Audit report received by Board of Education

Twenty ninety, the Board of Education of the City of Hawthorne, New Jersey, met in regular session to receive the audit report for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1970. The meeting was held in the Board of Education office located at 120 Broadway, Hawthorne, New Jersey.

The report was presented by Mr. John Smith, the city's auditor. Mr. Smith stated that the audit was conducted in accordance with generally accepted auditing standards. The report included an examination of the city's financial statements, internal control, and compliance with laws and regulations.

The report was accepted by the Board of Education and was subsequently adopted by resolution.

Resident witnesses B & E

A group of residents, including Mr. and Mrs. Johnson, appeared before the Board of Education to express their concerns about the proposed building expansion for the Hawthorne High School. They argued that the expansion would result in increased traffic and noise in their neighborhood.

The Board of Education listened to the residents' concerns and discussed them with the Superintendent of Schools. The Superintendent assured the residents that the expansion would be designed to minimize any negative impact on the neighborhood.

Garbage contract re-bid

Due to budget cuts, the city of Hawthorne is considering re-bidding the garbage collection contract. A request for proposals was issued on September 1, 1970, and proposals are due by September 15, 1970. The city hopes to award a contract to the lowest bidder by October 1, 1970.

The current contract with ABC Company expires on September 30, 1970, and the city expects to save approximately $5000 per year by re-bidding the contract.

Editorial

Is it in the public's best interest to lock the police station doors?

It's hard enough that we must lock the doors to our homes at night, but it's even harder to think about the value of ensuring our church and school buildings are secure. It's a matter of security, not just for the building, but for the people who work or attend there.

This is the case with many new school buildings, where the front office is built to be secure with the doors locked and the windows closed. This is a measure to prevent theft and vandalism.

For the week of October 8th

Dear Editor,

In your March 3rd editorial, 'A better way to save,' you mentioned the new All-Savers Certificate, which provides a higher interest rate than the traditional savings accounts.

As the treasurer of the Hamilton Savings Bank, I would like to clarify some points about the new All-Savers Certificate.

Firstly, the new certificate is available in a variety of denominations, allowing for flexibility in saving.

Secondly, the interest rate is guaranteed for the term of the certificate, providing peace of mind for savers.

Lastly, the new certificate offers a higher rate than traditional savings accounts, making it an attractive option for those looking to save.

Sincerely,

Teresa Johnson
Treasurer, Hamilton Savings Bank

Astor, Meyers commented

Chester Astor, 78, a former New York mayor, took aim at Hawthorne Mayor Joseph P. Meyers, saying he was "looking for headlines" because of a proposed intergovernmental study on police services.

Astor, a member of the Astor family, which has its roots in the city, said he was concerned about the plan, saying it "smacks of the kind of thing that the mayor would do to get a headline."

Fuel-switching is no nickel-and-dime proposition.

Battling coal is the necessary evolution of changing your thinking rather than just in or out of it. We used to have the idea that our lives are energy-efficient and that the ability to turn on and off as we please means we can switch energy sources whenever we want. However, the changing nature of the world means we must think about the environment and our energy consumption in a different way.

The concept of fuel-switching involves changing our energy sources to more efficient and sustainable options. This can include switching from coal to renewable energy sources such as solar, wind, or hydroelectric power. Fuel-switching is not just a matter of using less energy; it's about using the right kind of energy.

The United States Environmental Protection Agency has reported that fuel-switching can lead to significant reductions in greenhouse gas emissions. By using clean energy sources, we can reduce our carbon footprint and help protect the environment.

In conclusion, fuel-switching is a necessary step in addressing the challenges we face. By making the switch to more sustainable energy sources, we can make a positive impact on the environment and ensure a brighter future for generations to come.

Sewer grant puts funding at 75%

The New Hampshire Power Authority (NHPA) has approved a $750,000 grant to help fund sewer projects in the state. The NHPA is a division of the New Hampshire Department of Environmental Services (DES) and is responsible for funding infrastructure projects.

The NHPA has received applications from 13 municipalities across the state for the grant. The applications are evaluated based on the community's need for sewer infrastructure and the potential environmental benefits.

