headed by State Senator Anthony J. Grossi call for setting a time maximum on ADC assistance grants regardless of family size, restricting the one year residence requirement for AID applicants, crackdown on deserting fathers and those delinquent with support payments and would permit cuts in welfare directives to agencies in the event the courts for removal of children from homes where the atmosphere is conducive to immorality.

Sen. Grossi skillfully directed the hearing, affording a well-rounded opportunity to all sides to be heard.

Other recommendations provide for intensive casework and budget management through a voucher system for hard core problem families a review of Title 14 covering "poor relief laws" to accomplish uniformity and elasticity in the administration of welfare programs, setting up a special staff in the county prosecutor's office to locate deserting fathers and putative fathers, prosecute them and collecting delinquent accounts resulting from breach of support orders, empowering county welfare directors to determine fair rental value for premises occupied by ADC recipients, and charging those who demand excessive rentals from relief clients with being guilty of a misdemeanor.

Recommendations to set a ceiling on ADC assistance grants and setting up a one-year residence requirement drew the greatest fire from the social workers present when as a "restricting the mobility" of

Here's How You Can Be Sure to Get Full Social Security Benefits for Your Wages

"How can I be sure my family and I get full social security coverage for the wages I've earned?"

This question is being asked more and more according to Andrew J. Gessner, district manager for social security in Paterson. "It's a very important question," Gessner said, "because all social security benefit payments are based on a worker's past earnings. We're very proud of the accuracy of our records, but we need the workers' help to keep them accurate."

There are two ways a worker can help the Social Security Administration to keep his wage record accurate. First, he should make sure his employer has his name and social security number exactly as they are shown on his social security card. When an employer reports the wrong number or name for a worker, there's a good chance the worker won't get any social security credit for his work. It's impossible for social security to credit wages when no number at all is reported.

The second step a worker can take to help social security office prevent errors is to check his record every three years. The social security office has free post cards forms that a worker can use to request a copy of his social security card. If the worker spots an error in his record, social security will help straighten it out. The Paterson social security office at 52 Church Street will send one of these free post card forms to any worker who wants one. The only expense to the worker is the stamp the post card. The telephone number is Lambert 5-5200.

No. Haledon Youth Returns to Answer Knifing Charges

The return of a North Haledon youth, arrested in California on a concealed weapons charge, is being sought by local authorities on charges of having stabbed a borough policeman.

Garret J. Kiefte, 21, of Hartwig Pl., North Haledon, was arrested in Placerville, Calif.

Police Chief Charles F. Kenyon Sr. said the Passaic County Prosecutor's Office has been instructed to seek Kiefte's return to answer charges of having stabbed a Hawthorne policeman last month.

Kiefte will be held in California until Jan. 26 when the concealed weapons charge will be heard.

Chief Kenyon said he wants Kiefte returned to answer atrocious assault and battery and disorderly conduct charges.

The charges here stem from a Nov. 30 incident at 71 Schoen Ave., where Kiefte was involved in an altercation with Patrolman Albert Pilecchi.

Pilecchi said he was stabbed in the right arm. The wound required six stitches.

Pilecchi and several other members had been called at the Schoen Ave., address when Kiefte's sister resided.

When police arrived, they said Kiefte cursed at them and threatened to "kill you."

Police said Kiefte was armed with a knife which Pilecchi tried to take from him.

After the incident Kiefte fled. Patrolman Albert Stewart also on the scene, filed assault charges against Kiefte.

KNOW YOUR GOVERNMENT

HOLD THOSE REINS, UNCLE SAM

Senate Committee on Government Operations, the report was based upon the subcommittee's analysis of 140 replies to a questionnaire dealing with intergovernmental problems.

Chairman Muskie reported that his subcommittee's study revealed "massive evidence" that most state and local officials "with near unanimity" want Congress to tighten the reins on Federal grant-in-aid programs "which now dispense an estimated $10 billion annually." The report also indicates that a great majority of the respondents to the subcommittee's questionnaire urge the Congress to enact legislation to provide for: (1) regular Congressional review of all laws providing grants-in-aid to State and local governments, (2) periodic Congressional review of future Federal grant programs, (3) amendment of the Internal Revenue Code to provide for a credit against the Federal income tax for income taxes paid to the States, (4) Federal payments in lieu of taxes to local governments with respect to certain Federal property, (5) the dispensing of the post audit of grants by individual Federal agencies, and acceptance "under certain conditions" of the audit report by State auditors, (6) more effective utilization of certain Federal grants by encouraging better coordinated local review of grant applications, and (7) uniform accounting and auditing procedures in the administration of grants-in-aid.

For New Jersey taxpayers, the recommendation that Uncle Sam bear down on the $10 to him annual Federal and "give away" makes sense. For, according to annual estimates of the New Jersey Taxpayers Association, they are paying $1.80 in taxes for every $1.00 in grants-in-aid received in the State and that doesn't sound like a gift even at Christmas-time.

People over 65 who are still working may, in some cases, receive part, or even all of their social security payments. Many times people lose their right to some payments by not applying in time. Visit your social security office for full details.

March of Dimes Aid Frees Joan To Devote Self to Helping Others

For 13 years, Joan Keeler has been jousting with a formidable antagonist.

Sometimes this attractive young woman, who lives and follows her profession of occupational therapy in Summit, N. J., makes some headway and seems to be winning. Then the antagonist, ruthless, foe old or will deliver a succession of cruel blows.

The old foe, the formidable antagonist, is rheumatoid arthritis. Arthritis tortures, cripples and deforms more people in the United States than any other disorder.

Emphasizing that she neither wants nor needs anyone's sympathy, Joan agreed to tell something about her encounters with this excruciating disease since her teens. She spoke during one of her monthly visits to the March of Dimes-financed Arthritis Center at Columbia Presbyterian Medical Center, New York City.

At the age of 17, Joan could look forward to what promised to be a reasonably happy life. She was attractive, athletic and a good student.

Then without warning, Joan says, "the roof of my little world came crashing in."

First, there were unexplainable pains during the summer but before college and that meant the end of athletics because pain wracked her body. Next, fever and loss of weight. Diagnosis of rheumatoid arthritis, never simple to make, was even more difficult 13 years ago. Specialists shook their heads in puzzlement over what disease had robbed this young woman of perfect health.

Despite the increasing severity of the pains, Joan was determined to start college. The first, almost insurmountable problem was getting from dormitory to classroom. The next difficulty was concentration. How can a student apply herself closely to lectures and homework when she suffers incessant spasms of pain in her back, arms and hands, legs and even, her toes?

"It became a fiasco," she says. "The fact was I couldn't keep up. I had to drop out." Then, during the following summer, Joan's old foe seemed to relent. She improved and returned to school.

But the rheumatoid arthritis returned to the attack—more savagely than it had before.

The second homecoming from college was no less discouraging than the first. But it did result in her applying for the Arthritis Clinic of Columbia Presbyterian Medical Center, which had been studying the disease for several years with encouraging results. The National Foundation-March of Dimes has contributed $103,186 since 1959.

After exhaustive tests, the upshot was a definite diagnosis of rheumatoid arthritis. Now, at last, the enemy was identified.

The first urgent objective was to reduce Joan's pain so that she could be moved, and keep herself, without unendurable suffering. This was accomplished in part through administration of cortisone (which she continues to take but in reduced dosages). A second goal was, by means of surgery, to "unclench" her hands so that she could regain the use of her fingers. A third aim was to minimize the weight-bearing pressure on her feet by designing special moccasins.

The fourth aim was to begin physical therapy as soon as cortisone had reduced the inflammation of joints and connective tissues to a point where rehabilitative exercise was possible.

"The simple truth is that the March of Dimes put me on my feet," she explains. This feeling of thankfulness set her to thinking of doing something within her capabilities which would also be helpful to others. She had had intimate experience, during her own ordeal, with occupational therapy. Armed with this foundation she began to study occupational therapy which is the teaching of arts and crafts as a means of rehabilitation of patients handicapped physically or mentally.

"I was lucky to get a position as an occupational therapist at Fair Oaks Hospital in my home town," Joan relates. "I soon learned that I understood the attitudes of these patients toward life—their fears and hostilities—and that they understood my attitude, because all of us had experienced what it is to be handicapped. And I am better adjusted and happier than I was because I am helping others."

Perhaps the old foe, the formidable antagonist, has not been altogether vanquished. But by helping others, Joan Keeler has found that at least she now keeps her enemy on the defensive, most of the time.

Franklin Bank President Issues Yearly Report

John C. Biggins, President of Franklin Bank reported today net (after tax) operating earnings of $3.05 per share on the 60,000 shares of Franklin Bank stock. A record total of net operating income of $210,453 showed an increase of $1.94 per share over 1962 earnings of $1.11 per share on the then 60,000 shares. A stock dividend of 15 per cent was paid in July. The stockholders also received $1.38 per share in cash dividends including 10c extra paid on June 30. Mr. Biggins attributed the increase primarily to a growing loan volume of almost $5,500,000 greater than the preceeding year end.

Capital Funds and loan reserves now total $2,125,017.70.

Five New Federal Aid Projects to Be Undertaken

Five new Federal Aid projects to be undertaken by the New Jersey Division of Fish and Game under the Federal Government's Accelerated Public Works program have been approved for the counties of Cumberland, Cape May, and Ocean, according to an announcement by John S. Gottschalk, Director of the Northeast Region o fthe Bureau of Sport Fisheries and Wildlife of the Department of the Interior's Fish and Wildlife Service.

Under the nationwide Accelerated Public Works program for conducting game and fish restoration projects, New Jersey was able to use $62,900 in Federal funds. These funds were appropriated in the Supplemental Appropriation Act—1963, approved on May 17, 1963. The principal purpose of the Accelerated Public Works program is to provide local employment to help the economy of certain areas and to accomplish useful public works of lasting benefit.

Under these projects a storage building will be constructed at the Millville Public Shooting and Fishing Grounds; access ramps and parking facilities will be constructed at the East Point Light, Dennis Creek, and Tuckahoe Public Shooting and Fishing Grounds; and a 100-acre lake will be constructed for recreational use in the vicinity of Prospertown.

Federal funds in the amount of $63,500 will be matched by $63,500 of State funds for these projects.

HEALTH, EDUCATION AND WELFARE

"Although one day is much like every other for most people, the third of each month has special meaning for some 19 million persons," according to Andrew J. Gessner, Manager of the Paterson Social Security Administration district office.

The third day of each month is the day on which those 19 million persons expect to receive their monthly social security benefit checks. "And on the third of every month," Gessner adds, "the phones at the social security offices across the nation get busier and busier as calls come in about delayed checks." People call us immediately, if not sooner, whenever their checks don't appear on schedule. But the delay, more often than not is the result of forgetfulness or carelessness on the part of the disappointed beneficiary.

"Our nation is continually on the move, with many thousands of addresses being changed each day," Gessner went on. Many social security beneficiaries remember to tell their kith and kin, their magazine publishers, and their creditors about the new address, but forget to notify the post office, and the social security office. Such forgetfulness can result in delay, with the next social security check going back to the Treasury Department as undeliverable.

"With the millions of checks issued each month, work in getting a month's supply ready for mailing gets started two or three weeks before the mailing date. Advance notice of a change of address is desirable, but even a sudden change of address needn't mean a delay in getting that monthly social security check, if the post office serving the old address is given a prompt report of the new address," Gessner said.

Of every three of the nation's youths, one drops out of school before graduating from high school. That results in a tragic and significant contribution to the unemployment total—jobs nowadays usually require a high school education at the minimum.

ECONOMIC HIGHLIGHTS

The assassination of President Kennedy led, inevitably, to a drastic tightening of the security precautions provided for the Chief Executive. It is reported, for instance, that when President Johnson recently made a brief visit to New York City, to attend the funeral of the late Senator Lehman, the security measures taken exceeded anything hitherto known.

There is certainly good reason for concern. Of the 36 Presidents of the United States, four have died at the hands of assassins. Additionally, an attempt was made to kill President-elect Franklin Roosevelt, but Mayor Cermak of Chicago, riding beside him, was the victim. Would-be assassins tried the next-to-impossible act of reaching President Truman in his upstairs living quarters at Blair House. A guard was killed.

No one can understand the profound worry of the Secret Service and of the local authorities in places where Presidents visit. Yet it could be that security would become so complete that the ability of the President to properly perform his duties would be impaired.

That is the theme of former President Eisenhower, writing in a late issue of The Saturday Evening Post. He fears there is some danger that, in the cause of security, the White House could be made a "virtual prison." For, he believes, "it is the very combination of powers vested in the Presidency which makes it highly desirable that the President be free to travel widely, to keep personally in touch with the people of the country, and to see with his own eyes what is going on in the world." General Eisenhower was a much-traveled President, and he feels the travels of future Presidents may be much more extensive. So, he says, "We should give greater attention to reducing the risks without limiting the President's necessary freedom of movement." This, obviously, is no small problem, but General Eisenhower is sure that study will result in the needed methods of achieving the goal.

In his brief article he also deals with another problem—that is the order of succession to the Presidency over the Vice President. Formerly, the Secretary of State was next, followed by the other cabinet members in order of seniority. In 1947 the law was changed, with the Speaker of the House and the President Pro Tempore of the Senate taking precedence over the cabinet. The theory was that elected, rather than appointed, officials should come first. But General Eisenhower believes that any successor to the Presidency should be, generally, a similar political kind-of-guy. This, in all likelihood, would be true of cabinet officers.

Finally, one more line from the former President's article certainly deserves the widest currency: "We must and we shall rally behind our new President, Lyndon B. Johnson, who now has undertaken the most demanding and important office in our land."

INTERNATIONAL PRINTING WEEK

There is a very great deal that is not known, or is largely made up of rumors based upon shadowy reports, about the life and work of Johann Gutenberg. But it is generally held that he, more than any other man, invented the art of printing. His great innovation was to introduce movable type and, primitive as were the methods of his time, which was the middle of the 15th century, this was the foundation that was essential to making the printed word the almost unbelievable force that it has become.

Now, during the January 12 through 18 period, we will once again observe International Printing Week. And it would be difficult indeed to think of an observance that is more deserving of world honor. It is print—in books, newspapers, magazines, pamphlets and leaflets of limitless variety—that brings to do the wise words of the past and present, that brings entertainment and knowledge, that tells of the thousand and one things we want and need to know. Its power is universal. It is the very heart of civilization.

And it can bring evil—there is no doubt of that. The fanatic and the fool and the brute have access to the printed word too, and often make the most of it. In itself, in what it may say, it is neither good nor bad. It can be either. The human mind and heart must make the choice between the two, and the decisions that may follow.

In any event, the world salutes printing as an art, a craft, a power that has no superior—that is as unique as it is irreplaceable. May more wise and kindly and creative words find their way into print as time wears on—and fewer, far fewer, of the other kind.

First National Earnings, Assets, Deposits Increase

First National Bank of Passaic County showed net operating earnings of $1,328,000 in 1963 compared with $1,053,300 in 1962. Other net income in 1963 amounted to $216,000 or 99 cents per share, a combined net income of $8.84 per share.

Deposits at the 1963 year end were $262,281,000 compared with $251,970,000 one year before, a rise of $11,261,000. The principal increase was in savings and time deposits which rose $9,231,000 from $123,767,000 to $133,019,000.

Total assets climbed $13,457,000 from $277,529,000 at the end of 1962 to $290,986,000 at the close of 1963.

The principal increases in the assets were in state and municipal bonds which rose $4,771,000 to $36,151,000 and in real estate mortgages which increased $6,512,000 to a total outstanding of $76,576,000. Cash and due from banks, U. S. Government Bonds and Bonds of Federal Agencies rose $1,752,000 from $92,711,000 to $94,196000.

Capital Funds of First National Bank rose $345,000 to a new high of $18,360,000. This consists of 220,000 shares of $25 par value each for a total of $5,500,000, plus $7,000,000 and undivided profits of $6,060,000.

The book value of each share increased from $80.07 at the close of 1962 to $84.36 at the end of 1963, a rise of $4.29.

...Editorial...

What's the Answer?

There is increasing debate over the amount and kind of taxes that the REA cooperatives should pay. More and more observers are contending that their tax bills should be equivalent to those of investor-owned utilities. Co-op spokesmen, for the most part at least, regard this idea with horror.

An interesting sidelight on the matter comes from South Carolina. There the major investor-owned utilities have formally offered to buy any or all of the state's electric co-ops at their net book value. Then a number of significant things would happen. Among them: Full taxes—local, state and federal—would be paid. Co-op loans, obtained at the below-cost figure of 2 per cent from the federal government, would be repaid. Electric rates to most of the customers affected would be reduced, and none would pay higher rates. The accumulated capital credits of the customers would be paid in cash. All co-op employees would be retained, and they would receive increased benefits, including medical and life insurance, stock purchase program, and retirement.

One wonders what co-op spokesmen, and those who favor the present system of direct and indirect tax subsidization of the co-ops, will say to this. In any event, it should add force to the growing and totally just and reasonable demand that the co-ops be forced to pay their own way in every particular—taxes and borrowings included.

Senator Grossi Heads Hearing

individuals and "penalizing large families."

At the outset of the hearing, Sen. Grossi explained that since 1959, the year residence requirements were removed for ADC assistance, New Jersey has shown a 214 per cent increase in the number of families receiving this aid, in contrast to the national increase of 47 per cent. He said it was the committee's opinion that lifting of these requirements together with New Jersey's high rate of payment (this state ranks third in the nation) has made New Jersey "an easy state" and induced many to come here with the sole purpose of getting on relief rolls.

He defended the committee's proposal to permit county welfare directors to remove children from homes with immoral surroundings, saying that these officials close to the picture are better equipped to make this decision than the state child welfare agency operating out of Trenton. He said it was not the intention of the committee to violate the concept of "due process" but rather to make the county welfare director the moving party in any court action to remove the child from an unsatisfactory home.

The $100 maximum, Grossi said, would not work the hardship its opponents claim, since this figure would be inclusive of rent, medical care and clothing.

That rent is a big item in welfare costs was indicated by Sidney Adlman, Paterson's director of welfare who reported that 50 per cent of this city's welfare budget goes for rents. The city pays $160,000 a year for rent for relief clients, Adlman stated, for quarters "worth about $30,000."

The committee's proposal to require "fair rental" from landlords, Adlman said would not help this situation since these landlords would refuse to accept relief clients at lower rentals. Only an overall program of rent control," he said, would solve this problem. He said the city is paying rents as high as $180 and $140 a month for quarters that under rent control rented for $20 and $25 a month.

He recalled that the Paterson Property Owners Association had pledged "there would be no rent increases if rent control were lifted."

He shared the committee's concern over increased illegitimacy and recommended "enforcement of existing marriage laws" to halt it. However, he held little hope for this being done because of the "collision between social and legal philosophies" that would surround such effort.

Adlman recommended state legislation to permit municipalities to establish rent control, and to require illiterate welfare clients to attend reading and writing classes as a step toward trimming relief rolls.

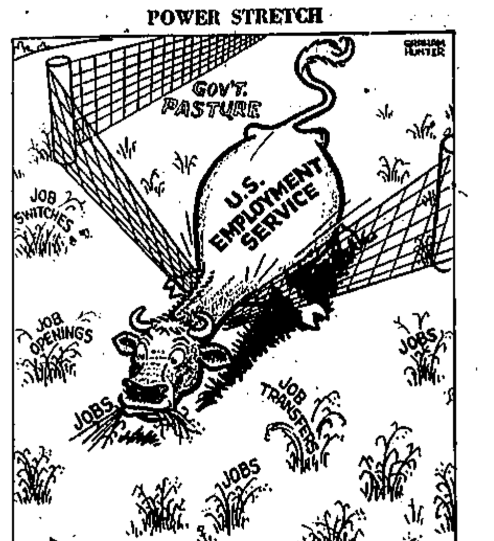
Passaic County Welfare Director Joseph Greene, with a background of 38 years in welfare work, favored the imposition of residence requirements, which he felt would help to reduce the number of applicants. This, he continued, would ease the burden on caseworkers and give them "a chance to work at rehabilitating where they now are kept busy investigating new cases."

