Municipal Pool Suffering From Growing Pains

A number of stories have been circulating about the municipal pool. We are publishing them because we believe they will be accepted as a constructive criticism and if true, steps will be taken to correct them and restore the excellent standing of our pool since its inauguration.

First, the conduct of some of the life guards, who seem more interested in socializing than in the more serious duty of life-saving.

Secondly, the "horse-play" such as ducking and throwing of small children into the deep end of the pool, without any admission from those in charge.

And in the third place many residents are wondering what all the out-of-towners are doing at the Municipal Pool this year ... wearing season badges. The pool was originally constructed for use by borough residents only and their guests. The latter have to obtain a daily badge.

We know Commissioner Rosen has done a fine job on administration of the pool facilities, and we believe that if these inconsistencies exist he will correct them immediately.

FASHIONS IN EUROPE

By IRIS HARTMAN

PARIS—Hurry, hurry, hurry! Paris keeps changing. Anyone wanting to see the Paris we all have heard about, read about and dreamed about, had better hurry before it's too late.

Hurry, because it is those things we always heard about to romanticize that are having to go. The sidewalk cafes, the corner flower stands, the broad avenues, the trees and many other charms are making way for the motorized present. Even the famous Parisian boulevards, made famous by poets and poets have lost out. We have a silence campaign. And each time we return to Paris we find more snare bars, juke boxes and traffic. What is a Frenchman? Why, a person who likes to talk and to eat more than anyone else in the world, of course.

What is more un-French than a silence campaign?

That's easy. The snare bar. But many Paris restaurants are disappearing to make way for the snare bar. So you can hear the snare bar, hurry, hurry!

Who would have dreamed that the coming back to Paris after only a matter of weeks you would find our little hotel

ECONOMIC HIGHLIGHTS

Dr. Robert Wilson, chairman of the Board of Standard Oil of Indiana, was the commencement speaker at Hastings College graduation exercises. His young listeners heard some wise and important words.

He made it clear that he does not share the belief, "too common among businessmen today, that our colleges and universities are hotbeds of communism or socialism." But he did express concern that "our students are too much inclined to take for granted the wonderful advantages they enjoy" and that "too few seem to emerge with real enthusiasm for the American way of life and its amazing achievements." This is especially disturbing at a time when the Communists seem to have found a way to distort the truth and propaganda while generations of their youth into apparently enthusiastic support of dictatorial regimes which oppress the individual, pluri brute force, deny individualism and deny even the most basic of human rights.

Then he came to the heart of the matter: "We must do more as individuals to turn to the government for assistance, and have a better understanding of what we have to do to get it and what we must do to preserve it. And we must make sure that our schools build ideals as well as intelligence. And, the paper says, they build knowledge. There is nothing more important in the world today than high intelligence coupled with low ideals."

This couple has brought on a series of the most destructive wars in history. It has led to the enslavement of entire peoples. It has made, in much of the world, a concept on which Christian civilization and individual freedom have been built. Dr. Wilson's warning could not be more timely. Every now and then some American community finds itself in deep economic trouble—a possibility that is greatest in areas which are heavily dependent on one industrial company or one farm crop for their livelihood. Then, as the Wall Street Journal points out, varied courses of community action are open. A community can turn to the government for assistance, and have a better understanding of what we have to do to get it and what we must do to preserve it. And we must make sure that our schools build ideals as well as intelligence. And, the paper says, they build knowledge. There is nothing more important in the world today than high intelligence coupled with low ideals."

Another course of action is to work and solve its problems by its own efforts. An outstanding example of this is South Bend, Ind., where John D. Williams, assistant president of the Wall Street Journal, tells what has been done.

For a century, South Bend was pretty much a one-company town and Studebaker (now Studebaker-Packard) was doing well. It was doing well. It Studebaker suffered hard times and the pay roll, the town felt that in its hands was a life line.

Studebaker, together with some other motor companies, has been undergoing financial straits. According to Mr. Williams, "the toughest time of its history." South Bend naturally hoped the company will come back and prosper. But, important as Studebaker is to South Bend, it is no longer the dominant factor. The change in attitude stems from the fact that South Bend is not now a one-company town. Some three years ago a committee was established and a delegation was sent to Birmingham, Ala., to study that city's extremely successful booster group. Then $200,000 was raised to promote the South Bend area "as a good place for new business."

The going was easy. In the first year, not even one new company was gained. A blow was suffered when the Singer Manufacturing Company moved elsewhere. The committee redoubled its efforts.