The grant funds are provided through the Federal Highway Infrastructure Program (FHIP) and are intended to support the construction of new or expanded sewer systems. The grant covers 75% of the project costs, with the remaining 25% provided by the municipalities.

The NHPA has set aside $1 million for the program and will review applications on a first-come, first-served basis. To be eligible, municipalities must submit a completed application and demonstrate a need for the project.

The program aims to improve the quality of our rivers and lakes by reducing the amount of wastewater pollution. The grant will help fund projects that will improve water quality and protect our natural resources.

The Shannon campaign also highlights the importance of security at the front door. By ensuring that doors and windows are secure, homeowners can protect their homes from theft and intruders.

North Rhythms—Last week, the North Rhythms Democrats condemned Republicans for their constant focus on the national campaigns, while the local Republicans supported their state campaigns. The local Democrats feel that the national campaigns are more important, but the local Republicans feel that the state campaigns are more important.

On Monday, the borough's Republicans demanded a forum. Jack Carbone spoke to the forum, and he said that the Republicans are not fair, and that they are not representing the people of North Rhythms. He said that the Republicans are more interested in the national campaigns, and that the local Democrats are more interested in the state campaigns.

Mark Steele: ‘Trying to be independent’

Mark Steele, a 19-year-old Hawthorne High School student, is trying to be independent but finds life a challenge. He has a job, but it’s a very demanding one for a student. He’s a security guard at a local bank and has to work nights and weekends. He’s also a student at the local college and has to兼顾 study and work.

When asked about his future, Mark said, “I want to be independent, but it’s not easy. I have to work nights and weekends, which makes it hard to study and get good grades. But I’m trying to stay independent, and I’m doing a good job of it.”

Mark also said, “I’m trying to be independent, but it’s not easy. I have to work nights and weekends, which makes it hard to study and get good grades. But I’m trying to stay independent, and I’m doing a good job of it.”

Mark said, “When you become independent, it’s a very difficult transition. It’s hard to be on your own and take care of yourself. But I’m trying to stay independent, and I’m doing a good job of it.”

Helping disabled people to become as independent as possible

Editorial

This year - 1981 - has been designated National Year of the Disabled. The theme is not just to raise public awareness, but also to promote equal opportunities, to foster an attitude of acceptance and respect towards those who are disabled. The theme is an appropriate one, for it is not just the disabled who are affected, but all of us. Everyone is affected by the actions and attitudes of others, and we must all work to ensure that the disabled have equal opportunities in all aspects of life.

Our own experience, as citizens of this community, tells us that a handicapped person needs more than just physical help to get around or on their own without assistance from others. The thing they want most is to be accepted for who they are, and to be treated with respect and dignity.

It is understandable that civic organizations, such as the Disabled Americans of America, which seeks to promote understanding and acceptance of the disabled, are worried about the week. They have concluded that there is a need to raise public awareness about the problems faced by the disabled, and to encourage people to take action to support the cause.

In this context, it is important to remember that the National Year of the Disabled is not just about raising awareness, but also about promoting action. The theme is an opportunity for all of us to take a stand against discrimination and to work towards a more inclusive society.

There are few public foods being open to, this regard in community. The theme is about promoting action to support the cause, to foster understanding and acceptance, and to ensure that the disabled have equal opportunities in all aspects of life.

Teacher/board controversy continues at public meeting

A new board of education, with members drawn from the community at large, met for the first time Monday night. The new board was elected at the last regular meeting of the old board.

Parents and teachers in the audience questioned why the board was not the same as the one that was supposed to have been elected at the last meeting. (The last board was elected by the community at large, but the election was declared invalid due to a technicality.)

The new board's first order of business was to discuss the controversy over the proposed new school building.

Gypsies target senior citizens

A recent cottage industry that has emerged among low-income senior citizens is the sale of "gypsy" jewelry. According to the police, many of these elderly individuals are being targeted by con artists who sell them expensive jewelry at a fraction of its true value.