Greene saw this step also as having a psychological effect, discouraging families from coming here to seek work that might not materialize.

Greene proposed utilized private homes, including "good wholesome ADC homes" for temporary foster care of children removed from unwholesome surroundings while their mothers are undergoing rehabilitation.

He also proposed legislation that would permit welfare departments to hire high school graduates as investigators to track down and investigate delinquent and deserting fathers, and free the degree case-workers in the probation offices for rehabilitation activities.

POWER STRETCH



Uses Should Be Fenced-In

The man who said that the grass always seems greener in the other person's yard must have had federal agencies in mind because they just cannot seem to resist the lure of wider pastures.

The recent activities of the United States Employment Service is a case in point. Its primary function is to find jobs for the unemployed. In these days that should be a full-time occupation. But USES apparently found it much too confining, so it placed added emphasis on a secondary role—the transferring of workers from job to job by offering new posts to employed persons.

Besides being unfair to the unemployed whose interests should get the undivided attention of USES, the off-shoot service has placed it in direct competition with private employment agencies. This, naturally, has raised some pointed questions as to the propriety of using federal funds to take business away from private firms.

Some of the queries were posed by Robert Half, president of the Association of Personnel Agencies of New York.

"What was the cost to the private personnel agency in lost fees for each of the employed persons whom the USES helped to switch jobs?" he asked. "What was the cost to the taxpaying original employer, whose tax dollars were used by the USES to 'pirate' an employee away?"

We believe that the Congress should halt the foraging by USES before it strays deeper into the private grazing ground.

OUTDOOR TIPS

STEADY HAND FOR HANDGUNS

Could be your handgun holds nice and steady in your hand with just the barest amount of pressure to keep it there. That's the way the book says it should act. But sometimes the doggone grip slips and slides all over the place . . . enough anyway to drop your score into the amateur division. Try this tip: Use the same resinous compound bowlers and pool players use on their hands. A small amount rubbed in five or so minutes before shooting gives just the right feel and your gun hugs your hand.

POOR MAN'S PONCHO

Try this for a slick way to stay dry. We call it a poor man's poncho. Cut a section out of an old inner tube slightly longer than your shoulders. Slit it down the middle. You now have a flat rectangular piece. Now, cut a slit in the middle of this, long enough for your head to go through. Stow it away in your pack. Next time you're caught in the rain, slip off your coat, slip on the slicker and put your coat back on. Since your shoulders take the brunt of getting wet, the poor man's poncho protects you. Can be used for a dry ground cloth to sit on too.

WORM TURNS

Can't get a worm out of your worm box? Well, keep the box upside down and turn it over when you need one. The little rascals will all be where you want 'em.

KEEP BAIT PINNED DOWN

Here's the way to keep bait in a net when you're going after crawfish. Fasten the bait on the new with a safety pin. Faster and easier than tying it. A lot faster and easier than trying to untie a greasy knot-filled bundle.

CANE POLES ONLY

Cane pole fishermen use this trick with great success. It keeps their line from fouling and is much faster than the long job of rolling the line around pole. Tip: Tape two clothes pins to the underside of the pole. Open ends point away from each other. It makes a deep receptacle to hold the line on. A few turns winds 'er up.

CLAY STORAGE

For a handy place to keep small lures, flies, etc., that you put in or take out of your tackle box often, try a lump of kids' modeling clay. It stands temperature changes well, will stick in a tackle box and you can press hooks in to hold them tight.

RUBBER BAND VISE

A rubber band over the handles of your pocket pliers makes a useful field vise.

EYE SAVER, FISH GETTER

The little silicone-treated patches so useful in keeping your glasses clean are just as useful in a tackle box. They'll shine spoons, spinners, all kinds of metal in the winkling and silicone helps keep the shine

Let's Go Fishin'
BY BOB BREWSTER
Outdoor Editor, Mercury Outboards

HOW LATE?

When a bass casts a wary eye toward the thermometer, take heed. He's worried not only about the approach of winter, but where his next meal is coming from.

Fish until it freezes up, advise the authorities at Mercury outboards, if you live in the northern part of the country. Otherwise, just keep on fishing.

Contrary to many beliefs about bass hibernation, which affect men more than fish, good results will be found much later in the season than is generally held. Cooling waters affect bass habits, true; but fish don't stop feeding or shun the offerings of guys hardy enough to brave a slight chill in the air.

If anything, cold waters improve fishing. Where you find one bass, you are likely in the vicinity of a school. And, for some reason, lunkers show up more often than their pint-sized cousins.

Cold weather angling calls for slightly different tactics than are used at other seasons. The fish are definitely sluggish in their movements, respond without their usual zip to passing lures and seldom take surface plugs.

This is the time to work the "middle" depths, instead of the extreme top and bottom areas. Use underwater lures with dull finishes and always include solid blacks among your selection. Don't stick too long with any one style if strikes don't come; keep changing lures frequently until the right combination connects.

Generally, say the Mercury people, this is fishing in slow motion. You often see fish follow a plug for some distance, entranced by its twitching, stop-and-go progress. When one leisurely mouths it, the fight may be something less than spectacular.

How late will they bite? When your outboard can't plow through the ice, it's time to forget bass until spring's thaw.

Start Anti-Smoking Clinic In Paterson

Bluestein said the clinic was formed because of new information as well as accumulated data concerning the link between smoking and cancer.

"The doctors, recognizing their responsibility to their patients, the American Cancer Society recognizing its responsibility to the public, have joined together to offer this facility in this community. Under the auspices of both, we hope to stimulate others to do the same. Rather than to neglect the problem, which is a real one, we are going ahead with what seems to me is an answer to pleas from people who need help."

"Lewis Immerman, M.D. will direct the clinic. This is strictly a volunteer effort on Dr. Immerman's part and on the part of the American Cancer Society," Bluestein concluded.

Anyone who has not registered and who wants to attend may do so but reservations for this clinic group will close with the January 13th session. The next clinic group will begin about eight weeks later. Clinic members will also be required to fill out a medical and a smoking history questionnaire.

Members will be expected to attend special seminars in conjunction with the clinic and experts in the field have already been procured for the seminar.

How to be a big-time saver
(even if you're short on will power)

Iron-willed persistence is the tried and true way to become a successful saver. If that's not one of your strong points, however, try the Payroll Savings Plan.

It works just as well and saves you a lot of bookkeeping besides.

Every payday your employer sets aside a small amount from your check (you say how much) and puts it toward the purchase of a U. S. Savings Bond. Your Bond roll fattens up fast. Just $4.33 a week, for example, adds on three $100 Bonds every year.

There's no will power needed. And since you never see the small amount that's taken out of your check, you hardly miss it.

Of course, you save more than money this way. You also help preserve your freedom to spend it. Your Bond dollars help give Uncle Sam the financial strength he must have to protect our freedoms.

Tell your employer you want to start Payroll Savings this payday and see if you don't feel pretty good about it.

Quick facts about U. S. Savings Bonds
- You get $4 for every $3 at maturity
- You can get your money anytime

Trout for N. J. Streams

are now fish-shaped and measure almost an inch.

At this stage they must be taught to feed, a process that requires time and patience. The starting diet consists of finely ground beef liver mixed with vitamin oil which they receive several times a day.

The nursery building is especially busy at this time. The several processes of feeding fry, stripping additional eggs, caring for eggs and cleaning egg shells and debris from troughs of newly-hatched fry are all going on at once.

When fry are feeding well they are moved into larger outdoor pools. At first they are fed on the same schedule, but gradually feeding frequency is reduced and the amount of food increased. Meanwhile the fish hatched in previous years are being cared for and intensely fed so that they will be ready to stock this spring in Garden State waters open to fishing.

Mary Macfarlan Merrill Outslay Are Married

Miss Mary Jane Macfarlan daughter of Mrs. Reuben C. Macfarlan of 452 Goffle Rd., Hawthorne and the late Mr. Macfarlan, recently married Merrill Nyland Outslay, son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert T. Outslay of 29 Union St., Hawthorne, at the First Reformed Church of Hawthorne.

The Rev. John S. Moore, pastor emeritus, performed the double ring ceremony, assisted by the Rev. Kenneth Vos.

Reuben James Macfarlan gave his sister in marriage. The bride wore an antique white peau de soie gown with basque neckline, long sleeves and a skirt ending in a chapel train. Her veil of imported silk illusion was arranged from an Alencon lace pillbox and she carried white carnations with an orchid and ivy.

Miss Loretta Martin of Glen Rock was maid of honor for her cousin in a red satin sheath with green and white holly headpiece. She carried red carnations with green and white holly.

Bridesmaids, gowned like the honor attendant, were Miss Elizabeth Grove and Miss Elaine Hampfler.

William Agnoli was best man. The groom's brother, Lowell V. Outslay, ushered with Timothy Mee.

The bride's mother wore a blue peau de soie sheath with matching accessories and a white orchid. The groom's mother wore a green silk organza sheath with harmonizing accessories and green orchids.

The bride graduated from Hawthorne High School and attended Wagner College, Staten Island, N. Y. She is a senior at Cornell University, New York Hospital School of Nursing, Ithaca, N. Y., where she is a member of Zeta Tau Alpha Sorority.

Her husband, also a graduate of Hawthorne High School, is a senior at Pace College, New York City, where he is a member of Po Sigma Epsilon Fraternity. He is an auditor with the United States Trust Co., New York City. The couple will reside at 1409 York Ave., New York City.

Dorothy Etchells Sgt. Jas. Robinson Married Recently

Sgt. James Harry Robinson, USA, of Clifton and his bride the former Miss Dorothy Ann Etchells of Hawthorne, will live in Baumholder, Germany, where the groom is stationed.

After a honeymoon in New York City, the newlyweds flew to Germany Jan. 4.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Edward Etchells, 701 Lafayette Ave., Hawthorne. She wore a white delustered satin floorlength gown trimmed with jeweled appliques of Swiss lace and fashioned with chapel train. A satin pillbox held her veil and she carried a cascade of miniature carnations centered with an orchid.

Miss Jo Ann Olsen of Staten Island was honor maid in lime velvet with matching pillbox hat and carried red and white carnations with holly. Dressed similarly as bridesmaid carrying red and white streaked carnations with holly were Miss Sandra Etchells, the bride's cousin, Mrs. William Robinson, the groom's sister-in-law, and Mrs. Susan Victor.

Sgt. Robinson, who lives at 80 Union Ave., Clifton, is the son of Frank Robinson, Levittown, Pa., and the late Mrs. Margaret Fern. His brother, Frank, Jr., of Clifton, was best man. William Robinson, another brother, ushered with the bride's brother, John Etchells and Thomas Zayatz.

Mrs. Robinson is a graduate of Flower - Fifth Avenue Hospital School of Nursing. A registered nurse, she was employed in the pediatric department at Valley Hospital, Ridgewood, before her marriage. Sgt. Robinson is stationed in Baumholder.

Financial columnist Sylvia Porter says: "We now have the first solid dollars-and-cents signal that the current 33-month-old business upturn will continue well into 1964. The signal lies in this one fact: American businessmen already plan a 4 per cent hike in their spending on new plants and equipment in 1964 to a record dollar amount of $10.7 billion."

How to help keep freedom in your future for $4.33 a week

The sum of $4.33 a week will buy you a dozen Savings Bonds in a year. A few years of this and you'll be $1,000 richer.

Nothing wrong with being rich. The more savings strength we have as individuals, the more strength we have as a Nation.

But there are some other rather remarkable wheels you set in motion when you buy U.S. Savings Bonds.

As your Bond dollars grow, your country uses them to protect the things America stands for. And to make sure that you and your family will always enjoy the freedoms which a handful of brave Americans set their names to on July 4, 1776.

Buy Bonds for freedom now. All you need to make this investment is a few dollars a week and a belief in America.

KNOW YOUR GOVERNMENT

TIME FOR A BREATHER

It's time for a breather in the pell mell pace of Federal government spending, says the New Jersey Taxpayers Association.

The Federal budget is near the $100 billion mark; the Federal debt over $3 billion. In the past two years Federal expenditures have been rising at a $3 billion to $7 billion rate.

Fiscal experts suggest that even a temporary halt in the constant upward push of Federal expenditures would be good for the nation's economic health. Speaking at the recent annual conference of The Tax Foundation, a national private research organization, Dr. Raymond J. Saulnier, former chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisors and a professor of economics, declared that "to hold the line on Federal spending is not so much a policy suggestion as a policy imperative."

Pointing out that even without new spending programs there are "built-in" increases in the Federal budget, he cited specific areas for "hold the line" spending reductions. As one example he declared that Federal lending programs would retrench automatically if realistic interest rates were charged. The United States Treasury borrows at current market rates but makes money available to certain public agencies at only 2 per cent. "Civil public works" projects, which have grown fro $1.7 billion in 1955 to the current $7.2 billion, could yield a billion dollars in savings simply by "stretching" going programs over an extra year and adopting a temporary "no new starts" policy. Establishment of a plan of priorities in rapidly expanding federal research and development, would benefit both the programs and the economy, he indicated. Hundreds of specifics in budget reductions also have been offered in a host of other carefully prepared reports of both public and private agencies.

So, says the Taxpayers Association, the budget the President sends to Congress in mid-January could have a lot to do with how happy the average taxpayer's New Year really will be.

WORLD'S FAIR - NEWS -

—The sale of advance admission tickets for the New York 1964-1965 World's Fair was 75 per cent higher during 1963 than had been estimated, it was announced by Robert Moses, Fair President, and Thomas J. Deegan, Jr., chairman of the executive committee.

A year-end ticket sales report, released by the New York World's Fair Corporation, placed the number of advance sales at over 3,800,000 tickets, totaling more than $4,500,000. The original estimate was for a 1963 sale of 2,000,000 tickets. The upsurge in the second half of 1963 was attributed largely to the sale of 100,000 or more tickets in individual blocs to several business firms. The largest single sale was 225,000 tickets to American Telephone & Telegraph Company. The most recent purchase was made by the Equitable Life Assurance Society of the U. S. for 30,000 tickets.

These orders accounted for approximately 20 per cent of the Fair's advance ticket sales during 1963.

The peak sales period came in the week ending December 13, 1963 when 525,000 tickets were purchased.

Mr. Deegan, under whose direction the advanced ticket sales campaign is being conducted, said it was gratifying to see the response by exhibitors and non-exhibitor corporations, transportation groups and individuals.

Many companies are buying the tickets for resale later to their employees, thus passing on substantial savings. "The large purchaser of a bloc of 100,000 tickets, for example, saves $66,000," he said. "Individuals are buying tickets now, not only to take advantage of the discount but to help their own budgets. When they go to the Fair next spring and summer their admission costs will already be taken care of and they will have more money for food and other purposes.

THE WINNER—Voters selected Celeste Yarnall Miss Rheingold for 1964. She is the 25th girl to hold the title. Celeste polled the winner's share of the votes cast in this second largest U.S. election. The winner will appear at the New York World's Fair where Rheingold will recreate "Little Old New York of 1904" and will travel extensively as Rheingold's "Good Will" representative.

Both offices also reported record setting sales of insurance during 1963.

In charge of the real estate sales in the Hawthorne office is Mrs. Isabelle Hopper. The real estate sales manager for the Totowa Borough office is Norman Kailo.

Donald Berkhout is vice-president and chief underwriter. Albert Tracey is manager of the Hawthorne office and is an underwriter as is Soldoveri. Aliens Must Register by January 31st

Dominick F. Rinaldi, District Director of the Immigration and Naturalization Service, advised today that the annual alien address report program is again under way.

According to Mr. Rinaldi, over 155,000 aliens reported their addresses last year in New Jersey. The number this year is expected to be slightly larger. Mr. Rinaldi attributes this anticipated increase to the presence of an increased number of refugees from Cuba in the state.

The Immigration official pointed out that the address reports are required by law and willful failure to comply with these requirements may lead to serious consequences.

Forms with which to make the reports are available at all Post Offices and Immigration and Naturalization Service Offices. It is an easy matter to fill out one of the cards and return it to the same office.

Mr. Rinaldi added that trained personnel will be on hand in all offices of the Immigration and Naturalization Service to answer any questions the reporting aliens may have regarding immigration and naturalization matters. Sufficient trained personnel are not yet available to furnish this assistance in all Post Offices.

Approximately 240 cities in the United States and several foreign countries will conduct competitions, following which they will send their champions to the All American Soap Box Derby to be conducted in Akron, Ohio on August 15.

The North Jersey winner will receive a $500 savings bond, a handsome trophy, and an all-expense trip to the Akron race, in which $30,000 in college scholarships will be at stake.

THE DRIVER'S SEAT

Do you know the sole reason why so many of the old stop signs (and some still being used) were yellow? In the 1920's, when the first attempts at uniform signing were being made, practically everyone wanted stop signs to be red.

The trouble, though, was that the red paints of that time weren't as good and as durable as the yellow paints were. California, however, has always had red stop signs, despite this early-days problem, because a porcelain enamel sign was used in that state. Now there are all sorts of materials from which red stop signs can be made, but old ideas—and yellow stop signs—die hard.

Another oddity in sign history was the original sign specifications, arrived on, again back in the 20s. It was agreed at that time that all signs were to be no more than two feet square, or more than two feet in any direction. The reason was that a leader Midwest signwriter couldn't handle anything larger than this, or his presses.

Stop signs in this country have been octagonal all along, although there was a time when a horizontal semaphore shape was seriously considered and was suggested by one group.

In the early days of American highway signs, highway engineers spent quite a bit of time discussing whether to show on signs which way the road curved. Their theory was that a driver might keep going full speed if he knew it was a right-hand curve, for example; if he didn't know which way it went, he'd slow down.

It was in 1929 that the first suggestion was made to use the European system of symbols, instead of words. Color codes for signs and reflectivity in signs date from the same period.

Two of the most recent signs to be adopted were the "Yield" sign, in use since the late '40s, and the green directional signs, standardized in 1958.

WASHINGTON NEWS

... BUT NO COFFEE

President Johnson evidently intends to keep the press guessing.

His second White House press conference, like the first, was informal and held in his oval office, on a moment's notice. Thirty-five reporters, who had gathered at the office of Press Secretary Pierre Salinger in anticipation of the usual statutional news briefing, were led unexpectedly into the Presidential presence.

Unlike the first such occasion, the second meeting with the press was not regaled with coffee-per-haps because there was a larger group present.

Facing back and forth with his hands in his pockets, the President answered questions in a relaxed manner. Asked whether all his press conferences would be as informal, he replied:

"We will do what comes naturally. Maybe it will be a meeting of this kind today; maybe a televised meeting tomorrow, with select maybe a coffee session the next day. We don't want to be too rigid. We always want to be flexible." And the President added:

We can only applaud the Johnson attitude of frankness, personableness and cordiality. And, certainly, it is for the President to say how he will conduct his meetings with the press. But we shall reserve decision for the time that we get a first democratic the half-hitch type press conferences really are. In view of the numbers of reporters that have been trooping into the State Department auditorium of late, the oval Presidential office seems pretty cozy and the group present rather crowded.

27th State Chamber Dinner to Be Held in Washington, Feb. 6

NEWARK—Hundreds of leaders of New Jersey business, industry and agriculture, along with top representatives of state and federal government, will board a special train Thursday, February 6, and journey together to Washington, D. C., to pay honor to New Jersey's Congressmen and Senators.

The occasion is the 27th Annual Congressional Dinner of the New Jersey State Chamber of Commerce to be held, as in the past several years, in the Hotel Statler Hilton.

Frederick H. Groet, president of the State Chamber, when announcing the date of the widely heralded mid-winter event, pointed out that its purpose remains identical to that of the first such dinner the Chamber held in February 1937—that is "to foster personal friendships and understanding relationships between the citizens of New Jersey and those chosen to represent us in the Congress of the United States."

A total of 51 businessmen expected to Washington to attend that first dinner, he said. This year, between 800 and 900 persons are expected to attend.

Upon arrival in Washington, the Chamber members and their guests—including Governor Richard J. Hughes, members of the State Legislature, state department heads and other government officials as well as many representatives of New Jersey's news media—will join with other prominent New Jerseyans who serve in various branches of the Federal Government, at a Chamber reception in honor of New Jersey's Congressional Delegation. The dinner will follow in the hotel's Presidential Ballroom.