Having looked upon this particular printer as a distinct phenomenon, we are situated at the discovery that there are upwards of 20,000 half office workers in the country who share his philosophy. They are trained secretaries, stenographers, bookkeepers, office managers and file clerks, every sort of worker any office might need. They are women and men, young and old, college girls and grandmothers. Some want to work in summer, some in winter, some a couple of weeks a year and some who have an itch foot want to work "somewhere else" every few weeks or months.

Their average age is on the sunny side of 40, and most of them are looking for a change of scene. They are not looking for a change of scene. They are not looking for a change of scene. They are not looking for a change of scene.

ANYBODY HERE SEEN KELLY?

Every newspaper office is familiar with the "tramp printer," and so by now are most newspaper readers. It is usually a high-spirited, widely experienced typewriter, by hand or machine, or both, and an able "yes" operator. He is not a writer, as well, and almost always a phlegmatic. But he won't stay put. He is fabled about avoiding the rat that most of us find comfort in.

A Sack of Groceries

Just how good were the good old days of some 50 years ago, when prices were much lower for practically everything than they are now?

The Sun, of Saratoga, Wyoming, has something interesting to say in this regard. Back in the '90s, round steak sold for 12 cents a pound, butter for a quarter, and a loaf of bread went for a nickel. The cost of the grocery order which came to 85 cents then would be about $2.98 today.

So it looks as if we were taking a fearful beating, price-wise. However, as the Sun points out, there is another side to the coin. Government figures show that a worker who averaged 16 cents an hour in the '90s averaged $1.88 last year. So, to quote the Sun directly, "The factory worker who bought the lot of staples in the 1890s would have worked about 5 hours and 20 minutes for the money it took to pay the bill. Today he can earn enough for the same sack of groceries in about an hour and a half."

The situation would be generally the same in the case of goods other than food. Many costs have contributed to this great increase in purchasing power. One of the important ones has been the change in retailing itself. Mass distribution—based on big turnover by a very small unit profit—was unknown in the '90s. The percentage of profit on each transaction was far higher then. Today the food chains commonly earn as little as one cent net on each dollar of sales; other stores also earn very modest profits. That helps the family budget immensely.

lignous groups, local organizations and the state and local judiciary in this specially individualized field of human welfare."

Washington, D. C., AFL-CIO President George Meany underscored his emphasis on high standards for union officials when he endorsed LORU President David Dubinsky's criticisms of those few labor leaders who somehow compromise their union work with high-profit private business connections. "Trade unions," he Washington bureaucrats can or pointed out, "were created for one very simple purpose—to build up experienced workers of our re-

WOGAN'S ALLEY

THE NEWSPAPER post a commonplace fellow. The humbler may know what his poetry means, but clearness is treason, and so, for this reason, he never gets into the big magazines.

EXPERIENCE PAYS OFF 50 years later for Charlie Winninger, who plays Charles Farrell's father on the latter's TV show. In a current script Winninger is called "Mr. Hoot," a show he once did on radio. Covering a time when he was a stand-in for the actor, he says, "It is good to know that you were in the picture."

Winninger, who has been in the business for 50 years, says, "I am glad to be in the picture. It is good to know that you were in the picture."

His view was echoed by Freeholder Maurice Kruger, who said the county had no choice but to take it over since the two municipalities did not want it.

Cemetery is Full Of Drivers
(Continued From Page One) walkers constantly diverge these sidewalks—frequently showing away their own lives in the process. This is a matter of record. Statistics show that in most traffic accidents there is some violation of the law or of safe driving or walking rules.

Observance of the "Signs of Life" and the law and common sense rules they represent could save many of these lives. And common sense should take a driver or walker beyond the mere observation of the letter of the law.

"You can be killed driving across an intersection on a through street, if a driver on the intersecting street doesn't realize you have the right of way. Similarly, you can be struck crossing the street on foot even though you have the green light. In either case it will be no comfort to you or your relatives that the law was on your side."

"Safe walking or driving for any individual should include observance of the following rules: 1—Know the 'Signs of Life' by their shapes so you can recognize them on sight. Obey them immediately."

You and Cancer

Cancer is curable, if detected in time. The best weapon is to learn and heed the Seven Danger Signals. Send your requests for information to the American Cancer Society, New Jersey Division, 9 Clinton Street, Newark 2, New Jersey. If the request does not involve personal medical problems, which must be taken up with your family doctor, or professional at literature, the necessary information and literature will be forwarded to you without cost.

Q. Are cancer treatments expensive?

A. Due to the fact that clinic visits and medications are most expensive because of the type of treatment and the duration of the case generally a hospital cure is a great financial burden. However everything depends on the type of cancer and what has to be done to treat it.

