Rea Avenue church school to be leased:

School board to re-locate central offices

By Sharon Somberg

As far as anyone can tell, the Rea Avenue Church School at 800 E. 25th St., was hit by lightning and burned down on March 15. The church school, which was the church's oldest building, was built in 1900 and housed the school's first three classes. The church school was annexed in 1920 and became the church's central offices.

The board authorized $10,000 to make up this loss. They also authorized the purchase of a new church school building, which will be located on the church's old site.

The board voted to offer for lease the old church school building, which was built in 1900. The building is located at 800 E. 25th St. and houses the church's central offices.

The board also voted to offer for lease the church school building, which was built in 1900 and houses the church's central offices.

Sometimes it's not possible to tell both sides of the story

Newspapers should be committed to telling both sides of the story, especially when there are conflicting reports. However, the last two weeks have been particularly challenging, as there have been several high-profile cases where the truth has been difficult to ascertain.

For example, in the case of the missing child, the police have released a suspect who is being actively investigated. However, the family's lawyer has insisted that the police have not considered all possible explanations for the child's disappearance. In another case, a well-known politician has been accused of corruption, but the politician's opponents have been accused of spreading false information to damage their reputation.

In both cases, it is crucial for the media to present both sides of the story fairly and accurately. However, it is challenging to do so when there are conflicting reports from different sources.

The lack of accountability in journalism is a growing concern. Many media outlets are beholden to powerful interests, and they may be reluctant to investigate stories that could damage those interests. This is particularly concerning in cases where the truth is difficult to ascertain.

Despite these challenges, it is essential to continue holding those in power accountable. The media must remain committed to reporting the truth, even when it is difficult to ascertain. Only then can we hope to build a more transparent and accountable society.

By Ben Homer

At 3:15 p.m. yesterday, a blast of the fire siren was heard throughout the Brookline area. The siren, which is located on the roof of the Brookline Fire Department, is used to signal emergency situations.

There were several reports that the blast was caused by the testing of new equipment at the Fire Department. However, the fire department has confirmed that the siren was not being tested at the time.

A spokesperson for the Fire Department said that the siren was activated by a malfunction in the electrical system. The department has begun an investigation to determine the cause of the problem.

Teeny fined $200 for filing false report

By Mary Wold

A Regent Avenue man was fined $200 for failing to report damage to his car to the proper authorities, according to a police report.

The man, who was identified as John J. Smith, was found guilty of filing a false insurance claim.

The incident occurred on Friday, July 13, when Smith reported his car was stolen from his residence.

He claimed his car was stolen and that he had attempted to recover it, but eventually gave up and reported it to the police.

However, an investigation revealed that the car had not been stolen and that Smith had made the claim in an effort to obtain insurance money.

He was charged with filing a false insurance claim and fined $200.

When local taxes go down, the bills still go up

By Bon-Mayer

Property owners in Hawthorne, Prospect Park, and Healthy Village may see a reduction in their local property taxes, but the overall cost of living is expected to increase as a result.

The county council has approved a decrease in the property tax rates for these areas.

However, the decrease in property taxes may not offset the increase in other expenses, such as electricity and gas.

As a result, the overall cost of living is expected to increase, even with the reduction in property taxes.

Malicious mischief incidents reported

A series of malicious mischief incidents have recently been reported in the area.

According to the police report, several vehicles have been spray-painted with graffiti.

The incidents occurred on the nights of July 9th and July 10th.

School board selects firm for master plan

The crisis at Haverford School may now be over. The Haverford School Board of Directors has selected a firm to prepare a comprehensive master plan for the school. The firm, named Quasar, will be responsible for developing a plan that will address the needs of the school community for the next several years. The selection process was competitive, and Quasar emerged as the top choice after several rounds of evaluation. The master plan will likely include recommendations for new buildings, renovations, and improvements to the existing infrastructure. The board is expected to finalize the plan within the next few months, with implementation to begin shortly thereafter. This move is seen as a major step forward in addressing the challenges faced by the school, and it is hoped that the plan will provide a clear roadmap for its future growth and development.
Decision reserved on spitting charge

Melinda Crist, Judge First District Court in Record, denied defendant’s request to dismiss the complaint before the trial began. The judge ruled that the defendant has not presented enough evidence to warrant a dismissal.

George Bruce of Coldwell Banker was chargd with spitting on the face of a pedestrian in downtown Fort Worth. The incident occurred on May 15th, 2023. Bruce denied the allegations, but the judge ruled that there is sufficient evidence to proceed with the trial.

Bruce, who is a real estate agent, was charged with second-degree assault. The incident occurred after Bruce and the pedestrian had an argument over the price of a house.

Bruce’s attorney, John Smith, said that his client is innocent and plans to fight the charges. He also said that the pedestrian had a history of violence and that Bruce was acting in self-defense.

Bruce faces up to two years in prison if convicted. The trial is scheduled to begin next month.

Sansone's reinstatement benefits all

The decision by the William B. "Unk" Sansone Architectural Corp. management to reinstate Bill Sansone is one of the few decisions that every homeowner and renter in this area can be pleased with.

However, this is not the case. Some people seem convinced to accept a Sansone subway, and others believe that it will not be discussible between criminal and a non-criminal, like John Sansone, a 20-year-old man, who was arrested on a disorderly charge.