Record Demands On Public Service In 1963 Depict Growth of the Economy

Continued growth of the economy of the area of New Jersey served by Public Service Electric and Gas Company was again evidenced by the new record demands made upon the Company's services during 1963.

Sales of electricity reached 15 billion kilowatt hours, 7 per cent greater than in 1962. The new peak hourly demand for electricity of 3,276,000 kilowatts, established on June 28, was 6 per cent higher than the 1962 record. On July 19, an output of 50,253,109 kilowatt hours of electricity set a new one-day record, also 6 per cent higher than the record day's output in 1962.

Gas sales rose to 1 billion, 109 million therms, an increase of almost 8 per cent as compared to gas sales in the prior year. More than 26,000 additional gas building heating installations were connected to our mains during 1963, bringing to over 387,000 the total number of gas heating customers.

The Company is presently studying forecasts of the area's future needs for gas and electric service and, based on such forecasts, plans are made for the construction of electric and gas facilities and the supplies of natural gas necessary to meet these expected demands.

In the past eight years, Public Service Electric and Gas Company has spent more than $1 billion for addit

Aliens Must Register by January 31st

Dominick F. Rinaldi, District Director of the Immigration and Naturalization Service, advised today that the annual alien address report program is again under way.

According to Mr. Rinaldi, over 159,519 aliens reported their addresses last year in New Jersey. The number this year is expected to be slightly larger. Mr. Rinaldi attributes this anticipated increase to the presence of an increased number of refugees from Cuba in the state.

The Immigration official pointed out that the address reports are required by law and willful failure to comply with these requirements may lead to serious consequences.

Forms with which to make the reports are available at all Post Offices and Immigration and Naturalization Service Offices. It is an easy matter to fill out one of the cards and return it to the same office.

Mr. Rinaldi added that trained personnel will be on hand in all offices of the Immigration and Naturalization Service to answer any questions the reporting aliens may have regarding immigration and naturalization matters. Sufficient trained personnel are not available to furnish this assistance in all Post Offices.

Chevrolet Sponsors Soap Box Clinic January 11th

Tips on how to build a Soap Box Derby racer will be given to North Jersey boys at a series of clinics now being planned by area Chevrolet dealers, and Clifton and Englewood Jaycees, co-sponsors of the 1964 event.

The 1964 North Jersey Soap Box Derby, to be held in June at Garden State Plaza, Paramus, will be open to boys between the ages of 11 and 15.

Design and construction clinics, the first to start at 10 a.m., January 11. A slide film will be shown, rule books and other literature will be made available, and refreshments will be served. Boys have been asked to bring their designs, and even their partially completed cars to the clinics.

A record field of entries is expected for the 1964 North Jersey Soap Box Derby. Sponsoring Chevrolet dealer is Hawthorne Auto Sales Chevrolet of Hawthorne.

The Garden State Plaza race will be the first phase of an around-the-world Soap Box Derby program. Approximately 240 cities in the United States and several foreign countries will conduct competitions, following which they will send their champions to the All American Soap Box Derby to be conducted in Akron, Ohio on August 15.

The North Jersey winner will receive a $500 savings bond, a handsome trophy, and an all-expense trip to the Akron race, in which $30,000 in college scholarships will be at stake.

THE DRIVER'S SEAT

Do you know the old reason why so many of the old stop signs (and some still being used) were yellow? In the 1920's, when the first attempts at uniform signing were being made, practically everyone wanted stop signs to be red.

The trouble, though, was that the red paints of that time weren't as good and as durable as the yellow paints were. California, however, has always had red stop signs, despite this early-days problem, because a porcelain enamel sign was used in that state. Now there are all sorts of materials from which red stop signs can be made, but old ideas—and yellow stop signs—die hard.

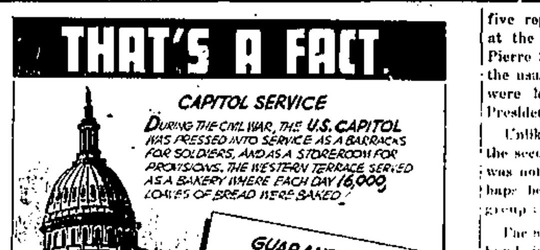
Another oddity in sign history was the original size specification agreed on, again back in the '20s. It was agreed at that time that all signs were to be no more than two feet square, or more than two feet in any direction. The reason was that a leading Midwest sign-maker couldn't handle anything larger than this on his presses.

Stop signs in this country have been octagonal all along, although there was a time when a horizontal semaphore shape was seriously considered and was suggested by one group.

In the early days of American highway signs, highway engineers spent quite a bit of time discussing whether to show on signs which way the road curved. Their theory was that a driver might keep going full speed if he knew it was a right-hand curve, for example; if he didn't know which way it went, he'd slow down.

It was in 1929 that the first suggestion was made to use the European system of symbols, instead of words. Color codes for signs and reflectivity in signs date from the same period.

Two of the most recent signs to be adopted are the "Yield" sign, in use since the late '40s, and the green directional signs, standardized in 1958.



WASHINGTON NEWS

... BUT NO COFFEE

President Johnson evidently intends to keep the press guessing.

His second White House press conference, like the first, was informal and held in his oval office on a moment's notice. Thirty-five reporters, who had gathered at the office of Press Secretary Pierre Salinger in anticipation of the usual matutinal news briefing, were led unexpectedly into the Presidential presence.

Unlike the first such occasion, the second meeting with the press was not regaled with coffee—perhaps because there was a larger group present.

Pacing back and forth with his hands in his pockets, the President answered questions in a relaxed manner. Asked whether all his press conferences would be as informal, he replied:

"We will do what comes naturally. Maybe it will be a meeting of this kind today; maybe a televised meeting tomorrow, with maybe a coffee session the next day. We don't want to be too rigid. We always want to be flexible." And the President added:

We can only applaud the Johnson attitude of frankness, personableness and cordiality. And, certainly, it is for the President to say how he will conduct his meetings with the press. But we shall reserve decision for the time on just how democratic the kaffee-klatsch type press conferences really are. In view of the numbers of reporters that have been trooping into the State Department auditorium of late, the oval Presidential office seems pretty easy and the group present rather select.

FIRE CHIEF BAY PROPOSES PURCHASE OF RESCUE TRUCK

Fire Chief Louis J. Bay has proposed to the Borough Commissioners that a rescue truck be purchased and added to the borough's emergency equipment.

The recommendation was in the chief's annual report to the governing body.

Mayor Louis Bay II said the commissioners will "give serious consideration to Chief Bay's suggestion. The mayor added that study is also being given to enlarging the police garage to accommodate the rescue truck. The garage is being expanded to house the new ambulance of the Mawhinney Volunteer Ambulance Corps and extra space for the rescue unit could be included in the plans.

Chief Bay who has been gathering information from rescue truck manufacturers for a year, said a fully equipped vehicle could be put in service for not more than $10,000.

The truck would be equipped to cope with nearly any emergency. Equipment would include power tools, a generator, lighting, prying tools, wrenches ropes and life jackets. A motor boat, now assigned to the Police Department housed in the borough garage, could be carried on or attached to the truck, said Chief Bay.

The chief said the truck would be staffed by about 15 men with special qualifications from

27th State Chamber Congressional Dinner to Be Held in Washington, Feb. 6

NEWARK—Hundreds of leaders of New Jersey business, industry and agriculture, along with top representatives of state and local government, will board a special train Thursday, February 6, and journey together to Washington, D. C., to pay honor to New Jersey's Congressmen and Senators.

The occasion is the 27th Annual Congressional Dinner of the New Jersey State Chamber of Commerce to be held, as in the past several years, in the Hotel Statler Hilton.

Frederick H. Groel, president of the State Chamber, when announcing the date of the widely-heralded mid-winter event, pointed out that its purpose remains identical to that of the first such dinner the Chamber held in February 1937—that is "to foster personalized and understanding relationships between the citizens of New Jersey and those chosen to represent us in the Congress of the United States."

A total of 51 businessmen came to Washington to attend that first dinner, he said. This year, between 800 and 900 persons are expected to attend.

Upon arrival in Washington, the Chamber members and their guests—including Governor Richard J. Hughes, members of the State Legislature, state department heads and other government officials as well as many representatives of New Jersey's news media—will join with other prominent New Jerseyans who serve in various branches of the Federal Government, at a Chamber reception in honor of New Jersey's Congressional Delegation. The dinner will follow in the hotel's Presidential Ballroom.

Record Demands On Public Service In 1963 Depict Growth of the Economy

Continued growth of the economy of the area of New Jersey served by Public Service Electric and Gas Company was again evidenced by the new record demands made upon the Company's services during 1963.

Sales of electricity reached 15 billion kilowatt hours, 7 per cent greater than in 1962. The new peak hourly demand for electricity of 3,370,000 kilowatts, established on June 28, was 6 per cent higher than the 1962 record. On July 19, an output of 69,753,400 kilowatt hours of electricity set a new one-day record, also 6 per cent higher than the record day's output in 1962.

Gas sales rose to 1 billion, 100 million therms, an increase of almost 8 per cent as compared to gas sales in the prior year. More than 26,000 additional gas building heating installations were connected to our mains during 1963, bringing to over 387,000 the total number of gas heating customers.

The Company is constantly making forecasts of the area's future needs for gas and electric service and, based on such forecasts, plans are made for the construction of electric and gas facilities and the supplies of natural gas necessary to meet these expected demands.

In the past eight years, Public Service Electric and Gas Company has spent more than $1 billion for additions and improvements to its electric and gas facilities, and further expenditures of about $125,000,000 are planned for 1964.

Plans for expansion and improvement of electric plant and equipment in 1964 include the installation of 10,250 poles, 1,900 miles of overhead and underground wire, 5,000 additional distribution transformers, 8,000 street lights, and 20,000 meters. To provide greater capacity because of increased customer demands, 72,000 meters on customers' premises will be replaced with

Ford Motor Plant Increase 1963 Production; 22,281

MAHWAH, N. J.—Ford Motor Company's assembly plant here increased 1963 production by nearly 22,281 units over 1962, producing 248,693 cars and trucks compared with 226,312 units in 1962, Owen T. Blunt, plant manager, said today.

Looking forward to 1964, Mr. Blunt said, "Last year was an outstanding year for us, not only in terms of production volume which exceeded 1962, but also in terms of the finer quality product which our production team—at all levels—is currently delivering. A modern automobile is an amazingly complicated and customized product to build perfectly and we constantly strive for perfection. We have made definite progress in this direction in 1963, and we look forward to 1964 as a year of even better quality in our exceptionally fine current product line. The present high level of customer demand for our cars encourages us to expect another year of full production and steady employment in 1964."

During 1963, Ford paid more than $32,800,000 in wages and salaries to employes, most of whom live in northern New Jersey and the New York metropolitan area. Employment averaged 4,625 during 1963.

Also included in the total payroll was $1,015,000 for cost of living bonuses—an increase of $255,000 over 1962 and $1,168,000 for paid vacations and holidays, an increase of $25,000 over 1962. Overtime pay during 1963 was $2,463,000, compared with $2,511,000 in 1962. Supplemental Unemployment Benefit payments of $158,000, an increase of $26,000 over 1962, were received by hourly employes in addition to wages.

KNOW YOUR GOVERNMENT

HOW MUCH IS TOO MUCH?

[illegible] Health, Education and Welfare Abraham Ribicoff, [illegible] Senator from Connecticut, [illegible] Advisory Council on Public Welfare, [illegible] Senator Harris and Chairman of the National Taxpayers Conference, has recently raised the issue before the Ways and Means Committee of the House of Representatives considering the compulsory health insurance proposal. He warned that "the social security tax is becoming an increasingly burdensome tax for a growing number of persons. For the low income wage earner, such increases in the social security tax might wipe out or more than wipe out any benefit he would derive from the pending tax reduction bill."

The question of how much is too much is not a new one. Recently steps up in social security tax impositions previously have brought forth the observation from the New Jersey Taxpayers Association that "if we are going to socialize services, we must at the same time be ready to socialize our pay checks." The medicare legislation now under consideration, it contends, "would move the Federal Government further into a field in which American business has demonstrated its ability to meet individual needs" and "would thus constitute a further step toward socialization, unnecessarily larger government and the erosion of private opportunity, while increasing already mounting costs of the social security system."

VALIANT TOWN

When their Community center needed rebuilding the residents of Custar, Ohio (Pop. 250) did the job themselves, shaming federal aid. —From the Congressional Record

Custar's Fine Stand

The Congressional Record is not always the best place to look for a guest editorial but in this case it produced a real smasher as the following statement read into the Record by Rep. Delbert Latta (R. Ohio) ... to-wit:

"Recently I had the privilege of participating in the dedication of a community building in Custar, Ohio. The dedication of a community building is not, in itself, such an event I would normally call to the attention of the House. I do so now, however, because the citizens of this community of approximately 250, knew what they wanted in such a building and then went after it in an almost forgotten, old-fashioned, American way.

"Instead of coming to Washington with hat-in-hand for federal funds, they looked within their own fine community for funds, material and labor. Strange as it may seem, they found everything they desired. Yes, and without the benefit of new taxes or deficit financing.

"They discovered that an old building could be remodeled to suit their needs. Everybody in the community went to work about remodeling it. The mayor, councilmen, clerk, members of the board of public affairs, volunteer firemen, township trustees, the local American Legion Post, the Legion Auxiliary, local businessmen, clery and the wives of many of the men pitched in and converted this old schoolhouse into a modern, attractive and useful community building.

"Salt water corrosion is the [illegible] enemy of equipment [illegible] parts, according to Robert D. Hall, Salt Water Fishing Editor [illegible] Sports Afield. Much corrosion [illegible] approaches, although there is a way can be prevented or eliminated. [illegible] In really severe situations, it is [illegible] often necessary to use a couple [illegible] of drops of oil on a piece of [illegible] cheese cloth or very fine emery [illegible] paper to remove the corrosion. It is not too [illegible] to use [illegible] abrasive material on the [illegible] ferrules. If they still fit tightly [illegible] after cleaning with a mild [illegible] detergent compound, rub the male [illegible] section of the ferrule with talc [illegible] on wax.

Guides and rod tips should be closely inspected. If line-cutting grooves are discovered, the guides and tips should be replaced. A groove created by the friction of the line passing over the metal tips is often the cause of a frayed line and the loss of a prize catch. Roller guides and tips will eliminate this trouble on trolling or bout rods, but they are not practical on conventional surf or spinning rod.

With the development of modern nylon, Dacron and monofilament, line care has been minimized. Still, it is a good idea to wash all salt deposits from lines, regardless of what material they may be. A coating of salt on a monofilament line will cause it to become stiff and difficult to cast. The careful fisherman will remove the lines from all his reels and store them on a line dryer. A wooden line drier is difficult to find in any tackle store today. The popularity of such fine holders declined when the demand for linen lines ceased. However, this should not be a discouragement as a line drier can easily be made with bottoms of two peach baskets or the sides, a few strips of wood, a dowel for an axle, and a spool and nail for a handle. Such a drier is very convenient when inspecting a line for flaws or worn spots, and it is handy when washing a line.

THE DRIVER'S SEAT

Never underestimate the power of a woman who goes through a stop sign. This motto on a magazine's slogan came true in Minneapolis recently and the dust hasn't settled yet.

What happened? A Minneapolis housewife skipped stopping at a school stop sign and got a ticket. She managed to prove, to a judge's satisfaction, that she wasn't legally to blame because the stop sign was an illegal one. It was rectangular instead of octagonal, and was yellow instead of red. Since Minnesota state law (as do many other state laws) requires the use of red, octagonal stop signs, the lady was as innocent as could be.

Now Minneapolis is in quite a remarkable, replacing about 800 of

Allens Will Find Forms Available At the Post Office

Aliens living in New Jersey and throughout the United States are required by law to file a notice of their address once each year during the month of January. Forms to make their yearly report are available at every Post Office in the State as well as all County Naturalization Offices and the Immigration and Naturalization District Office in Newark.

Dominick F. Rinaldi, New Jersey District Director of the Immigration and Naturalization Service stated that a rather unusual result of the program each year is a tremendous rise in the number of applications submitted by persons who want to become citizens. Mr. Rinaldi estimated that the number of applications for naturalization received during January, February and March is almost thirty per cent higher than normal. Non-citizens who are interested in applying for citizenship should inquire at the Immigration Service office in Newark or any County Naturalization office.

Mr. Rinaldi urged all non-citizens who have not filed their address reports to do so promptly as failure to file the notice by the end of the month could result in serious penalties as well as jeopardizing the aliens chances for future citizenship.

ECONOMIC HIGHLIGHTS

It is yet too early to assess with certainty the attitudes the Johnson Administration will take, the philosophies it will stand for, and the policies it will pursue. But there are revealing signs, just as there are many informed speculations.

For instance, the President has provided an eloquent statement of a general policy. He made it at a news conference. His words: "My number one priority, my number one goal, my number one objective, my number one ambition is to try to provide the leadership for my country with vision, tolerance, patience and strength that will convince the rest of the world that we count no territory, we seek no satellites, that we are trying to live in peace and prosperity, and we would like for our fellow man everywhere to do the same thing."

This statement has to do primarily with foreign policy. And it is generally expected that in the furtherance of this policy Mr. John may show great strength and adamant purpose. He means to put some long-needed vigor into the Alliance for Progress — which is the alliance that has much to do with our relations with the Latin American nations. The appointment of Thomas C. Mann as Assistant Secretary of State for inter-American affairs seems to be proof of that. Mr. Mann is known as a top authority on these affairs and, going by his past record of government service, is used to getting needed things done.

In domestic policy, the President has said that he supports the programs of the late President Kennedy. But it is also true that he has a mind and will of his own and, politically speaking, must create his own image. On government spending he has said, "We are going to cut out every dime of waste we can in order to have as much to spend on the unfilled needs of this nation . . . ." He added that there will be "... programs that will deal with new situations . . . ," though he has not so far specified them. And he has said that he is uncertain of the size of the coming budget. Most outside authorities are guessing at a figure in the neighborhood of $102 billion.

And the budget problem is, beyond doubt, going to be one of the toughest nuts for Mr. Johnson to crack in his relations with the Congress which he knows so well and where, for some years, he was the most powerful single figure. It is a problem that is inextricably intertwined with the tax reduction bill which, along with civil rights, heads Mr. Johnson's domestic "must" legislation, just as it did Mr. Kennedy's. Some of the most influential Senators, Senator Byrd for one, want assurance of economy in spending, and a limitation on deficits, before they will be willing to go along with tax cuts. There is speculation now that passage of the bill—which is designed to be retroactive to January 1—may be delayed until summer, though the Administration hopes for a February passage.

No one should underestimate Mr. Johnson's talents as a strategist—his experience in government, as Congressman, Senator (and Senate majority leader) and as a very active and well-informed Vice President, has been extraordinarily wide. And those who know him best seem unanimous in saying that he will bring unusual strength of purpose and decision to his office.

WHAT YOUR DIMES CAN BUY

What is more pitiful than a child born with some crippling defect? What is more worthwhile than a cause whose purpose is to prevent and to find cures for the [illegible] kinds of environmental and hereditary defects of the central nervous system and skeletal tissue which are known [illegible]

These questions, and their obvious answers, are most pertinent now. For, during January, The National Foundation—March of Dimes is conducting its annual drive for funds. ...Editorial...

They Do Not Answer

The cost of providing a job on the Montana Power Company system is $239,012 at the present time and is increasing from year to year. And taxes are paid on this investment. Then, the dividends this investment earns are taxed twice, once when the company earns them and again when the investor receives his share. It is ironic that the whole taxpaying investor-owned electric industry structure should be threatened by socialization in the United States. If the socialists succeed in taking over the power industry and then go on to take over other industries and businesses, who will pay the taxes those "swallowed-up" firms used to pay? The advocates of tax-exempt government-owned power do not answer.