Q. What progress is being made in cancer research?

A. Through funds contributed by the American Cancer Society more and more scientists are working in the fields of chemistry, physics and surgery. Many new avenues of investigation have been opened. The outlook for the finding of the cause is hopeful but the goal is in the future. So give what you can so that the path to the goal may be shortened.

Q. What is the best weapon in the fight against cancer?

A. Periodic visits to your family doctor and knowing and heeding the Seven Danger Signals of cancer.

FASHIONS IN EUROPE

By IRIS HARTMAN
MALLORCA—A morning of shopping in Palma properly finishes the big square market building. They are for flowers, wood and wicker.

To reach the flower market you must walk through a dangerous and gay street lined with colorful shops. There are no sidewalks, it is wide enough for a car if the pedestrians flatten themselves against the storefronts. Occasionally a huge American car crashes through and we all duck into doorways.

A dozen flower stands are lined up under big umbrellas in the Plaza Mayor with about twice that many women in attendance. Their offerings are all the same: all sell whatever is in bloom at the time. The sun is strong and even and both flowers and women are drooping. We buy armfuls of large, five-inch, colorful daisies at five cents each.

We must stop at the "carbonera" for wood. Our kitchen stove has a great appetite for olive wood. I suppose someone has blackened old gourmet of a cook stove those chips of hard, brown

Electric Hot-bed Rival of Greenhouse for Garden

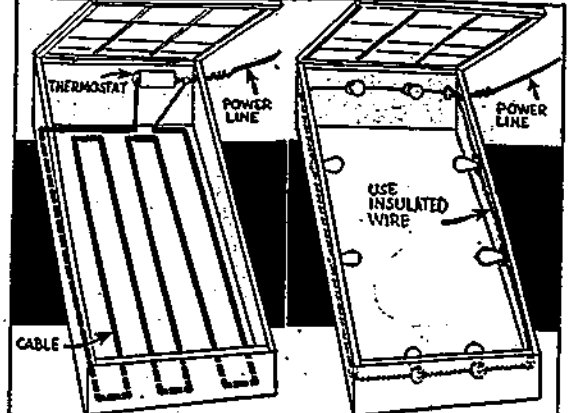

The woodman is out with his horse and open cart on a delivery. We decide to carry enough wood for a week home in our car. The venerable "beastie" has no taste for small gas and finds electric current shocking.

The woodman is out with his horse and open cart on a delivery. We decide to carry enough wood for a week home in our car. The venerable "beastie" has no taste for small gas and finds electric current shocking.

We are struck at seeing various young girls on their knees scrubbing floors for a living. We are accustomed to having them work done by old women, the army of charwomen who take over our office buildings and hotels at night. I have never seen this before.

Our last stop and best is the visit to the "bodega" for wine. It may go something like this: After greeting you cordially, the proprietor will ask what you would like today. You might say you think you would like some white wine, perhaps the cheapest. She fills a glass from a large barrel and hands it to you to taste, telling you it costs two pesetas a liter or five cents for a little over a quart.

Drinking the glass you decide to try the better quality and finally the best. Next you work on Either Electric Cable, or Lamp Can Be Used to Heat Hot-bed.

Planting can be started earlier, and is protected for a longer period, without danger of frost. The electric hot-bed is an ideal for the gardener who has no space for a greenhouse. It is a small quantity of heat is necessary to keep temperatures in a hot-bed above the danger point in spring. It is usually less expensive to use electricity for this purpose than the traditional method.

With an inexpensive thermostat, the heat is turned on or off according to the need; and the plants growing in the hot-bed can be kept at a steady temperature, without the extreme fluctuations which were common where manure was used.

on top of the cotter ones at ten cents a quart you get busy sampling the sherry and cognac.

You finally find the doorway and leave in an extremely happy state, having spent about a dollar, brought about six quarts of liquid and having consumed at least another quart in samples.

HEALTH HINTS

DON'T BE FOOLISHLY POLITE

Certainly nowadays politeness is not regularly overdone. In fact, if politeness were more generally practiced many of the dreadful tensions and frictions of life would be eliminated. Nevertheless, under certain circumstances it is folly to be polite—for instance, in the matter of accepting invitations to ride with inept or reckless car drivers.

The automobile, which was intended as a convenience to man, has come to be a juggernaut that maims and kills. In most cases not the cars but the drivers are at fault. To ride with certain types of foolish or incompetent drivers is to risk your life. Yet sometimes we accept, because we fear that to refuse to ride with them would hurt their feelings.

With the annual national death toll for highway accidents approaching forty thousand, the time has come for forthright honesty of action and attitude. Your choice is to state an unpleasant truth or to put your life in very real danger. That left you are being offered may hurt you beyond time into eternity. Don't be foolish.