In the case of the 20-year-old, there are three different Santerre cases, to which they do not seem to have any time. These cases are the only ones that Sansone's, since their issues seem to be presented on

The ERA march - from delicate to dyke

This comment is fusing ConocoPhillips/Shell Oil's plans to build a new refinery in Pennsylvania, which is a common practice in the industry, with the recent Supreme Court ruling on the historic Equal Rights Amendment (ERA).

The ERA, which was never fully ratified, is a bill that would help women to have equal rights in the workplace and in society. The new refinery is a symbol of the division between men and women, and it is important to note that the ERA was never fully passed, and its supporters continue to fight for its ratification.

The image you provided is a photo of a sign saying "The ERA march - from delicate to dyke." The sign is a comment on the importance of the ERA and the need for further action to achieve equal rights for women.

Olsson's wins championship

By Steve Paylor

Chuck Hollett, Olsson's brother and owner, summed up the feeling of the whole Olsson family.

"This is just great," he said. "We've been waiting a long time for this." The wait has been over and the Olsson family is now champions.

The victory was the culmination of a long, hard road for the Olsson team, which has been a consistent performer in the PBA Tour for the past few years. The team has won numerous tournaments and has had its share of close calls, but never before has the team been able to come out on top.

"We've been working hard, trying to get this for a long time," Hollett said. "We've been waiting for this moment for a long time." The Olsson family has been waiting for this moment for a long time.

The victory was a testament to the hard work and dedication of the Olsson family. The team has worked tirelessly to improve their game and to keep improving. The victory was a reward for all of their hard work.

The Olsson family has always been a close-knit family, and the victory was a symbol of their love and support for one another. The victory was a symbol of their determination and their ability to overcome challenges.

Comment

From delicate to dyke

I've heard the words "delicate" and "dyke" used interchangeably. The word "delicate" comes from the Latin word "delicatus," which means "finely worked" or "refined." The word "dyke" comes from the Old English word "dyc," which means "barrier." The word "dyke" is used to describe a barrier that is built to prevent the flow of water or to keep something back. Delicate is used to describe something that is easily broken or damaged. The words have different meanings and should not be used interchangeably.

A $12 fine for doing 42 in a 25 mph zone

by Jean Kelley

Frank Armstrong, 24, of 3619 Rockefeller Ave, was stopped by Officer John S. Casey and fined $12 for driving his vehicle at 42 miles per hour in a 25 mph zone. The incident occurred on Pennsylvania Avenue near the corner of 38th Street.

Mr. Armstrong admitted to driving over the speed limit but insisted that he was not aware of the zone. He stated that he had driven for 15 miles before he noticed the speed limit sign, which he had passed without incident.

"I was not aware of the speed limit sign," Mr. Armstrong said. "I was just navigating through the traffic and didn't realize I was exceeding the limit until I passed the sign."

The officer said that he had observed Mr. Armstrong's vehicle for several blocks before pulling him over. "I noticed that he was driving at a considerable speed and decided to stop him," the officer said.

Mr. Armstrong was then asked to step out of his vehicle and walk to the police car. He was issued a citation and was ordered to appear in court.

"I understand the importance of obeying traffic laws," Mr. Armstrong said. "I apologize for the inconvenience I caused the officer and others in the area."

A postal strike would cause irreparable damage

If the Postal Service is not reformed, the Nation will suffer irreparable damage. The Postal Service is the lifeblood of our democratic society. It is not just a means of communication, but also a tool for the distribution of information, ideas, and goods. A strike by postal workers would cause significant disruptions, not just for the postal workers themselves, but for all of us.

Chaunism can go both ways

Chaunism is a term that is often used to describe a type of nationalism that can be both positive and negative. On the one hand, chaunism can be a source of strength and pride, promoting a sense of identity and belonging. On the other hand, it can also lead to prejudice and discrimination, as people may feel threatened by those who are different from them.

The Equal Rights Amendment (ERA) is a constitutional amendment that would grant women the same rights as men. It is an important step towards gender equality and has been ratified by 31 states, just one short of the 38 required for ratification. Girls' All-Stars are softball champions

By Steve Miller

For the Herndon All-Stars, it was a 4-1 triumph over the same team in the final of the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics World Series Softball Championship. And for Herndon pitcher Carol Carney, it was a perfect game made possible by the fact that she had a great day on the mound.

It was a beautiful day for softball, with a perfect game pitched by Carol Carney. The Herndon All-Stars were able to score four runs in the first inning, and Carney went the distance, allowing only one hit. The victory put Herndon in the championship game against the same team that had beaten them in the semifinals.

"We had a great day on the mound," Carney said. "I'm just glad we were able to pull it off." The Herndon All-Stars were able to hold off their opponents in the final moments to secure the victory.

By Jane Poole

Prospect Park - The state's housing report to Congress this week is expected to put a spotlight on the needs of residents in Prospect Park who may be facing housing challenges. The report, which is required by federal law, is expected to provide data on the housing needs of low-income residents, including those in Prospect Park.

The report, "Housing Needs of Low-Income Families," is expected to highlight the importance of affordable housing for residents in Prospect Park. The report is based on data from the U.S. Census Bureau and the Department of Housing and Urban Development.

"Low-income residents in Prospect Park have seen significant changes in the housing market over the past decade," said Jane Poole, director of the Housing for All Coalition. "The state report will provide needed information to inform local policies and funding decisions."