And it is a very important question indeed, at this time. The demand for tax cuts is all but universal. President Johnson has made a strong stand for maximum economy in the conduct of our governmental affairs, and the budget problem, with all the built-in inflation dangers that are a part of it, becomes ever more critical.

At best, the government must spend on a colossal scale. Why, in all reason, should it spend a solitary nickel for any purpose that can be achieved by taxpaying private enterprise, in the field of electric power or any other?

meters having greater capacity.

Substantial additions are continually needed to increase generator capacity and also bulk power facilities—those which move the large "blocks" of power needed by the Company's industrial, commercial and residential customers. In Jersey City, construction is continuing on the new $74 ... Hudson generating station ... there will be installed a 400,000-kilowatt turbine-generator—the system's largest ... scheduled for operation late in 1964. In December, 1963, a 31,000 kilowatt gas-turbine generator unit was placed in service at the Essex generating station. This type of unit is designed principally for use in times of peak demand. Another gas-turbine unit, this one having a capacity of 121,200 kilowatts, will be installed at Sewaren generating station for service in the latter part of 1966. The gas-turbine units can be operated by remote control and from a cold start can be placed under full load in a very few minutes to meet peak demands or emergency conditions.

"Operation Snowshovel," a civic responsibility undertaken by the Boy Scouts of the borough, was put into effect Monday night by Nicholas Tancordo, assistant district commissioner. All Scouts of the four troops will clear snow from fire hydrants. Each Scout has been assigned a hydrant nearest his home.

Tancordo said there are more hyrants than boys, and reminded residents of the seriousness if a fire occurred where a hydrant is buried in snow. He asked that they aid the Scouts in the project. This is the fifth year Tancordo has led the project.

Fire Chief Bay Proposes

the Volunteer Fire Department. A special alarm could be sounded from police headquarters to call the rescue crew to service.

Specially qualified rescue crew members would include electrician, a builder, a rigger, a skin diver and persons expert in first aid, heavy equipment operation, automobile mechanics, auto body work.

Bay said the rescue unit could free police from emergency work which could be handled by the trained and well-equipped rescue crew.

The chief pointed out that rescue truck equipment could have been put to good use at the recent tragic accident on Rt. 208 which took four lives.

In other matters, the chief reported that the fire department answered 172 alarms during 1963. They included 80 brush or rubbish fires, 18 vehicle fires, 11 house fires, 4 commercial or industrial fires and 17 false alarms, including those sounded by automatic devices.

Dwelling fires resulted in an estimated $18,000 damage and commercial and industrial buildings lost another $20,000 to fires, both figures including contents.

A suggestion that six fire alarm boxes be installed in newly developed areas is being implemented by the governing body.

The chief also reported that the Fire Prevention Bureau, organized a year ago, has inspected every commercial and industrial building in the borough and corrected many possible fire causes.

The department assisted police at two accident scenes and in a search for a lost child and also answered 20 calls involving refrigerator leaks, spilled gasoline, cats in trees and burning railroad ties.

The Paterson Fire Department was assisted on three occasions. Twenty drills were directed by the assistant chiefs and another was held in Prospect Park.

State Highway-User Taxes Climbing High, AAA Reports

State highway-user taxes collected in New Jersey for 1963 are officially estimated at $211,295,000 as compared with $205,049,000 in the preceding year, Carleton H. Ritter, executive vice-president of the North Jersey Automobile Club of the AAA, reported today.

"For the nation as a whole," Mr. Ritter said, "the U. S. Bureau of Public Roads forecasts that state highway-user taxes will hit the all-time high total of just under $6.1 billion. This is an increase of 4.5 per cent over the nearly $5.8 billion collected in 1962."

Mr. Ritter pointed out that these are the taxes which no longer will be deductible for income tax purposes under the "soak the motorist" section of the big tax reduction bill slowly making its way through Congress. He recommended that motorists write to their Senators promptly if they wish to continue to deduct their state automobile taxes on their Federal income tax returns.

Of the total state highway-user taxes to be collected this year, the roads bureau estimated that state motor fuel taxes will amount to $3.9 billion or 64 per cent of the total and registration fees will be $1.7 billion or 28 per cent. The remaining 8 per cent will be composed of various miscellaneous and special fees.

Leading the highway-user tax parade are: California $721 million; New York, $395 million; Texas, $376 million; Ohio, $346 million; and Pennsylvania, $384 million. Alaska brings up the rear with just under $8 million.

Court Turns Over $73,987.23 to County Exceeding Receipts for the Year 1962

Passaic County Surrogate Carroll Joseph Stark, in making his report for the year ending December 31, 1963, has indicated that the Court turned over to the County Treasurer, Alex Komar, the net sum of $73,987.23, amounting to approximately $9,000.00 in excess of the receipts for the year 1962.

In addition to the above, Passaic County's share of the inheritance tax money paid to the State of New Jersey for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1963, showed an increase of $21,400.00 over the comparable period in 1962.

The total increase in receipts amounted to an excess of $30,000.00, the Surrogate reported.

The total number of probate matters processed in the Surrogate's Court during the year was 2902, including 1368 Wills, 439 Administrations, 157 Guardianships, 839 Affidavits and 99 Adoptions.

It is reasonably anticipated, in view of the recent amendment to the statute concerning fees and costs, which became law on December 7, 1963, that a further increase in the net receipts of the Surrogate's Court will occur during the year 1964, and should approximate an additional $10,000.00.

DRIVE SAFELY!

Out-of-order rear lights and stop lights continue to top the list of maintenance needed for most cars. A national vehicle safety-check in 1962 found that more than 34 per cent of the cars checked had defective rear lights or stop lights. Next on the list, at 11 per cent, were defective headlights.

COMING SOON:

a new telephone directory for Passaic County with larger, easier-to-read printing and all-number listings for all customers

When your new telephone directory is delivered—in a week or so—you'll notice that the listings are printed in type that's much easier to read because it's about 20% larger.

You'll also notice that everyone in Passaic County will have all-number telephone numbers like 271-9970 (in place of AR 1-9970). But you'll continue dialing exactly as before. A glance at your phone dial will show that, whether you dial AR 1 or 271, you use exactly the same holes in the dial to do the job.

All-number calling is part of our long-range program to increase the supply of telephone numbers. We're rapidly running out of usable letter combinations to identify all the new telephones of the many new homes and businesses needing telephone service. The new numbering system greatly increases the supply of usable central office designations.

If you have any questions about your new directory, just call the Telephone Business Office.

...Editorial...

They Do Not Answer

The cost of providing a job on the Montana Power Company system is $239,012 at the present time and is increasing from year to year. And taxes are paid on this investment. Then, the dividends this investment earns are taxed twice, once when the company earns them and again when the investor receives his share. It is ironic that the whole taxpaying investor-owned electric industry structure should be threatened by socialization in the United States. If the socialists succeed in taking over the power industry and then go on to take over other industries and businesses, who will pay the taxes those "swallowed-up" firms used to pay? The advocates of tax-exempt government-owned power do not answer.

And it is a very important question indeed, at this time. The demand for tax cuts is all but universal, President Johnson has made a strong stand for maximum economy in the conduct of our governmental affairs, and the budget problem, with all the built-in inflation dangers that are a part of it, becomes ever more critical.

At best, the government must spend on a colossal scale. Why, in all reason, should it spend a solitary nickel for any purpose that can be achieved by taxpaying private enterprise, in the field of electric power or any other?

meters having greater capacity.

Substantial additions are continually needed to increase generator capacity and also bulk power facilities—those which move the large "blocks" of power needed by the Company's industrial, commercial and residential customers. In Jersey City, construction is continuing on the new $74 million Hudson generating station, where, initially, there will be installed a 400,000-kilowatt turbine-generator—the system's largest unit—scheduled for operation late in 1964. In December, 1963, a 31,000 kilowatt gas-turbine generator unit was placed in service at the Essex generating station. This type of unit is designed principally for use in times of peak demand. Another gas-turbine unit, this one having a capacity of 121,200 kilowatts, will be installed at Sewaren generating station for service in the latter part of 1966. The gas-turbine units can be operated by remote control and from a cold start can be placed under full load in a very few minutes to meet peak demands or emergency conditions.

All Scouts of the four troops will clear snow from fire hydrants. Each Scout has been assigned a hydrant nearest his home.

Tancordo said there are more hyrants than boys, and reminded residents of the seriousness if a fire occurred where a hydrant is buried in snow. He asked that they aid the Scouts in the project. This is the fifth year Tancordo has led the project.

Fire Chief Bay Proposes

the Volunteer Fire Department. A special alarm could be sounded from police headquarters to call the rescue crew to service.

Specially qualified rescue crew members would include electrician, a builder, a rigger, a skin diver and persons expert in first aid, heavy equipment operation, automobile mechanics, auto body work.

Bay said the rescue unit could free police from emergency work which could be handled by the trained and well-equipped rescue crew.

The chief pointed out that rescue truck equipment could have been put to good use at the recent tragic accident on Rt. 208 which took four lives.

In other matters, the chief reported that the fire department answered 172 alarms during 1963. They included 80 brush or rubbish fires, 18 vehicle fires, 11 house fires, 4 commercial or industrial fires and 17 false alarms, including those sounded by automatic devices.

Dwelling fires resulted in an estimated $18,000 damage and commercial and industrial buildings lost another $20,000 to fires, both figures including contents.

A suggestion that six fire alarm boxes be installed in newly developed areas is being implemented by the governing body.

The chief also reported that the Fire Prevention Bureau, organized a year ago, has inspected every commercial and industrial building in the borough and corrected many possible fire causes.

The department assisted police at two accident scenes and in a search for a lost child and also answered 20 calls involving refrigerator leaks, spilled gasoline, cats in trees and burning railroad ties.

The Paterson Fire Department was assisted on three occasions. Twenty drills were directed by the assistant chiefs and another was held in Prospect Park.

State Highway-User Taxes Climbing High, AAA Reports

State highway-user taxes collected in New Jersey for 1963 are officially estimated at $211,295,000 as compared with $205,049,000 in the preceding year, Carleton H. Ritter, executive vice-president of the North Jersey Automobile Club of the AAA, reported today.

"For the nation as a whole," Mr. Ritter said, "the U. S. Bureau of Public Roads forecasts that state highway-user taxes will hit the all-time high total of just under $6.1 billion. This is an increase of 4.5 per cent over the nearly $5.8 billion collected in 1962."

Mr. Ritter pointed out that these are the taxes which no longer will be deductible for income tax purposes under the "soak-the-motorist" section of the big tax reduction bill slowly making its way through Congress. He recommended that motorists write to their Senators promptly if they wish to continue to deduct their state automobile taxes on their Federal income tax returns.

Of the total state highway-user taxes to be collected this year, the roads bureau estimated that state motor fuel taxes will amount to $3.9 billion or 64 per cent of the total and registration fees will be $1.7 billion or 28 per cent. The remaining 8 per cent will be composed of various miscellaneous and special fees.

Leading the highway-user tax parade are: California $721 million; New York, $395 million; Texas, $376 million; Ohio, $346 million; and Pennsylvania, $384 million. Alaska brings up the rear with just under $8 million.

Court Turns Over $73,987.23 to County Exceeding Receipts for the Year 1962

Passaic County Surrogate Carroll Joseph Stark, in making his report for the year ending December 31, 1963, has indicated that the Court turned over to the County Treasurer, Alex Komar, the net sum of $73,987.23, amounting to approximately $9,000.00 in excess of the receipts for the year 1962.

In addition to the above, Passaic County's share of the inheritance tax money paid to the State of New Jersey for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1963, showed an increase of $21,400.00 over the comparable period in 1962.

The total increase in receipts amounted to an excess of $30,000.00, the Surrogate reported.

The total number of probate matters processed in the Surrogate's Court during the year was 2902, including 1368 Wills, 489 Administrations, 157 Guardianships, 839 Affidavits and 99 Adoptions.

It is reasonably anticipated, in view of the recent amendment to the statute concerning fees and costs, which became law on December 7, 1963, that a further increase in the net receipts of the Surrogate's Court will occur during the year 1964, and should approximate an additional $10,000.00.

DRIVE SAFELY!

Out-of-order rear lights and stop lights continue to top the list of maintenance needed for most cars. A national vehicle safety-check in 1962 found that more than 34 per cent of the cars checked had defective rear lights or stop lights. Next on the list, at 11 per cent, were defective headlights.

COMING SOON:

a new telephone directory for Passaic County with larger, easier-to-read printing and all-number listings for all customers

When your new telephone directory is delivered—in a week or so—you'll notice that the listings are printed in type that's much easier to read because it's about 20% larger.

You'll also notice that everyone in Passaic County will have all-number telephone numbers like 271-9970 (in place of AR 1-9970). But you'll continue dialing exactly as before. A glance at your phone dial will show that, whether you dial AR 1 or 271, you use exactly the same holes in the dial to do the job.

All-number calling is part of our long-range program to increase the supply of telephone numbers. We're rapidly running out of usable letter combinations to identify all the new telephones of the many new homes and businesses needing telephone service. The new numbering system greatly increases the supply of usable central office designations.

If you have any questions about your new directory, just call the Telephone Business Office.

WASHINGTON NEWS

A TIME FOR REDEDICATION

The flags that have hung sadly at half-staff for so long return to full mast but our spirits do not soar with them.

For we are still heartsick at the tragedy that has revealed to us the hollow mockery of "enlightenment" and brilliant material conquests in a nation and a world sick with the fevers of hatred and violence.

"What is happening to this beloved country of ours" is the subject of a poignantly timely statement by the editors of Reader's Digest in their January issue. "Have we carried the violent spirit of war over into our peacetime lives?" they ask. "Have we become so complacent in our enjoyment of our material blessings that we have forsaken those nobler things of the spirit? Have we forgotten the ancient truths spoken by the prophets? Does the compassion of Christ no longer mean anything to large numbers of our people? Have Abraham Lincoln's immortal words '. . . this nation, under God' ceased to lift the heart and fortify the conscience?"

"It is no answer," the editors continue, "to excuse ourselves by saying that these things also occur in other countries of the world. Of course they do. But America is America, the leader of the Western world—a nation which stands, and must continue to stand, for justice and decency and reason, for tolerance and opportunity and hope."

Wherefore, Reader's Digest has proposed that, on the first Sunday of the New Year, Americans rededicate themselves and their nation to the principles and the goals and the humble piety of their fathers. The editors have asked the churches of America to observe Sunday, January 5 as "This Nation Under God" day—and continue the spirit of this observation through the year.

Protestant ministers and Jewish rabbis and Catholic priests across the nation have pledged their fullest cooperation, and men and women, young and old, who look into their hearts, will join these congregations.

In his Inaugural Address, the martyred President said: "I do not believe that any of us would exchange places with any other people or any other generation. The energy, the faith, the devotion which we bring to this endeavor (of defending freedom) will light our country and all who serve it—and the glow from that fire can truly light the world."

It is now time to rekindle that fire.

STATUS—1964

We have it on impeccable authority that the automobile is no longer a status symbol in America. Rather, says our man, it is the number of automobiles a person owns that establishes his standing in the community!

James B. Lightburn, veteran automotive executive who is vice president and general sales manager of Purolator, tells us there are over ten million two-car families in the nation—more than owned one car when his company started selling filters 40 years ago. And three-car families are as numerous today as two-car households only 15 years ago, with nearly a million-and-a-half owning three or more automobiles.

It is little wonder, then, that the automotive "TBA" (tire, battery and accessory) replacement business anticipates a new all-time sales peak in 1964—especially since the cars on the road today are driven a lot more miles than in the past.

"A few decades ago," says Mr. Lightburn, "a car was considered worn out before it had registered 50,000 miles. Now, with better cars and better roads, most automobiles double or triple that figure during their lifetime."

This greater mileage tends to increase per car demand for replacement parts—and replacement filters for oil, gasoline and air—by a comparable amount. Taken together with the greater number of cars—74 million that roll up more than 700 billion miles a year—the responsibility of the automobile service industry and the TBA suppliers assumes awesome proportions. And, as the auto manufacturers continue upgrading their products, firms like Purolator, says Mr. Lightburn, must see to it that their research and development laboratories keep pace with stepped-up performance and dependability.

In 1963, Purolator's 40th anniversary year, the company's sales rose 20 per cent over 1962 to achieve an all-time high, while the replacement parts industry as a whole reached a record level of $7.5 billion. And, as Mr. Lightburn indicates, this year is bound to be still bigger.

The new year for our Chinese friends, which starts February 13th, will be the Year of the Dragon. For us, 1964 will be the Year of the Grease Monkey.

. . . vocational schools have an annual enrollment averaging nearly 35,000 students

New Jersey has 15 county vocational schools, 6 city vocational schools and 6 city schools with vocational departments, all of which provide private instruction in trades and industries as well as agriculture, home economics, and practical nursing. These schools, located throughout the state, have both day and evening programs and many other general high schools offer extensive vocational programs. Wherever possible, the subject matter is geared to the special needs of the area.

Thirty-six state approved private trade schools help swell the total enrollment in the vocational training program to over 38,000. There are 891 teachers and counselors in vocational fields throughout the state. Skilled labor attracts industry which in turn creates more jobs. Year after year, 85% of the graduates of the vocational-technical high schools are placed in the occupation for which training was given. This is indicative of the selectivity of students, quality of instruction and the ability of graduates to perform and progress on their job.

Strolling Along With Pat Ferro

Henny Youngman tries his hand as an actor in James Thurber's "A Thurber Carnival" now at the Paramus Playhouse on the Mall thru Sunday. The stand-up comedian suffers by comparison with the highly competent supporting cast (Sue Lawless, Vince O'Brien, Anne Russell, Mary Hayden and Richard Routall excellent). He redeems himself with a typical hilarious Henny Youngman monologue at the end of the show. The Thurber observations are funny and thought provoking. "Carnival" is a gathering of his short quotes, drawings, fables, letters, and feelings about today's society. It's an interesting production—worth seeing—and credit producer Bob Ludlum with giving Passaic-Bergen audiences a balanced theatrical diet.

Martha Weinman Lear is out with a Crown book entitled "The Child Worshipers." This is a book about parents, who are making the child a new status symbol and parenthood a competitive sport. Martha has been a writer and editor of The N. Y. Times Magazine, associate editor of Collier's and Woman's Home Companion, foreign correspondent for Boston newspapers, a staff writer for NBC, and a free-lance contributor to many national magazines. She and her suband make their home in Hartford.

Zachary Scott to Be Featured in 'The Deadly Game'

PARAMUS — "The Deadly Game," a play based on Friedrich Duerrenmatt's provocative suspense thriller, with international star Zachary Scott in the starring role, will be presented at the Playhouse on the Mall, Bergen Mall, beginning Tuesday, January 21, for one week only. James Yaffe, the mystery story writer, has written the play based on Duerrenmatt's novel, "Traps." New York critics called the play stimulating.

"The Deadly Game" tells the story of a brash American traveling salesman, portrayed by Scott, who is stranded in a little Swiss village, where he wanders into a stately home for shelter. He is welcomed and invited to join a small group of retired jurists at dinner and then to participate in a legalistic amusement at which they pass the time. Gradually he learns the simple parlor game has become a matter of life or death.

Zachary Scott has gathered accolades from leading critics in this country and in Europe for his work on the stage and in motion pictures and on television. Born in Fredericksburg, Va., where his ancestors settled in 1691, he attended the University of Texas. At 19 he left college and worked his way to England on a freighter. He joined the London Repertory Company, where he portrayed 20 leading roles over a period of 18 months.

Returning to America, he set his sights on a stage career. Soon he was cast in "The Damask Cheek," with Flora Robson, and other shows. One of his important successes was in "Requiem for a Nun," in which his wife, Ruth Fors, so-starred here and in London.

Scott is familiar to millions of television viewers, having starred in network shows in Hollywood and New York.

Frederick Rolf will direct. Settings will be created by Robert Conley. Lighting will be by Charles LaMartin.

"The Deadly Game" will run through Sunday, Jan. 26. Evening shows will be Tuesday through Friday at 8:30, Saturday at 5:30 and 9, and Sunday at 7:40. Midweek matinee is Thursday at 2 p.m.