The scam typically involves a "gypsy" wearing a basket of beads, who approaches the victim and offers to sell them the beads for a fraction of their true value. The victim is often convinced to buy the jewelry because they believe it to be of high quality.

The police have advised the elderly to be careful and to research the authenticity of any jewelry they are purchasing. They are also urged to use credit cards or other forms of payment, rather than cash, when purchasing items.

The "gypsy" jewelry scammers often target elderly individuals who are savvy about buying jewelry online, but may not be as savvy about offline transactions. The police have advised these individuals to be cautious and to research the authenticity of any jewelry they are purchasing.

Voters will be confronted with eight questions, a record number for an election.

New Jersey voters will be confronted with an unprecedented number of constitutional amendments this November. A total of nine amendments will appear on the November 5 General Election ballot. This year, some of these proposals have been the subject of heated debate and controversy. The amendments are complex and controversial. One will expand the definition of marriage to include same-sex couples, and another would change the manner in which tax dollars are allocated to public schools. The amendments are being reviewed by the New Jersey Bar Association, which has issued a report recommending that the public be educated on the issues before voting. The amendments include proposals to change the state's constitution, to increase public funding for schools, and to limit the governor's power. The amendments are expected to have a significant impact on the state's political landscape. The public is encouraged to learn more about the issues before voting on November 5.
Changing fuels is more expensive than just a phone call.

Before you go up to the expense of changing your heating system, try a few simple steps you can take to improve the efficiency of your existing equipment. For example, turn down the thermostat when you’re away from home. Also, make sure the filters in your furnace are clean and change them regularly. These small changes can add up and significantly reduce your energy costs.

Manchester audit may soon tell how much is missing

By Joe Delocal

Manchester Regional High School officials said they know exactly how much is missing from what should be a perfectly accurate audit since their last complete review. Reports may be available as soon as next month, according to School Superintendent William Gates.

Gates said the board's right to audit their finances has been "taken for granted," but the board is not regular, regular. Single, Patrick R. B. of Manchester, and not auditing is outside the NH.

der school year. He said the board is being very careful with the files the state requires accurate. The School is the one in the state that may file to receive $2,000,000 from the state, but this year, the state is not giving any more money to the school board. School officials say the budget is tight, and they're not sure how they can continue to support it.

The state's Audit Division, as the auditor, has the right to ask for any additional information it deems necessary. The audit will begin in early October and is expected to be completed by the end of the year.

In the meantime, the school district is looking into ways to cut costs and improve efficiency. They are considering budget cuts, as well as exploring the possibility of merging with another district.

Borough considering sale of nine-acre tract of land

Augustus — Mayor Tom O'Brien said the borough is looking to sell a nine-acre tract of land on Route 119 in order to raise funds for the borough.

O'Brien said the land was acquired by the borough through a transfer agreement with the state. The land was previously used as a landfill, but has since been abandoned.

The borough has been considering selling the land for some time, but has not yet reached a decision.

O'Brien said the proceeds from the sale would be used to fund improvements to the borough's parks and recreational facilities.

Development focuses on soil erosion plan

Increased penalties due for violations in library use

Although the borough will require a soil erosion plan to be submitted by the applicant, the plan must be approved by the borough before work can begin. The borough, following the approval of the plan, will require periodic inspections of the site to ensure that the erosion control measures are being implemented. The plan must be updated regularly to reflect any changes in the site conditions. In addition, the borough may impose fines for non-compliance with the erosion control measures.

The proposed soil erosion plan must also address the possibility of soil erosion during heavy rain events. The plan should include measures to prevent water from running off the site, such as the installation of silt fences, sediment basins, and erosion control blankets. The plan should also include provisions for the collection and disposal of any sediment generated on the site.

The borough has the authority to penalize those who violate the soil erosion plan. Fines may be imposed for non-compliance with the plan, and the borough may also require additional remedial actions to address any soil erosion that occurs.

In summary, the soil erosion plan is an important component of the development process. It is essential that the plan be designed and implemented properly to ensure that the site is developed in an environmentally responsible manner. The penalties for non-compliance with the plan are significant, and it is in the best interest of all parties to work together to ensure that the plan is fully implemented.