Two years of college for all at public expense, with travel and living allowances added for those away from home, is the latest crusade to be launched by the National Education Association (the teachers' union).

But why stop there. If Johnny can't read when he gets to college, two years won't help much. And besides, we mustn't discriminate. Some of the boys (and girls, too) are making Ph.D. Why shouldn't they all?

How to be a big-time saver
(even if you're short on will power)

Iron-willed persistence is the tried and true way to become a successful saver. If that's not one of your strong points, however, try the Payroll Savings Plan.

It works just as well and saves you a lot of bookkeeping besides.

Every payday your employer sets aside a small amount from your check (you say how much) and puts it toward the purchase of a U. S. Savings Bond. Your Bond roll fattens up fast. Just $4.38 a week, for example, adds on three $100 Bonds every year.

There's no will power needed. And since you never see the small amount that's taken out of your check, you hardly miss it.

Of course, you save more than money this way. You also help preserve your freedom to spend it. Your Bond dollars help give Uncle Sam the financial strength he must have to protect our freedoms.

Tell your employer you want to start Payroll Savings this payday and see if you don't feel pretty good about it.

Quick facts about U. S. Savings Bonds
- You get $4 for every $3 at maturity
- You can get your money anytime
- Your Bonds are replaced free if lost, destroyed or stolen
- You can buy Bonds where you work or bank

Keep freedom in your future with U.S. SAVINGS BONDS

HOW TO FIGHT FROST-BITE

Winter is the season of vigorous outdoor sports—such as skating, skiing, snow shoeing, and sledding. Besides the bruises and fractures that these cold-weather activities expose us to, we should also be on guard against frost-bite.

Frost-bite results from sustained exposure to cold air usually at temperatures below 10 degrees F. It may be so slight as to produce only limited redness and itchiness of the skin, or so serious as to result in the destruction of circulation in the affected part and the development of gangrene. According to authorities, adequate protection includes the wearing of abundant, warm, dry clothing, with windbreakers and gloves, or preferably mittens. Only brief exposure to the cold should be indulged, particularly if vigorous exercise is not possible. Smoking should be avoided before and during exposure. Feet and socks should be kept dry, and all exposed skin should be greased liberally. General bodily health is a factor in avoiding frost-bite.

When patches of frost-bite appear on the face, serious damage can be prevented by placing the bare, warm hand over the area. Frost-bitten skin should not be rubbed with snow or warmed too rapidly. It is best to expose the affected parts to room temperatures, approximately 70 degrees . . . Too vigorous warming and stimulation increase swelling and pain. Where symptoms are extensive or lingering, the family physician should be called.

Mother's Group to Sponsor 1st Annual Supper Dance

St. Anthony's Mother's Group is sponsoring a First Annual Midnight Supper Dance to be held Friday, January 24, at the "Rustic Lodge," Rt. 46, East Paterson. Music under the direction of Mat Leydens will continue from 9 until 2 a.m. A buffet supper will be served after midnight.

As reservations will close on Friday, January 17th, Mrs. George Joynson, Chairman, suggests that if you have not already purchased your tickets you do so immediately by contacting either Mrs. F. Zigarelli, 328 Van Winkle Avenue, Mrs. W. Garner, 27 Second Avenue or Mrs. G. Joynson, 68 Washington Avenue.

Employers: If you hire an employee who tells you that he has already earned 4800 in the current year, you must still take the social security tax out of the first $4800 of his wages.

Between January 1 and October 30, 1963, investor-owned electric utilities reduced rates a total of $33,802,100—a sum three times greater than rate increases over the same period. Forty companies reduced rates while nine increased them.

WASHINGTON NEWS

A PLACE FOR THE AX

The President is reportedly giving serious thought to placing before Congress a proposal aimed at terminating government programs that have outlived their usefulness. The proposal would amount to a budget control device which would subject government programs to intensive review by a commission once every five years.

According to newspaper reports: "In his budget message, President Johnson is expected to try to convince the economy-minded Congress that the price of needed new programs is the abandonment of outmoded ones." The President's idea is an excellent one and, hopefully, it will be carried into action.

One of the first programs which should be considered for abandonment is the Rural Electrification Administration.

REA established during the thirties to bring electricity to our nation's farms. It has now fulfilled that purpose. Some 96 per cent of the nation's farms thanks to REA and the investor-owned electric utility industry efforts now enjoy the blessings of electricity.

Still REA lingers on and is coming to Congress each year for increasing budget appropriations. This money is lent to rural electric co-ops who pay almost no taxes at all at two per cent interest while the government pays four percent interest on money it borrows and is used primarily to allow these co-ops to compete unfairly with taxpaying investor-owned utilities.

Today, five of every six new customers of REA co-ops are non-farm consumers, and this year REA is seeking a record $426 million appropriation. Instead of granting this appropriation, why not have Congress take this money and put it to good use in the current battle against poverty within the nation?

REA has done its job. The co-ops, by and large, can support themselves. Let's scrap REA and put the tax dollars now wasted in needless competition to work in a worthy cause.

ARMING THE LEGISLATURE FOR EXPENDITURE CONTROL

Convening of the 1964 State Legislature on January 14—with problems of state financing paramount—again focuses attention upon the need of a strengthened legislative hand in the field of fiscal control.

After receiving the Governor's budget recommendations in February, the 16-member Joint Legislative Appropriations Committee faces the job of reviewing the voluminous document and producing an appropriation bill which must provide sufficient revenue to finance the State's spending program in the fiscal year beginning July 1.

With an annual State budget in excess of a half-billion dollars, how well is the Legislature equipped to do this as 1965 it created the Office of the Legislative Budget and Finance Director. This office operates full-time, studying budget requests, making financial analyses and studies. Recently, it began reviewing and processing requests of the Legislature for "fiscal notes"—a method of "price tagging" the future and costs of legislation prior to enactment.

Long interested in strengthening legislative control over spending the New Jersey Taxpayers Association in a 1958 study suggested several steps. These included more adequate facilities for independent legislative review of as well as the office of State executive budgets and expenditures and a joint legislative-executive efficiency-economy probe of state functions and spending. It also proposed annual legislative review as to the continued need for so-called "mandatory" state aid expenditures, as well as advance expert determination of costs of pension and salary liberalization measures. Last year the association urged greater use of "fiscal notes" on legislation, and strengthening of the legislative budget and finance office and the office of State Auditor.

March of Dimes Plans to Double Birth Defects and Arthritis Centers

Announcing plans to double the present number of March of Dimes birth defects and arthritis centers in the nation, the world's most successful voluntary health organization this week launched its traditional January fund-raising appeal.

Basil O'Connor, president of The National Foundation-March of Dimes, which financed development of both polio vaccines, said the goal this year would be $65 million. "I am sure our medical and scientific advisers agree we can wisely use to combat the ravages of these cripplers. This sum would apply to patient care, research, professional and public education.

The March of Dimes now supports some 77 birth defects and arthritis treatment centers across the country. According to Dr. William S. Clark, director of the medical department of the National Foundation-March of Dimes, the national dimensions of the health problems posed by birth defects and arthritis "have grown far beyond where this nation requires at least 100 centers for birth defects and 50 for arthritis."

"Through the generosity of the American people, we will build up our chapter and center program across the United States to meet their needs. Our offensive against both these crippling afflictions will be redoubled in 1964."

Leading in this offensive will be the members of the 2,000 March of Dimes chapters in the nation plus the volunteers they enlist—an expected army of two million people. This campaign continues throughout January and culminates with the Mothers' March during which some 15 million homes are visited from coast to coast.

In addition, a total of 50 million "mailers" are distributed nationally to inform families of the health aims of the March of Dimes and they also serve as a means of returning contributions to local chapters. The herculean task of collecting these envelopes regionally is unselfishly assumed by volunteers—thousands of teenagers, housewives, grandmothers.

Helping to dramatize the campaign will be the cross-country tour of winsome Mary Lou Graves, 5, of Flint, Mich., who was born with an open spine, since repaired, and who developed excess water on the brain, another birth defect which has now rectified itself. Mary Lou, however, is paralyzed in the legs but moves with surprising alacrity with leg braces, crutches and her wheel chair. In addition to vivacious Mary Lou as the National March of Dimes Child, many states, counties and municipalities across the country designate their own March of Dimes Child symbolizing the aims of their local campaigns.

In her travels this month, accompanied by her parents, Mary Lou is scheduled to call upon President Lyndon B. Johnson at the White House and has already visited with many Senators, Congressmen, Governors and other high officials. The pretty five-year-old has "interviewed" the heads of such influential national organizations as the General Federation of Women's Clubs, the Elks, Rotary, Kiwanis and other service clubs, including the American Legion, Veterans of Foreign Wars, Americs Catholic War Veterans, Jewish War Veterans and others.

An estimated total of 250,000 infants are born each year in the United States with serious birth defects. That is equivalent to one in 16 births, or 700 children a day. Of this quarter million total, more than 20,000 die, including stillbirths. As to arthritis, the other major health area in which the March of Dimes leads the attack, fully 11 million Americans are tormented by one or another form of this, the Nation's No. 1 cripples.

ZONING BOARD OVERRULES, GRANTS BUILDING PERMIT

The Zoning Board of Adjustment Monday night overruled the building inspector and directed that a building permit be issued to C. Ford Homes, Inc., for construction of two-family homes on Park Avenue.

Building Inspector George V. Grillo (his actual title is superintendent of building) had denied the permit because the borough tax map shows the land on which the homes are to be built to be one undivided lot.

In its unanimous ruling, the board noted a survey taken by a licensed professional engineer showing the property to be two legal plots.

Board Chairman Neil S. Graydanus said the property has probably been taxed as one for the convenience of the tax assessor.

Clifford Hunt, local realtor and president of C. Ford Homes, said the properties have frontages of 50 and 53 feet and are 150 feet deep.

The properties are at 46 through 52 Park Avenue. A tenant house at 46 Park Ave. will be razed according to Hunt.

Acting on the matter were Graydanus and board members William Gilmartin and Thomas Kreger.

In another matter, the board granted a variance to Dr. Frank De Dominicis of 74 Emeline Drive to construct a swimming pool in his rear yard. The pool may be closer to the rear line than ordinarily permitted because of sloping land and drainage difficulties.

Michael Ackaway of 1 Macfarlan Ave., received approval to build a two-family home next to his home, which is at the cor-

Methodist Church To Hold Annual Loyalty Dinners

Loyalty dinners, held annually to finance the needs of the church for the year, are planned for Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, Jan. 28, 29 and 30, in the Hawthorne Methodist Church.

David L. Templeton, general chairman, said the church has found this a successful and regular means of receiving pledges for the total six years.

The budget for the 1964-65 fiscal year will be explained with other slides of church personnel and activities, at the conclusion of each dinner.

It is anticipated that the budget, which totals $625 per week, will be underwritten by the three dinners.

Last Week's Icy Roads Cause Four Auto Accidents

Police investigated four automobile accidents attributed to icy roads Thursday. There were no injuries or extensive damage.

The first accident occurred at 8:20 a.m. when autos driven by Rukef W. Schumann, 25, of 568 Ramapo Valley Road, Oakland, and Mitchiene M. Cosmte, 39, of 149 Van Houten Ave., Wyckoff, collided at Rt. 208 and Utter Avenue.

The Comite car slid into the Schumann auto as both vehicles headed east on the highway, according to police Sgt. V. J. Mangiafico.

Cars driven by Siegfried J. Whitewalk, 37, of 324 Lafayette St., Passaic, and Phillip Cornell, 66, of 67 Elberan Avenue, collided at Diamond Bridge and Lafayette Avenues at 11 a.m. Patrolman Alfred Soder investigated.

At 12:20 p.m. autos operated by Charlotte M. Clare, 34, of 224 Westervelt Ave, and Leonard G. Cartsel, 63, of 237 Park Ave., Paterson, collided at Warburton and Dunford Avenues. Cartsel told Patrolman Albert Steward he tried to halt at the stop sign but skidded.

Autos driven by Elsie Geary, 46, of 39 Glen Gray Road, Oakland, and Carl F. Herzen of 505 Goffle Hill Road collided at Lafayette and Genevieve Avenues at 4:45 p.m. Patrolmen Albert Pizzurcia and Charles Mabey investigated.

The Hawthorne Board of Education can get the two acres of land it wants from the Passaic County Park Commission if the commission can obtain tracts of land privately owned, along the Goffle Brook, between Diamond Bridge and Warburton Avenues in that borough.

This was the general opinion of the Park Commission last Wednesday.

The Hawthorne Board of Education wants the land to square off its boundary line separating the board's property and Goffle Brook.

On the other hand, privately owned property which runs to the Goffle Brook, between Diamond Bridge and Warburton Avenues, is wanted by the commissioners which is charged with keeping Goffle Brook cleared of debris, trash and refuse.

The tracts are all approximately 190 feet deep and the commission, if title could be secured, would plan to put a small roadway on the other side of Goffle Brook.

The boundary lines of the privately owned tracts, of which there are 11, extend to the middle of the brook. The commission does have 100 feet frontage on undeveloped property on the other side of the brook which rests between the privately owned tracts.

In other business, executive Park Director William Crowley was given permission to purchase a new desk for his office and two chairs and two file cabinets, his old desk will be used

President's $97.8 Billion Budget Would Cost New Jersey Taxpayers $4.3 Billion

NEWARK—The New Jersey State Chamber of Commerce estimated that New Jersey taxpayers will be required to pay out approximately $4,278,230,000 in federal taxes as their share of the cost of the Federal spending program of $97.8 billion proposed for the fiscal year 1964-65 by President Johnson in his annual budget message today.

This share is 4.3 times the total of $1.025 billion in property taxes levied in 1962 to support the services rendered by New Jersey's 21 county governments, 567 municipal governments and 575 public school districts and it is 7.91 times the record $543.8 million in New Jersey state budget for the current year.

Locally, the State Chamber estimates that its share of county taxpayers' bill as a result of $97,000,000,000 of Congress adopt the $97.8 billion spending program proposed by the President. This is an amount equal to $701 for every man, woman and child in the county.

This Federal tax burden, upon the county's taxpayers is 1.7 times the $61,195,583 of property taxes levied within the county to support the county government as well as all municipal governments and public schools, the Chamber explained.

The State Chamber's estimates are based upon its calculation that New Jersey taxpayers currently pay 1.37 per cent of all Federal taxes.

The Chamber pointed out that any change which Congress may

WASHINGTON NEWS

A PLACE FOR THE AX

The President is reportedly giving serious thought to placing before Congress a proposal aimed at terminating government programs that have outlived their usefulness. The proposal would amount to a budget control device which would subject government programs to intensive review by a commission once every five years.

According to newspaper reports: "In his budget message, President Johnson is expected to try to convince the economy-minded Congress that the price of needed new programs is the abandonment of outmoded ones." The President's idea is a excellent one and, hopefully, it will be carried into action.

One of the first programs which should be considered for abandonment is the Rural Electrification Administration.

REA established during the depression to bring electricity to our nation's farms. It has now fulfilled that purpose. Some 98 per cent of the nation's farms thanks to REA and the investor-owned electric utility industry efforts now enjoy the blessings of electricity.

Still REA fingers on and is coming to Congress each year for increasing budget appropriations. This money is lent to rural electric co-ops who pay almost no taxes at all at two per cent interest while the government pays four percent interest on money it borrows and is used primarily to allow these co-ops to compete unfairly with taxpaying investor-owned utilities.

Today, five of every six new customers of REA co-ops are non-farm consumers, and this year REA is seeking a record $426 million appropriation. Instead of granting this appropriation, why not have Congress take this money and put it to good use in the current battle against poverty within the nation?

REA has done its job. The co-ops, by and large, can support themselves. Let's scrap REA and put the tax dollars now wasted in needless competition to work in a worthy cause.

March of Dimes Plans to Double Birth Defects and Arthritis Centers

Announcing plans to double the present number of March of Dimes birth defects and arthritis centers in the nation, the world's most successful voluntary health organization this week launched its traditional January fund-raising appeal.

Basil O'Connor, president of The National Foundation—March of Dimes, which financed development of both polio vaccines, said the goal this year would be $45 million. "I am sure our medical and scientific advisers agree we can wisely use to combat the ravages of these cripplers. This sum would apply to patient care, research, professional and public education."

The March of Dimes now supports some 77 birth defects and arthritis treatment centers across the country. According to Dr. William S. Clark, director of the medical department of The National Foundation—March of Dimes, the national dimensions of the health problems posed by birth defects and arthritis "have grown to a point where this nation requires at least 100 centers for birth defects and 50 for arthritis.

"Through the generosity of the American people, we will build up our chapter and center programs across the United States to meet their needs. Our offensive against both these crippling afflictions will be reflected in 1964."

Leading in this offensive will be the members of the 3,000 March of Dimes chapters in the nation plus the volunteers they enlist in expected army of two million people. The campaign continues throughout January, culminating nationally in the Mothers' March during which some 25 million homes are visited from coast to coast. In addition, a total of 36 million "mailers" are distributed nationally to inform families of the health aims of the March of Dimes and they also serve as a means of returning contributions to local chapters. The herculean task of addressing these envelopes nationally is unselfishly assured by volunteers—thousands of teenagers, housewives, grandmothers.

Helping to dramatize the campaign will be the cross-country tour of wirsome Mary Lou Graves, 5, of Flint, Mich., who was born with an open spine, since repaired, and who developed excess water on the brain, another birth defect which has now rectified itself. Mary Lou, however, is paralyzed in the legs but moves with surprising alacrity with leg braces, crutches and her wheel chair. In addition to the vivacious Mary Lou as the National March of Dimes Child, many states, counties and municipalities across the country designate their own March of Dimes Child symbolizing the aims of their local campaigns.

In her travels this month, accompanied by her parents, Mary Lou is scheduled to call upon President Lyndon B. Johnson at the White House and has already visited with many Senators, Congressmen, Governors and other high officials. The pretty five-year-old has "interviewed" the heads of such influential national organizations as the General Federation of Women's Clubs, the Kiwanis and other service clubs including the American Legion, Veterans of Foreign Wars, Amvets, Catholic War Veterans, Jewish War Veterans and others.

An estimated total of 250,000 infants will be born each year in the United States with serious birth defects. This is equivalent to one in 10 births or 700 children each day. Of the nation's 20 million disabled, more than 30,000 die, including stillbirths. As to arthritis, the other major health area in which the March of Dimes leads the attack, fully 11 million Americans are tormented by one or another form of this, the Nation's No. 1 crippler.

ARMING THE LEGISLATURE FOR EXPENDITURE CONTROL

Convening of the 1964 State Legislature on January 14—with problems of state financing paramount—again focuses attention upon the need of a strengthened legislative hand in the area of fiscal control.

After receiving the Governor's budget recommendations in February, the 16-member Joint Legislative Appropriations Committee faces the job of reviewing the voluminous document and producing an appropriation bill which must provide sufficient revenue to finance the State's spending program in the fiscal year beginning July 1..

With an annual State budget in excess of a half-billion dollars, how well is the Legislature equipped to do this on 1955 it created the Office of the Legislative Budget and Finance Director. This office operates full-time, studying budget requests, making financial analyses and studies. Recently, it began reviewing and processing requests of the Legislature for "fiscal notes"—a method of "price tagging" the future and state cost of legislation prior to enactment.

Long interested in strengthening legislative control over spending the New Jersey Taxpayers Association in a 1958 study suggested several steps. Those included more adequate facilities for independent legislative review of as well as the office of State executive budgets and expendi- Auditor.

tures and a joint legislative-executive efficiency-economy probe of state functions and spending. It also proposed annual legislative review as to the continued need for so-called "mandatory" state aid expenditures, as well as advance expert determination of costs of pension and salary liberalization measures. Last year the association urged greater use of "fiscal notes" on legislation, and strengthening of the legislative budget and finance office

Passaic County Park Commission Seeks Land Exchange Along Goffle Brook

Last Week's Icy Roads Cause Four Auto Accidents

Police investigated four auto accidents attributed to icy roads Thursday. There were no injuries or extensive damage.

The first accident occurred at 8:20 a.m. when autos driven by Rulef W. Schumann, 35, of 568 Ramapo Valley Road, Oakland, and Miss Jeanne M. Connie, 39, of 149 Van Houten Ave., Wyckoff, collided at Rt. 208 and Utter Avenue.

The Comito car slid into the Schumann auto as both vehicles headed east on the highway, according to police Sgt. V. J. Mangiafico.

Cars driven by Siegfried J. Wisniewski, 37, of 321 Lafayette St., Passaic, and Philip Corwith, 56, of 67 Elberon Avenue, collided at Diamond Bridge and Lafayette Avenues at 11 a.m. Patrolwoman Alfred Soder investigated.

At 12:20 p.m. autos operated by Charlotte M. Clare, 34, of 224 Westervelt Ave., and Leonard G. Carmel, 53, of 232 Totowa Ave., Paterson, collided at Warburton and Bamford Avenues. Carmel told Patrolmen Albert Bonnecola he tried to halt at the stop sign but skidded.

Autos driven by Ilsie Geary, 46, of 58 Glen Gray Road, Oakland, and Carl F. Bergen of 388 Goffle Hill Road collided at Lafayette and Genevieve Avenues at 6:46 p.m. Patrolmen Albert Piccola and Charles Mabey investigated.

The Hawthorne Board of Education can get the two acres of land it wants from the Passaic County Park Commission if the commission can obtain tracts of land privately owned, along the Goffle Brook, between Diamond Bridge and Warburton Avenues in that borough.

This was the general opinion of the Park Commission last Wednesday.

The Hawthorne Board of Education wants the land to square off its boundary line separating the board's property and Goffle Brook.

On the other hand, privately owned property which runs to the Goffle brook, between Diamond Bridge and Warburton Avenues, is wanted by the commission which is charged with keeping Goffle Brook cleared of debris and refuse.

The tracts are all approximately 100 feet deep and the commission, if title could be secured, would plan to put a small roadway on the other side of Goffle Brook.

The boundary lines of the privately owned tracts, of which there are 11, extend to the middle of the brook. The commission does have 100 feet frontage on landlocked property on the other side of the brook which rests between the privately owned tracts.

In other business, executive Park Director William Crowley was given permission to purchase a new desk for his office and two chairs and two file cabinets, fits old desk will be used

ZONING BOARD OVERRULES, GRANTS BUILDING PERMIT

The Zoning Board of Adjustment Monday night overruled the building inspector and directed that a building permit be issued to C. Fort Homes, Inc., for construction of two-family homes on Park Avenue.

Building Inspector George V. Grillo (his actual title is superintendent of building) had denied the permit because the borough tax map shows the land on which the homes are to be built to be one undivided lot.

It, its unanimous ruling, the board noted a survey taken by a licensed professional engineer showing the property to be two legal plots.

Board Chairman Neil S. Greydanus said the property has probably been taxed as one for the convenience of the tax assessor.

Clifford Hunt, local realtor and president of C. Ford Homes, said the properties have frontages of 50 and 55 feet and are 150 feet deep.

The properties are at 46 through 52 Park Avenue. A vacant house at 46 Park Ave. will be razed according to Hunt.

Acting on the matter were Greydanus and board members William Gilmartin and Thomas Kreger.

In another matter, the board granted a variance to Dr. Frank De Dominicis of 74 Emeline Drive to construct a swimming pool in his rear yard. The pool may be closer to the rear line than ordinarily permitted because of sloping land and drainage difficulties.

Michael Arkaway of 1 Marfarlan Ave., received approval to build a two-family home next to his home, which is at the cor-

The Board of Education gave tentative approval to a 1964-65 budget totaling $1,892,346, an increase of $83,146 over the present budget of $1,719,200. The amount to be raised by local taxes is $1,569,925, a rise of $77,575 over the amount raised for this school year. The amount to be raised by local taxes is $5,571 less than the budget total because of an expected increase in state aid.

A breakdown of the budget total shows $1,613,272 for current expenses, an increase of $76,888; $14,277 for capital outlay, a decrease of $18,718 and $174,608 for debt service, a decrease of $1,704.

The budget will be considered for adoption after a public hearing Friday, Jan. 24, at 8 p.m. in the Municipal Building and will be presented to voters Tuesday, Feb. 11, from 2 to 9 p.m. at the regular polling places.

The new salary guide provides for the following salaries: bachelor's degree: $4,700 to $7,900 after 12 years, increases of $100 at the starting pay and $400 at the maximum; master's: $5,000 to $8,550 after 13 years, increases of $200 at starting pay and $650 at the start and $300 at top pay and doctorate: $5,500 to $9,750 after 15 years, raises of $200 at starting pay and $950 at top pay.

The total budget increase of $83,146 is $12,591 less than the increase of this school year's 1963-64 budget over 1962-63.

In other business, the board accepted with regret the resignation of George Palmgren as high school vice principal effective

President's $97.8 Billion Budget Would Cost New Jersey Taxpayers $4.3 Billion

NEWARK—The New Jersey State Chamber of Commerce estimated that New Jersey taxpayers will be required to pay out approximately $4,278,230,000 in Federal taxes as their share of the cost of the Federal spending program of $97.8 billion proposed for the fiscal year 1964-65 by President Johnson in his annual budget message today.

This share is 4.1 times the total of $1,035 billion in property taxes levied in 1963 to support the services rendered by New Jersey's 721 county governments, 567 municipal governments and 575 public school districts and the 7,91 times the record $543.8 million New Jersey state budget for the current year.

Locally, the State Chamber estimates that the 70 county taxpayers will get a total of $265,317,000 if Congress adopts the $97.9 billion spending program proposed by the President. This is an amount equal to $261 for every man, woman and child in the county.

This $265,317,000 has been spent by the county's taxpayers in a variety of ways, as well as municipal governments, and public schools, the Chamber pointed out.

The State Chamber's estimates are based upon its calculation that New Jersey taxpayers currently pay 1.37 per cent of all Federal taxes.

The Chamber pointed out that any change which Congress may

Strolling Along With Pat Ferro

"Kind Sir" is truly kind to the after audience, in all departments—a posh stage setting, beautiful clothes, and smooth performance by polished performers. It is a highly slick and entertaining comedy, playing at the Paper Mill Playhouse in Millburn, until Sunday. Arlene Francis, the star, is both beautiful and sparkling in her role of Jane Kimball, a frustrated actress in search of a mate. She finally finds one, Philip Cluett (charmingly played by Michael Allinson) who is a perfect mate for Jane except for the fact that he can never become her legal husband, since he already has a wife! This last bit provides the ewe for a very funny twist in the last act. If the theme sounds familiar, it's probably because the movie "Indiscreet" with Cary Grant and Ingrid Bergman was based on this play. Miss Francis turns in a delightfully good performance and it is equally matched by that of her leading man, Michael Allinson (formerly Prof. Higgins in "My Fair Lady").

Indeed the entire cast does an excellent job. If all this isn't enough to satisfy you, then the beautiful gowns will. Miss Francis practically carries on a one-woman fashion show.

Described by fashion editors as the leading shoe colorist in the country and patronized by First Ladies of the Land, including Mrs. Mamie Eisenhower, first ladies of stage and screen, and Queens of England, Milton Mann of East Orange opened a fourth branch of his successful salons, Glamour Shoe Dyers at the Paramus Bergen Mall.

A major paint company has predicted that dark colors will be more prevalent in ours next year. White has been one of the most popular auto colors in recent years.

Far-Out Logic

The AFL-CIO leadership's argument that a 35-hour work week will lessen unemployment can be discredited by a very simple question which the labor hierarchy has never bothered to answer. It is this:

"If a 35-hour week will do what is claimed for it, why stop there—why not drop to 20 hours or even to 15?"

Ridiculous? Of course, but no more so than the so-called logic advanced by the union leaders.

The plain fact is that what the unions are really seeking is to push up the time when overtime pay begins, usually at double the rates of straight time. This would saddle industry with a back-breaking burden and drive the cost of living upward. At doubletime it would mean an increase of 28.5 per cent in the effective wage rate for a 40-hour week and even a straight 35-hour week at 40-hour pay would boost wages by 14.3 per cent.

Thus, if the unions' demands prevail they could very well have the reverse effect of increasing unemployment instead of decreasing it. So much so that the National Association of Manufacturers has called the unions' position that work can be spread through arbitrary reduction of the work week a "dangerous fallacy."

"One purpose of the (unions') proposals before you is to offset the disincentive to new hirings already imposed by overhead costs, through raising the cost of overtime labor," George G. Hagedorn, NAM's research director, told the Select Committee on Labor of the House Committee on Education and Labor.

"Raising costs will certainly not open up any new opportunities for profitable activities which involve hiring people, and may close up some already in existence."

Information Now Available for '63 Income Tax Files

Federal income tax forms and instruction booklets have been mailed to New Jersey taxpayers, District Director Frank S. Turbett, Jr., announced. Additional or different forms can be obtained from any Internal Revenue Office as well as from most post offices and from many banks. No major changes have been made in 1963 tax forms.

Taxpayers will find the answers to most of their income tax questions are in the instruction booklet which came with their blank tax returns.

Individuals needing more detailed tax advice are advised to purchase "Your Federal Income Tax" from any Revenue Service office. It costs 40c and it is also sold by many newspapers and service organizations.

The 144 page book is complete-ly indexed by topic and it has usually understood explanations of technically all income tax questions.

A similar "Tax Guide for Small Business' is also available from the same offices at the same price. The "Farmers Tax Guide" is free and it may be obtained from county extension agents as well as from Revenue Service offices.

People who still have questions after reading these instructions may have them answered by telephoning any Internal Revenue Office. To avoid confusion, taxpayers choosing for tax advice should have their tax returns in hand and their questions formed in their mind before calling. They should ask to be connected with Income Tax Assistance. Revenue Service telephone lines are not so busy as they will be later. This is an ideal time to get authoritative answers to troublesome questions.

Although most people will not be able to complete their tax returns until they receive Withholding Statements (W-2 Forms) from all their 1963 employers, they should not wait to collect the records they will need.

Social Security numbers are required on 1963 income tax returns. For the second year tax refunds may be taken in United States Savings Bonds.

All New Jersey residents should mail their completed returns to: District Director of Internal Revenue, 1060 Broad Street, Newark, New Jersey—07102.

Returns should no longer be mailed to the Camden office.

THE DRIVER'S SEAT

Interstate highways can have peculiar effects. Like this: on a day when a stewardess on a jet offers "Coffee, tea or milk?" or there are "Entrees" or "Service in one-class" bus trips.

All of this may be brought about when a new cross-country expressway opens sometime in 1972. An Iowa man is already trying to line up a system of buses that have a tractor and several trailers. These will have berths so that passengers can sleep, there'll be stewardesses and, if all goes as it did with the airlines, the busses may someday show first-run movies.

The new highway, affectionately known as I-80 to highway engineers, will go from Teaneck, N.J. to San Francisco. About a third of it has been built so far and the rest is coming along. Two other coast-to-coast routes will also be built.

Aside from novel busses, one advantage of the new I-80 road is that tourists will be able to speed along even faster, ignoring the deities of Indian battles, pioneer trails, sites of massacres and other such historical trivia.

Oddly enough, there's one major block to this route: Donner Pass, in California. This is the same pass where the famous Donner Party of emigrants got stranded by a snow storm and several members of the wagon train survived only by indulging in cannibalism.

Without trying to worry you, we'd like to point out that highway engineers note that the annual snowfall on Donner Pass is 35 feet—that's not inches, but feet. The highway can be blocked in winter and since there's a certain chance that history will repeat itself on Highway I-80, we'd advise that you schedule your 1973 trip out West in the summertime. If you should get caught in a blizzard and become the featured item on the day's menu, it won't cheer you up much to realize that history often repeats itself. If you must go in winter, we'd like to hear you "leave the cracking" to us.

HEALTH, EDUCATION AND WELFARE

More than 414,000 men, women and children in New Jersey were receiving social security benefit payments at the end of 1963. These payments amounted to about $48,103,000 a month, according to Andrew J. Greuner, district manager for the Social Security Administration in Paterson. "This represents an increase in the number of beneficiaries of about 9 per cent over the same month last year," he said.

The social security program was 28 years old last August 14. In reviewing the growth of the program, Greuner noted that at the close of 1940, the first year in which monthly payments were made, only 200,000 people in the nation were receiving payments. In December 1963, over 19 million were on the social security rolls. Benefit payments for the month of December 1963 totalled $1,261,513,000.

Many changes have been made in the program since its rather modest beginning. At first, only workers in commerce and industry were covered. Now, more than 9 out of 10 working Americans are covered by the program. Nine of every 10 children and their mothers can count on monthly benefits if the family breadwinner dies. Nearly 90 per cent of the people reaching 65 in 1963 were eligible for benefits.

The basic idea of the social security law is a simple one, Greuner said. During the working years employees, their employers, and self-employed people pay social security taxes which go into special funds. When earnings stop because the worker has retired or died, or is disabled, payments are made from the funds to replace part of the earnings the family has lost.

"Many people have a very hazy idea of just what to expect from social security at death, disability, or retirement," said Greuner, "and that's why we encourage folks to come see us and get first-hand information on this program that means so much to so many."

The Paterson social security office is located at 52 Church Street. The telephone number is LAmbert 3-5800.

OUTDOOR TIPS

QUICK TARGET

Need a target fast? Try this: Tape the top pages of a magazine together. Then tape an X across the front cover. In the field cut a forked stick, invert shafts and tangles when transporting or storing. Cut a figure 8 crevice a sleeve that won't come X out of an inner tube. Cut a hole in both ends of the X. Now slip one end over the rod butt for reel seat; the other over reel handle. Tension holds everything in place.

TWO EMPTY SHELLS

Quick way to make a waterproof matchbox is to slip an empty 12 gauge shotgun shell over an empty 16 gauge shell. Makes a semi watertight container. It also makes a durable storehouse for hooks, sinkers, swivels and assorted small stuff.

EARLY WORMS

Put this tip away until spring starts to sing its fishing song . . . but the ground is still too frozen to dig worms. It's a doozy, but it works: Make out your local warning grounds and cover it with sheets of plastic. You'll want to weight them down and you need to find a sunny spot. Sun heats the earth and the plastic sheet retains the warmth, thaws the ground, attracts the worms.

MOUNTAIN MUSIC FOR COONS

A coon hunter recommends the bushy woods when he trees a coon, he starts playing his harmonica. Coon hears music, looks down and POW! Maybe if he wanted the coon would the laugh, anyhow.

DEER PAL

If you're hunting with a pal and he shoots a deer, stick around. If hunters are other deer will turn to see what happened to their pal.

BEAVER TAIL FINISH

Try this for a real walnut finish on your gun stock. Take the meat of black walnuts and crush it a soft cloth bag. Rub and rub stock after all the oil finish has been removed. Natural oil stain of walnuts, plus the rubbing of the cloth will bring out a luster on the wood that can't be beat.

Cottontail rabbits usually run in a circle, so it is up to the hunter to maneuver himself into shooting position. Very often the rabbit will come right back to its starting point. The hunter should be able to gauge the direction of the chase by his hound's baying.

March of Dimes Lends a Hand, To Silence Child's Tormentors

When Lori Nelson blew out the candles on her fourth birthday cake recently, it seemed that every youngster her age in Rosalie, Neb., turned out for her party.

Only a few months before, the remarkably pretty child had been the butt of taunts and giggles from these same children. Lori was born with a rare birthmark—a thick, unsightly covering of hair extending from her right shoulder to mid-forearm. Instead of finding playmates among the other boys and girls, all she ever encountered were finger-pointers and name-callers.

Lori found these jibes, when scarcely out of infancy and the cribs, more than any sensitive child could endure. So did her parents, Marlene and Chester Nelson, an attractive farming couple, who for almost three years searched unsuccessfully for a medical answer to the problem.

Brother Also Heartsick

Also heartsick was David, 6, Lori's brother, who more than once came home with a bloody eye because he fought one of the tormentors. Side by side, they poked fun at his "pooky" sister.

"Chester and I were almost out of our minds, with this terrible affliction," the mother explained. "Lori, a frightened and confused little girl, withdrew into a shell. The present picture was painful enough, but my husband and I looked with dread into the future when our pretty child, like any young woman, would want to go to dances and have dates and fun and, in time, a husband and family.

"No one gave us any reason for hope. Then I read somewhere that the March of Dimes was planning a birth defects center in Omaha. We were waiting at the door when it opened a year and a half ago."

The center, supported by March of Dimes contributions from chapters throughout Nebraska, is at Children's Memorial Hospital and is directed by Dr. Theodore R. Pfundt, chairman of the pediatrics department of Creighton University School of Medicine. It is one of 48 such centers across the nation.

Dr. Pfundt consulted with Dr. Albert S. Black, a noted Omaha cosmetic surgeon, who is a "team member" of the March of Dimes-supported center and an associate professor of surgery at the University of Nebraska Medical School. He saw no reason for despair.

Lori underwent four surgical procedures by Dr. Black. He removed the hairy surface of the right arm which was then replaced by grafts of skin from her right thigh.

Lori Now Carefree

"Essentially what we did," Dr. Black explains, "was to excise the cause of Lori's fears and torments, and restore a whole little girl to the carefree world of children. The arm is still rather scarred, inevitably. But later on by high-speed planing and tattooing, the arm will be normal in appearance when by the time she is in high school Lori will have difficulty remembering which arm experienced this perverse quirk of nature."

Mrs. Nelson was selected as the Nebraska March of Dimes Mother for 1963. She and her husband have forgotten their fears about Lori heading their daughter to go to kindergarten. They consider that next summer, as a reward for her pluck, Lori may be riding around the farm aboard a Shetland pony.

The Record Speaks

The presidency of the United States is a unique institution. Dr. Norman V. Peale's church in Manhattan, Dr. Peale, where the Rotary Club of Paterson, where the Hawthorne Lodges of Masons, where the Kiwanis Club of Hawthorne recently met, one thing, the statement he made in what is bound to be the greatest campaign in our history. The danger is not a dictatorship in Washington, but a government dominated by the bosses and party politicians.

Yet Dr. Peale's comments can be proved to be untrue, that the Administration would not succeed over the American people, for the simple reason that the American public at large is against it. Just consider some of the amazing achievements that can be chalked up to the credit of this Administration as we answer it in this country.

In this week the dramatic story of the country in the seventeenth of human life. There are 4 5 million more people today than were living when 25 years ago. In the next nine to ninety the expectancy has increased to fifty-two years and ten months. The average older citizen—among them that 65 per cent of the days complained prescribed today were not even known 10 years ago, and this country has developed more new drugs than all the rest of the world combined.

RAINBOW IN THE SHOPPING CART

Potomac propaganda to the contrary, all revolutionary improvements in American living standards do not originate in Washington. They originate in the imagination and zeal of businesses with the willingness to risk dollars and even reputation. They are enjoyed by the American people who are quick to recognize and accept improvements.

Take the example of a 102-year-old food company that flew in the face of tradition, because they believed they had learned a way to make shopping quicker and easier. It all started when Henry Warren, Jr., marketing vice president of Stokely-Van Camp, wondered why almost all label backgrounds are either green or white. He asked himself, "Isn't this sea of green and white confusing to the shopper? Wouldn't a 'color guide' system of labels speed and simply selection?"

He tried out his theory on 1,000 women from every section of the country. Scientific tests showed that the average housewife in a supermarket "sees" approximately 350 labels in one minute. She makes up her mind and reaches for the chosen item in one-fifth of a second! She identifies certain colors with certain foods. As might be expected, she equates plums with purple, beans with green and corn with yellow. But how do you account for her identifying fruit cocktail with red? Or pears and sauerkraut with blue?

Mr. Warren didn't question the ladies' logic. Neither did his boss, Alfred Stokely, dynamic president of the company. He ordered the complete redesign of Stokely-Van Camp labels on the "color guide" concept. They were tested in stores and promptly outsold conventional white backgrounds by 10.9 per cent.

The color revolution toward quicker, easier shopping has begun. Mark up another triumph for American ingenuity and gumption.

A CARROT FOR THE JACKASS

Among all the determinations he expects of the present session of Congress—on civil rights, on the tax cut, on unemployment, on medicare and housing and education, President Johnson has singled out tax reduction legislation for priority.

"Above all," he said in his State-of-the-Union message, "we must release $11 billion of tax reduction into the private spending stream to create new jobs and new markets in every area." And, by way of emphasizing the point, he noted that the tax bill "has been thoroughly discussed for a year," and declared: "Now we need action." To put a fine point on it he suggested February first as the deadline for final action.

Under this Presidential prodding, the Senate Finance Committee headed by Chairman Harry F. Byrd, generally conceded to be the outstanding budgetary authority in Congress, swung belatedly into action. The Committee voted to continue to permit tax deduction for gasoline taxes, but balked at retaining present tax benefits to stockholders on dividend income.

The tax reduction bill already passed by the House eliminates deductions for State taxes on gasoline, liquor, cigarettes, auto licenses and various excises, but continues deductions for real estate taxes, personal property taxes, income taxes and general sales taxes. On dividends, the House bill doubles the present tax free allowance of $50 a year to individuals ($100 to husband and wife filing a joint return), but cuts the present four per cent tax credit on additional dividends down to two per cent. While the Senate Committee voted down a motion to retain existing tax treatment of dividends, the matter was left open for disposition by amendments later on.

Although it voted its agreement with the House bill on most other points, the Senate Committee still has work to do in readying its version of a tax cut, and the bill passed by the Senate will almost certainly differ from that of the House and require additional time for Conference adjustments. Thus, it will be a minor miracle if the measure is to be ready on schedule for the President's signature.

However that may be, it will be a case of two mountains laboring to bring forth one mouse—a mouse with a political squeak and little else. It will make some taxpayers feel better off, but it is unlikely to spur capital investment or to give to the economy the advertised shot-in-the-arm. It will be a tax concession—but not tax reform.

And the cost will still be eleven billion dollars.

For mountain big-game hunting you can't beat a good grade of 6 inch mountain boots with oil tanned leather and hard-rubber cleated, lugged shoes. Buy them full size larger than your street shoes so that you can wear a pair of very heavy virgin wool socks.

Employers: You may sometimes learn of a mistake you have made in reporting an employee's wages for social security. Such errors can usually be corrected if you get in touch with the Internal Revenue Service within three years after the erroneous report is filed.

Largest Project

The $5,648,963 Engineering Center, opened in the fall of 1964, is the largest single building project in the 197-year history of Rutgers University.

SIGHTSEEING IN THE SENATE the 1964 National March of Dimes Child, Mary Lou Graves, 5, Flint, Mich. meets New Jersey Senator Harrison A. Williams, Jr. at the nation's capital. Contributions to the January March of Dimes also will assist arthritis and polio victims through research, patient care, professional and public education.

. . . for its size, has a greater number of trucks than any other state

Trucking plays an important role in New Jersey's industrial and commercial development with deliveries expedited by an interlocking network of over 32,000 miles of major highways and secondary roads. In the last year of record, commercial vehicle registrations totaled 243,008 with 183 terminals in the state servicing trucks from over 1190 cities and towns.

New Jersey's superb highway system offers unexcelled overland facilities and, in proportion to its size, New Jersey has more miles of superhighway than any other state. Outstanding is the New Jersey Turnpike, extending from near the George Washington Bridge in the north to the Delaware Memorial Bridge in the south, which is used by more than seven million trucks annually. Also of growing importance is the piggy-back operation, typified in the photo above, where truck and rail combine to give faster and more mobile freight forwarding service.

The transportation facilities offered by the great state of New Jersey contribute greatly to its commercial and industrial growth.

"HOW, NEIGHBOR?"

Indians visiting New Jersey for its 300th anniversary will no doubt be surprised at the number, variety—and cost—of all the big and little governments that have accompanied growth of the State since pre-colonial days when it was one big forest and a few pow wows of the Sachem and his chiefs in the wigwam provided all the government that was needed.

To those touring the highways out of Camden or Newark today, it might seem there are more town halls than trees as one municipality fades into another.

Today in addition to the Great white Father's government at Washington, the State Government in Trenton and 21 county governments, there are 568 municipal governments, each equipped with a mayor, various local officials, departments and sundry equipment. The bill for municipal government alone, exceeds a half-billion dollars a year.

That's a lot of wampum on anybody's belt and has given rise to modern day pow wows and explorations of paths leading to efficiency and economy at the local government level.

At its recent 33rd Annual Meeting, the New Jersey Taxpayers Association called for "promotion of enlarged service areas in local government where present boundaries prevent efficient and/or economical operation—through functional consolidation, joint service agreements and outright mergers."

While merger of adjoining municipalities in the interest of economy comes under frequent study, it seldom is accomplished. More often explored are the possibilities of intergovernmental co-operation. Scores of state statutes permit local governments to share services and facilities, such as planning, fire and police, refuse collection and disposal, water supply, streets, parking, parks and recreation. The City of Trenton and adjoining townships currently are talking about a joint purchasing arrangement. Princeton Borough and Princeton Township are studying merger or consolidation of services; likewise Bordentown City and Bordentown Township.

So, today, when Jerseyan meets Jerseyan from the neighboring village, the greeting is not "how," but could well be: "How can we get together in the interest of better government at less cost."

U.S. Coast Guard In Need of Former Military Pilots

WASHINGTON, D. C. — The Commandant has announced that, due to the increasingly important role of its aviation arm, there are career openings available as Coast Guard aviators.

Applicants must be graduates of a United States military flight training program (heavier-than-air). They must have served on active duty as commissioned officers in the U. S. Army, Navy, Air Force, Marine Corps, Coast Guard, or reserve components thereof in the capacity of an aviator-pilot for a minimum of two years, and must have military or multi-engine civilian pilot experience within two years of the date of application.

Applicants must be less than 32 years of age and must be able to pass a flight physical, qualifying as a Class 1, Service Group I aviator (Navy flight physical standards). Qualified applicants will be offered a reserve commission in a grade not higher than Lieutenant, junior grade, for active duty in the Coast Guard. Date of rank will be the date on which the appointment is tendered. Prior military service is creditable for pay and retirement.

The first year of active duty will be probationary after which those aviators whose service has been satisfactory will be offered active duty contracts for two years. Those who do not integrate will normally be permitted to request two extensions of active duty for two years each following the initial three years, for a total of seven years active duty.

Former military aviators who are interested in and qualified for this program are urged to forward a complete resume of their flight background and experience to the Commandant (PTP 2), U. S. Coast Guard Headquarters, 1300 "E" Street, N. W., Washington, D. C., 20226.

Most Mountain lions are taken when treed by dogs. A high-velocity rifle isn't necessary to bring them down. A good shot can even put a .22 in the brain and do the job.

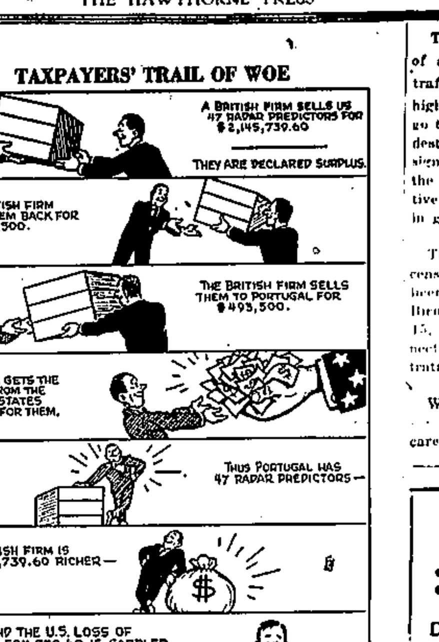
TAXPAYERS' TRAIL OF WOE



Ten per cent, or $100,000 out of a million, of the money for traffic signs spent by the Utah highway department this year will go to replace signs that have been destroyed by vandals. Destroyed signs are a particular problem for the night driver, when a reflective sign is a driver's only warning of a potential hazard.

The first known driver's license, then called an "engineer's license," was issued to Harold T. Birnie of New York City on May 15, 1900. New York and Connecticut both had vehicle registration laws as far back as 1901.

Star-spangled savings plan

Most of us think about the future in terms of paying off the mortgage, educating the children, providing a retirement income.

But with the world the way it is today, it's almost impossible to make plans for your own future without considering the future of your country, too.

When you buy U. S. Savings Bonds, your money takes on both jobs. It grows to build your financial strength.

At the same time, it helps Uncle Sam watch over our peace and security.

Why not give your savings dollars this double assignment? You'll be joining millions of American families who are investing in their country's future — and you'll probably feel pretty good about it.

It's easy to buy Savings Bonds on the Payroll Plan where you work. A $50 Bond costs $37.50, a $25 Bond $18.75, and you can buy them in installments for only a few dollars a pay day. Or buy them outright at any bank. No charge for the service.

Buy Series E Bonds for growth, Series H for current income.

Some nice things about Series E Bonds
• You get 33⅓% more money when they mature
• You can defer the tax on accumulated interest until the Bonds are cashed
• You can get your money when you need it
• Your Bonds are replaced free if lost, destroyed, or stolen

NEW CASH for Old Cloth Coats!

is that any way to run a business?

YOU BET IT IS!

True, some of our friends think we're foolish to give away good hard cash for old cloth coats. But we say . . . look here . . . if trade-in works with cars why not coats? You buy them both for good service and good looks from a good dealer—right . . . and a good coat like a good car has a life span. After awhile it needs replacing. 'Til now chances are you thought you'd just have to keep wearing your old coat 'til it was disreputable and then write it off.

But now, NOW Bon Ton comes to the rescue! Now we cry don't do that! We'll take that old coat as a trade-in on a new coat. That way you'll not have to cross off your old garment as a total loss and you'll get a head start on that brand new coat (sizes 6 to 56) you've been yearning for. You'll confidently hurry to Bon Ton's for the largest trade-in allowance possible on the best new coat buy of your life!

Yes ma'am, car trade-ins work—why not coat trade-ins. Is this any way to run a business?

YOU BET IT IS!

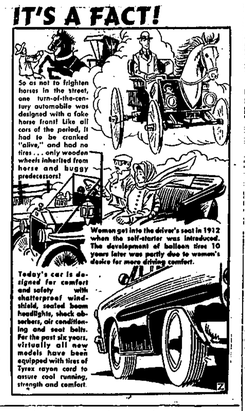
Sewerage Service In the Borough To Cost $37,280

The Passaic County Sewerage Commission notified the borough last week that its share of costs of operating and maintaining the sewerage system this year will be $37,280.

The amount represents an increase of $760 over the $36,520 it cost the borough for sewerage disposal last year.

Payment of the first installment of $20,217 was authorized by the borough commissioners.

IT'S A FACT!



The remaining $17,065 is due in July.

In other business, the state Division of Taxation informed the governing body that the New York, Susquehanna and Western Railroad has petitioned for a review of its Class 2 property valuations in the borough.

The railroad has seven properties in North Jersey. The Hawthorne property is being assessed at 25 per cent of its $23,910 true value.

The hearing report for December shows permits issued for construction valued at $56,456.

A total of 2261 was collected in fees.

The permits include one to John J. Rapp of 241 Wagaraw Road for a workshop with two second floor apartments valued at $21,000; and to Hawthorne Laundry of 1050 Goffle Road for a $15,000 addition to its building.

The Road Rebels were granted permission to use the municipal parking lot on Grand Avenue, between Warburton Avenue and Jefferson Street, for a car show July 11.

Douglas Beattie, club secretary, said the show will be in conjunction with the State Tercentenary celebration. He said the plan has been approved by Police Chief Charles F. Keenjon, Sr.

The commissioners approved payment of $100,000 to the local Board of Education and received $228 as the borough's share of $119 collected in Municipal Court last month.

One Week Left To File Annual Address Report

The United States Immigration and Naturalization Service reminded all aliens in New Jersey today that only one week remains in which non-citizens must file their annual address report as required by law.

Dominick F. Rinaldi, District Director of the Immigration and Naturalization Service in New Jersey, pointed out that address report forms are available at all Post Offices for the convenience of aliens who are required to file their addresses to the Government each January. Approximately 40,000 aliens and students, are required to report their addresses. Aliens admitted temporarily as agricultural laborers who have terminated their contract employment are also required to report their addresses.

Mr. Rinaldi stated: "It is hoped that all persons subject to this law will go to the nearest Post Office or Immigration and Naturalization Service office and fill out an address report form before the January 31st deadline, to avoid possible serious penalties."

He explained that persons found guilty of willful violation would be subject to a possible fine, jail sentence, and deportation. The Immigration official said that 107,129 aliens in New Jersey filed reports during the first three weeks of the reporting period, which is below the same period for 1963.

Garden State Farms Dropping Prices to Lowest Level Permitted by OMI

Garden State Farms has announced reductions in consumer milk prices.

A leader in the long fight to give consumers a break in milk prices in New Jersey, Garden State Farms is dropping its prices to 44 cents a half gallon and 87 cents a gallon effective Saturday, January 25. These are the lowest prices permitted by OMI regulations in New Jersey.

In announcing the new prices, Pete Sandfort of Garden State Farms said: "It has always been our policy to keep prices as low as possible. A new Federal Marketing Order has just reduced the prices paid to farmers for milk, and we are passing the savings on to consumers."

Sandfort estimates consumers in northern New Jersey are saving between $12 and $15 million a year on milk, at the lower store prices as compared with former store prices and today's home delivered prices. He insists that further savings could go to consumers if state controls were removed to permit free enterprise in New Jersey's milk industry.

Garden State Farms' fight for lower consumer milk prices made headlines in 1961 when it went to court to block the Office of Milk Industry from raising the price of milk to $1.13 a gallon. OMI-ordained price for milk out of stores at the time was $1.02 a gallon, one of the highest in the nation.

In October, 1962 the Milk Price Study Committee appointed by Governor Hughes recommended the suspension of milk controls. Sandfort immediately lowered the

Veterans Will Have To "Double Up" to Complete Courses

Veterans taking education or training courses under the Korean GI Bill may have to "cram" or "double up" classes to reach their goal as the deadline for completing such courses is now only one year away. This warning comes from P. M. Nugent, the VA Regional Manager in Newark.

Congress has set January 31, 1965, as the cut-off date for the Korean readjustment program of education and training for veterans.

Eligible Korean Conflict veterans who have not started their courses will now have only 12 months in which to finish them.

To be eligible for such readjustment education or training the veteran must have had active service at any time between June 27, 1950 and January 31, 1955. He must also have served at least 90 days unless discharged sooner for a disability incurred in active service.

Eligible veterans may enroll in schools or colleges, take on-the-job training, enroll in institutional on-farm training or other programs which combine school and job training or select correspondence school courses. Veterans receive an allowance each month to meet part of their training and living expenses.

First step is to obtain the necessary application forms at the VA Regional office.

On Sunday, March 1st, almost 2 million people in Northern New Jersey, including all of Passaic, Essex and Union Counties will move out to do the same thing at the same time . . . eat a tiny lump of sugar or take a tiny sip of liquid to be protected against Polio!

The Passaic County Medical Society today announced plans for a massive, county-wide attack on polio, aimed at stamping out this disease through a program of Sabin Oral Vaccine feedings to every Passaic County resident over six weeks old.

The vaccine feedings are set for March 1, April 12 and May 24, all Sundays. Feeding stations will be set up at about 60 convenient points throughout the county and supervised by physician members of the Medical Society.

The campaign will be an inclusive community effort, with a great many interested organizations and individuals joining with the Medical Society in organizing and conducting the drive.

In general charge of the project is Dr. Peter G. Berkhout, chairman of the Medical Society Immunization Committee. A group of prominent physicians and lay health leaders will serve as a steering committee to guide the campaign, in which personnel of the State Health Department and Metropolitan Health District will play a prominent part. Payment of Almost $230 Million in G.I. Insurance Dividends Now Completed

Payment of nearly $230 million in 1964 G.I. insurance dividends to some 5,000,000 veterans was completed in record time.

The report was made by John S. Gleason, Jr., Administrator of Veterans Affairs, in a visit to the White House during which the President was given the dividend check for his own G. I. policy taken out in the early days of World War II.

President Johnson last month ordered Mr. Gleason to make payment of the dividend as early as possible in January as a stimulant to the national economy.

Distribution of the dividend checks by the Veterans Administration began on January 2, and the last of the checks was placed in the mail on January 9. In New Jersey, $9,285,000 was paid to 187,000 veterans according to M. Nugent, the Regional Manager.

The fastest prior payment of dividends was made in January 1963 when the distribution of checks was completed by January 31.

The first speed payment of dividends was directed by President Kennedy in 1961. Payments in that year were completed by March 17.

Of the total 1964 dividend distribution made this month, $214,000,000 was earmarked for 4,500,000 World War II veterans holding National Service Life Insurance (NSLI) policies.

ECONOMIC HIGHLIGHTS

It has long been said that the most distasteful in this country fact that millions of capable citizens fail to vote in our elections all the way from the local to the federal level, constitutes a "national disgrace." And the common reason given for this failure is voter apathy.

That, no doubt, is an important element. But there is another factor to the problem as well. Alfred Balk deals with it in an article in the January issue of Today's Health. He finds that outmoded registration and election laws are to blame for keeping millions of eligible voters from the polls.

To quote him directly, "In 1960, it is estimated, at least 20 million Americans—half of all those of voting age who did not vote—Past statistics bear him out. The 1960 presidential election was one of the closest in history in terms of popular vote—Mr. Kennedy's margin over Mr. Nixon was under 200,000. And only 62.8 per cent of all Americans of voting age participated in it. The record is still worse in elections in which the presidency is not involved. For instance, less than half of the electorate voted in the last off-year Congressional elections.

In his attempt to find the reasons for this sad state of affairs, Mr. Balk interviewed leaders of both the major parties, various public officials, and interested organizations and groups. What seems to be a typical view came from the executive director of the American Heritage Foundation: "Despite modern communications and active party organizations which quickly make citizens aware of the issues, 37 states still require one-year residence in the state, one demands two years and 12 call for six months. County and precinct requirements often are just as unreasonable. In Philadelphia, where our constitution was born, for instance, and in other cities you can lose your vote merely by moving across the street to a new precinct a month or so before election day. This situation, to my mind, is a national scandal."

Mr. Balk also points the finger at horse-and-buggy registration procedures which may have made some sense long ago but do not now. By way of example, most states restrict registration to a central office in each county, at designated hours, and most close the rolls from a month to nine months in advance of the election —long before interest in a campaign has reached its peak.

The moral would seem to be that stepped-up campaigns to eliminate voter apathy and disinterest are needed—but, along with them, there must be determined movements to bring registration and election laws into line with the age we live in. As of now, in too many cases, they belong to an age which is forever gone.

NATIONAL YMCA WEEK

The total of "Weeks" and "Days" which we are supposed to observe each year almost approaches infinity. Some of these can be fairly called ridiculous. But there is a goodly number which deserve the fullest recognition—and National YMCA Week is most certainly one of this honorable company.

There are more than 1800 Y's across this broad land of ours, and in only 20 years the membership has doubled and reached the record figure of 3,850,000. Some 500,000 volunteer leaders—over 100 for each professional worker —today direct clubs and groups, serve on boards and committees, raise funds, secure new members, and enable the YMCA to carry out its tasks for the very modest fees charged its members.

What do the Y's offer? The answer is: Many things which make our lives healthier, happier and more meaningful. Among them: The father-son movement; health and physical fitness work; the promotion of water safety; sports and athletics; service to members of the armed services; educational courses covering a wide variety of fields; and so on down a lengthy and distinguished list. And many of its activities were the result of the organization's own inventiveness and pioneering.

The YMCA offers programs for all members of the family. Its purpose is to serve any person regardless of his ability to pay, and no one is turned away because of lack of finances. No organization more thoroughly deserves a Week in its honor.

Hans Conried to Be Featured In "Not In the Book"

PARAMUS — The ever-popular Hans Conried returns to the Playhouse on the Mall, Bergen Mall, here, on Tuesday, Feb. 4, in the great London hit, "Not in the Book," a hilarious murder mystery by Arthur Watkyn. The show will remain at the Mall two weeks.

It will be remembered that last season Mr. Conried delighted Playhouse audiences, playing to full houses nightly, when he starred in the laugh riot, "Take Her, She's Mine."

In "Not in the Book" the star will portray an upper middle-class English banker who becomes involved with an incident from his past resurrected by a blackmailer from Latin America.

The desperate banker comes to the conclusion that he must kill the blackmailer who can ruin his future and destroy all he holds dear. He devises many schemes to do away with him. Just as the villain arrives at the front door the banker has discovered that he cannot kill and opens the door to his enemy. At that moment the black mailing senor drops dead.

The questions of how he died, who pounded him, who else he was threatening, and others lead to the ending of amusement. Supporting Mr. Conried will be Maureen Hurley as the wife; C. K. Alexander as the blackmailing Senor James; Keith Herrington as the Scotland Yard Inspector; and Claude Horton as a bumbling colonial Bishop. Charles Olson will direct. Sets are by Robert Conley.

"Not in the Book" will run through Sunday, Feb. 16. Evening performances are Tuesdays thru Fridays at 8:30, Saturdays at 5:30 and 9, Sundays at 7:30; and midweek matinees are Thursdays at 2.

'Duncan Hines' Becomes Associated With N.J. Bank

Today marks the day that "Duncan Hines" becomes associated with New Jersey Bank and Trust Company through the Bank's institution of a gigantic "Cookware Club Promotion."

Briefly, all present or new customers depositing an amount of $25 or more to a new or existing savings or personalized checking account receive as a free gift a "Duncan Hines" 9-qt. stainless steel, noiseless one quart saucepan with lid, a $5.75 value.

With each subsequent deposit of $25 or more, customers may purchase one additional cookware item at a substantial discount. For instance, a 12" 3-qt. stainless steel, noiseless fry pan with cover which retails for $11.95 can be bought through NJB's Cookware Club for just $7.95, thereby saving $4.00. A 10 cup stainless steel and walnut coffee maker, electric, which retails for $39.95 may be purchased for $25.95, at a $16.00 saving. There are 26 regular and optional cookware items being made available by the Bank to its customers at drastically reduced prices. Every piece has evoked the admiration of homemakers.

The unique feature of the "Duncan Hines" Club which is expected to command national acclaim is that the free gift item is given to the customer at the Bank and all other items purchased are delivered to the customer's home free of charge by United Parcel Service. This makes it possible for accounts to be handled by mail through the entire state and metropolitan area, since all NJB customers and those who enroll in the club are able to bank by mail.

The program will terminate on April 2, 1965, at which time Cookware Club members are expected to have on deposit a minimum of $25 for each item received free or through purchase. If not, a nominal service charge of $1.00 will be levied at that time to liquidate the cost of the free gift and its handling.

A Penalty and a Premium

[illegible] of the many things that can be said for the [illegible] profit motive [illegible] that it forces private enterprise into making the best and most productive possible use of its facilities.

A particularly interesting example of this is found in a story released by Pan American World Airways. Pan Am inaugurated the jet age five years ago and its world-wide routes cover [illegible] miles. Each of its jet clippers speeds up to 13 hours a day in the air. A jet never tires. Passengers come and go, along with fresh crews. But with proper servicing and maintenance the jet goes on and on. Parts are replaced on a predetermined schedule and a jet is, in effect, always new.

In one month one of the company's intercontinental jets accomplished 430 hours actual flight time despite two periods of extensive servicing. That means it flew 133,000 air miles, which is the equivalent of nearly three-quarters of the way to the moon.

This kind of efficiency is necessary if the tremendous costs connected with acquiring and operating the jets are to be covered at fares people can and will pay and if some kind of a profit is to be left over for those whose savings made the company possible. And, [illegible] this kind of operation is totally unknown in government or in [illegible] where the profit motive [illegible] [illegible]

There Is Public Misunderstandings Of National Rifle Assn. On Firearms

There appears to be a public misunderstanding concerning the position of the National Rifle Association of America on firearms legislation in general and the "Dodd Bill" in particular. There seems to be a feeling that the NRA opposes all firearms legislation as a matter of course. Such is not the case.

The NRA strongly supports legislation calling for severe, mandatory punishment of persons convicted of a crime involving any weapon, be it knife, gun or other instrument.

Too, the NRA has long supported legislation that will effectively prevent firearms from falling into the hands of unsupervised juveniles, criminals, habitual drunkards, narcotic addicts, mental incompetents and fugitives from justice.

The NRA supports the concept that the illegal use of firearms, and not the ownership of firearms for legitimate purposes, should be the subject of legislation. Our citizens are not denied the right of assembly for fear that a riot will follow, nor are we forbidden to speak freely for fear that we may do harm in speaking. Why, then, should the right to "keep and bear arms" be denied law-abiding citizens for fear that a criminal may use a firearm illegally?

Laws pertaining to concealed weapons are supported by the NRA. Only those citizens who have a definite need to carry concealed weapons should be licensed for this purpose. At the same time, the NRA opposes legislation requiring a citation to fulfill the requirements for a concealed weapon in order to own a fire arm or use it for legitimate purposes. The words "to keep and bear arms" do not mean that any person may carry concealed weapons at his pleasure or without consent of the proper authorities.

The NRA has, and will, oppose the registration and licensing of all firearms. Such legislation does not prevent, or even deter, criminals from arming themselves, does not reduce crime and, in fact, only imposes an unnecessary bureaucratic burden on the law-abiding citizen. There are adequate laws on the books to enable police to trace firearms. The provisions of the Federal Firearms Act enabled the FBI to rapidly trace the rifle that was employed on the vile murder of President Kennedy. This, in spite of the fact that the rifle was obtained through fraud and deceit.

For several years the National Rifle Association has worked closely with Senator Dodd and the Senate Subcommittee on Juvenile Delinquency in drafting the original bill, which was introduced on August 2, 1963, to amend the Federal Firearms Act. This close coordination and exchange of views continues.

The Dodd Bill, as it stands today, is not being opposed by the NRA, as its provisions are in accordance with the long-standing policy of NRA. Should other amendments, not in accord with NRA policy, be proposed, the NRA, its 612,000 members and 11,000 affiliated clubs, will vigorously oppose the inclusion of such amendments.

It is certain that anti-firearm sentiment will remain a vital problem for some time. Regardless of what the U.S. Congress may ultimately do in the way of Federal legislation, it is certain that many state legislatures will attempt solutions of one kind or another. Nothing in the present crisis has changed the fundamental policy of the National Rifle Association of America with respect to the purchase, possession and use of firearms by law-abiding American citizens for lawful purposes.

WORLD'S FAIR —NEWS—

In response to inquiries, the New York World's Fair 1964-1965 Corporation makes the following statement concerning termination of The World of Food lease.

The termination of this lease was not capricious or arbitrary. The Fair was compelled to act when engineering reports made it evident that the building at best was not going to be ready until long after the opening day of the Fair on April 22, 1964, and financial reports indicated that it might never be completed because of lack of sound financing, orderly procedure and compliance with schedules.

The World of Food was planned as a multiple exhibit building for food exhibitors not otherwise represented in the Fair. Its site was at the main entrance of the Fair.

The entrepreneurs of this exhibit repeatedly requested, and were granted, extensions of time to raise funds and rearrange the construction program. They were notified that they were in default on their lease as far back as August of 1963. Ever since, they have been assuring the Fair's management that financing would be forthcoming but have utterly failed to deliver upon these assurances.

In September of 1963, The World of Food signed an amendment to its lease acknowledging that it was in default and granting the Fair Corporation an absolute right to terminate the lease.

Space is available to accommodate former exhibitors of The World of Food in other multiple pavilions and the Fair has offered to facilitate such arrangements.

The newest type of signs[illegible] sign to appear is the one that reads "Fasten Seat Belts."

WASHINGTON NEWS

THE INDOOR COW

Elsie the Cow was a stellar attraction of the 1939-1940 New York World's Fair and advance indications are that she or more accurately her current successor—will be again. The Borden exhibit at the Better Living Center at the 1964-1965 New York World's Fair will once more be built around the world's most beautiful bovine.

The Center is the largest building in the Fair's industrial section and the third largest building at the entire Fair—larger even than the Federal Pavilion, the showcase of the United States government.

Borden, as a prime exhibitor in the quarter-million square foot building, will have a sizeable display for Elsie: enough acreage for an indoor meadow and an indoor cow.

And there is the sad note. We are so rapidly switching from an agrarian to an urban society that Borden realizes that a cow can be a stellar attraction. Admittedly, it is a glamor-cow and one chosen in nationwide bovine beauty contest. Admittedly, the exhibit will be beautifully mounted in the largest industrial building. Admittedly, the Borden exhibit will seek to entertain rather than to sell. But Elsie is still the star.

We remember sadly a time when the cow was the commonplace and a World's Fair was visited to see industrial and mechanical wonders.

MAN WITHOUT A COUNTRY

Edward Everett Hale's famous short story, "The Man Without a Country," has just passed its 100th birthday. While most other tales of the same age are forgotten, still going strong is this narrative of the anguish and death of a soldier named Philip Nolan, condemned to lonely exile aboard ship because he cursed the United States and said he wished never again to hear the name of his country.

How the story was inspired by an Ohio politician exiled to the Confederacy by President Lincoln is recounted by Tom Mahoney in a January American Legion Magazine article, "The Original Man Without a Country." The politician, Clement L. Vallandigham, is forgotten but the tale lives.

As meaningful today as a century ago is the hero's advice to the midshipman: "And for your country, boy, and for that flag, never dream a dream but of serving her as she bids you, though the service carry you through a thousand hells.

"No matter what happens to you, no matter who flatters you or who abuses you, never look at another flag, never let a night pass but you pray to God to bless that flag."

Mr. Mahoney's commentary on the centennial of "The Man Without a Country" could hardly be more timely or pertinent. There could be no better time to ponder this historic fable than today, when that conglomeration known as the "United Nations" in which our enemies outnumber our friends, and whose purposes are aided and abetted by a shocking number of our so called "leaders" —is striving tirelessly to put all of us in the position of the unhappy Philip Nolan.

RICH—BUT BROKE

The US economy, our President tells us, achieved an all-time altitude record in 1963 with a total GNP of $585 billion! To get it still higher this year, he is telling Congress, these public servants need only to hurry up and pass the $11 billion tax reduction bill. This, he thinks, will reduce unemployment which is still reported at 5.5 per cent of the work-force, and at the same time push US industrial production above 87 per cent of capacity where it now stands.

All this sounds mighty fine. But still, it seems a little odd and more than a little disturbing when we consider that we are still unable with record-breaking prosperity to pay the cost of Government. Nor does anyone figure that Federal income next year will meet the $97.9 billion budget the President will ask for—even if that GNP does zoom still higher, and even if it pays back some of that $11 billion he wants invested in a half-baked tax reduction plan.

To confuse the picture a little more, Mr. Johnson is concerned about millions of Americans who, we are told, are living in direct poverty. And something must be done about that. One thing is to bring more classes of worker under the Federal Minimum Wage —which would mean that many who would not be economically productive at a higher wage rate would be out of jobs.

We are reminded somehow of the small boy who returned from school and insisted that: "Two plus two equals purple." Perhaps it's that new arithmetic they use in Washington. It looks purple from here.

Car Of The Year...

Ford Lines Get Award

DETROIT, MICH.— The four car lines of Ford Motor Company's Ford Division — Falcon, Fairlane, Ford and Thunderbird — have been presented the "Car of the Year Award" for 1964 by Motor Trend Magazine.

Charles E. Nerpel, editor and publisher, made the announcement here following several months of evaluation of all 1964 models. This marks the first time in recent years that Motor Trend has awarded its coveted "Car of the Year Award" to all car lines of one automotive division.

In presenting the 1961 trophy to Lee A. Iacocca, left, Ford Motor Company Vice President and Ford Division General Manager, Mr. Nerpel said this year's award was made to Ford Division for "engineering advancement in the concept of total performance, based on high performance testing in open competition."

WORLD'S FAIR - NEWS -

Michelangelo's world - famous "Pieta" is scheduled to arrive in New York from Rome on April 13 enroute to the Vatican Pavilion at the Fair. Preparations for moving the masterpiece, which will leave Saint Peter's Basilica for the first time since its creation 465 years ago, are even more elaborate than those made for the recent American visit of the "Mona Lisa."

The statue, carved from a single slab of Carrara marble, will first be insured for a record $10-million. Then wrapped in thick padding and secured in three casings—one inside the other and each designed to float—it will be moved under guard from Rome to Naples, where it will be placed on board the liner Cristoforo Colombo on April 4. Once in New York, the statue will be brought to Flushing Meadow along a special route planned in meetings between Fair officials and the City Police and Traffic Departments.

...leads the nation in community planning!

Sound and orderly development is a fundamental objective of progressive communities and is now an important part of local government in New Jersey. With the state's rapid economic and population growth it has become important to "balance" a community's structure. Eighty-five per cent of New Jersey's 568 municipalities have established planning boards, 243 have completed and 168 have adopted master plans, 243 New Jersey municipalities have participated in the federal-state "701" planning program and 18 of New Jersey's 21 counties have official planning boards. New Jersey in 1950 became the first state in the nation to have a statewide development plan. What does all this planning mean? With New Jersey's excellent access to markets, its modern transportation facilities and large supply of skilled labor, enlightened planning also provides space for industrial expansion. Through the master plan, then, industry is encouraged, not displaced, and its citizens profit through the economic growth of our state.

KNOW YOUR GOVERNMENT

A $10,000,000,000 PROBLEM

Like the proverbial "tail that wagged the dog," Federal grants-in-aid programs, conceived originally as assisting and strengthening state and local governments, are now seen as exerting tremendous influence upon their activities.

At hearings before the U. S. Senate's Subcommittee on Intergovernmental Operations last week, Edward Staples, chairman of the National Taxpayers Conference, cited the "need for a thoroughgoing and continuing review of the large and growing network of Federal grant programs."

Placing their costs this year at more than $10 billion (nearly four times the $2.6 billion expenditures of 1954), he estimated that Federal payments now represent as much as 21 per cent of total state and local revenues in a few states. They influence 71 per cent of total activities of state governments according to the Council of State Governments.

"These programs," Staples said, "involve fundamental issues in Federal-State-local relationships. They affect State and local budgetary decisions. They sometimes cause administrative problems within State and local governments. It is even quite possible that Federal aid, or the promise of it, has postponed or otherwise adversely affected State-local decisions to meet important needs of their citizens."

The Taxpayers Conference chairman supported the objectives of Senate Bill 2114 sponsored by Senator Muskie of Maine and 30 others including Senator Clifford P. Case of New Jersey. This calls for periodic review of new Federal grants programs. In addition, he expressed the hope that the attention currently being focused upon the Federal aid problem "might open the door to establishment of some sound procedure for reviewing the entire grant-in-aid structure"—and its $10,000,000,000 cost.

Supporting the National Conference chairman, the New Jersey Taxpayers Association also expressed the hope that "the principle of review will be extended to include all Federal aid programs, both new and old." The Association in its 1964 Platform and Program calls for "sound federal finance" including "reduction of Federal subsidies to state and local government, business and agriculture." Latest statistics show that Federal "aid" dollars cost New Jersey taxpayers an average of $1.80 for each $1 in such grants distributed in the State.

Census to Check Buying Intentions In Local Area

In addition to obtaining information on employment and unemployment U. S. Census Bureau interviewers will ask about intentions to buy autos, houses and household equipment when they visit families in this area this week.

Answers to similar questions asked last October revealed people were planning to buy these items at a high rate, according to Director Jack W. Traver, Jr. of the Bureau's New York Regional Office. The present survey will show whether the trend is likely to continue.

Census interviewers have asked questions on buying intentions quarterly for the past five years. At first the Federal Reserve Board issued reports on these surveys but for the past year the Census Bureau has collected the data, and also issued the final reports. Statistics from these reports are useful to Government officials and to private economists in assessing the current state of the economy. The current high level of purchase of new cars was indicated by statistics in previous reports.

The questions on buying intentions will be asked in half of the households interviewed for the Current Population Survey through which the Bureau collects the official Government statistics on total employment and unemployment for the U.S. Department of Labor. Some 33,000 families in 357 selected areas throughout the United States are interviewed each month by Census interviewers. NEW CASH for Old Cloth Coats!

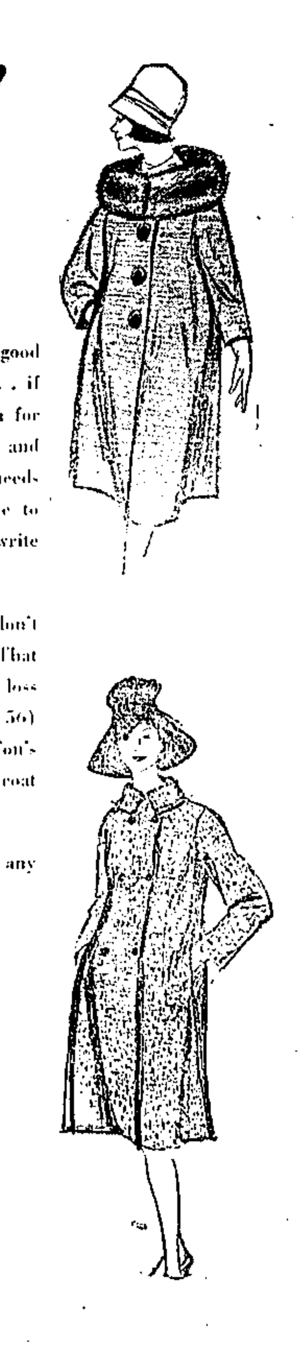
is that any way to run a business?

YOU BET IT IS!



True, some of our friends think we're foolish to give away good hard cash for old cloth coats. But we say . . . look here . . . if trade-in works with cars why not coats? You buy them both for good service and good looks from a good dealer—right . . . and a good coat like a good car has a life span. After awhile it needs replacing. 'Til now chances are you thought you'd just have to keep wearing your old coat 'til it was disreputable and then write it off.

But now, NOW Bon Ton comes to the rescue! Now we cry don't do that! We'll take that old coat as a trade-in on a new coat. That way you'll not have to cross off your old garment as a total loss and you'll get a head start on that brand new coat (sizes 6 to 56) you've been yearning for. You'll confidently hurry to Bon Ton's for the largest trade-in allowance possible on the best new coat buy of your life!

Yes ma'am, car trade-ins work—why not coat trade-ins. Is this any way to run a business?

YOU BET IT IS!

New Fleet Of 162 Transit Cars Purchased By P.A.

The purchase of a new fleet of 162 aluminum, air-conditioned rapid transit cars of the most modern design to replace the antiquated "black cars" equipment of the former Hudson and Manhattan System was authorized by the Port Authority Trans-Hudson (PATH) Corporation.

Delivery of the first new cars under a $16,850,000 contract is expected late in 1964, with all cars on the tracks by mid-1965. When all of the new cars have been put into service, PATH will have the first completely air-conditioned rail rapid transit fleet in the United States. The 56-year-old interstate line carries 100,000 passengers daily between Newark, Jersey City, Hoboken, and terminals in lower and mid-Manhattan.

PATH, a subsidiary of the Port Authority, assumed responsibility for operation of the former Hudson & Manhattan Railroad on September 1, 1962, as part of the unified bi-state port development project designed to rehabilitate the transit system and construct a World Trade Center in mid-Manhattan.

The Hudson & Manhattan commuter railroad, which has been serving New York and New Jersey commuters for understandably a long time, with multi-million dollar projects for rehabilitation and modernization [illegible] completed a quarter-century of service [illegible] system which had been in [illegible] operation prior to [illegible] for over seven years.

In addition to the design and purchase of a fleet of new, air-conditioned passenger cars, the program includes construction of a new Hudson Terminal in lower Manhattan and an improved PATH station at Journal Square as the core of a proposed new transportation center in Jersey City. All other passenger stations in New York and New Jersey will be renovated. The signal system will be improved to assure faster, more dependable service; the utility systems, particularly the electric power supply and tunnel drainage facilities, will be rehabilitated; and the maintenance shops and car yards will be renovated.
