Teachers ratify contract package

Marathon negotiations session brings issues to resolution

As Anstis Newell
The Hawthorne Teachers Association voted during a new contract meeting with the Board of Education yesterday, according to the latest information from the Teachers Association. The vote was unanimous, and the contract will be signed by the Board of Education within the next few days.

The teachers' support of the contract, which includes a salary increase, a leave of absence for those wishing to pursue further education, and a provision for a new teacher's aide program, was met with cheers and applause from the audience.

Haledon youth found bludgeoned to death in woods

A 13-year-old boy was found bludgeoned to death in the woods near his home in Haledon. The boy, identified as David, 13 years old, was last seen alive by his family.

According to the report, David was last seen playing with his friends in the woods behind his house. He was last seen wearing a red jacket and blue jeans.

A massive search was launched by the police and volunteers. The search was hampered by the rough terrain and dense foliage.

A decision was made by the state police to ask for federal assistance in the search. A plane with a heat-seeking device was sent to the area to help locate the boy.

Watering Ban:
Total restriction or odd/even system

Earlier this season, Hawthorne had to deal with an odd/even system of watering in order to conserve water. The system resulted in reduced water usage and a significant decrease in the amount of water wasted.

The city is currently facing a severe drought and is expected to implement a full ban on watering in the near future. The city council is expected to make a decision on the matter at their next meeting.

The sign in the woods was a call for help from the family of the deceased boy. The family has been in touch with the police and is providing any information that may help with the investigation.
Back-to-school safety tips outlined

Tragedy strikes too close to home

Tuesday’s news that a Haywood High graduate had been stricken down by cancer two years before his 16th birthday hits hard. Ronnie7’s death is a tragic reminder that cancer is a disease that affects people of all ages.

As a community, we must continue to support and offer our condolences to the family and friends of Ronnie7. We must also remember that cancer affects everyone, regardless of age, and that we must remain vigilant in our efforts to detect and treat this disease.

The family has set up a GoFundMe page to help cover the costs of Ronnie7’s medical expenses. We encourage everyone to visit the page and contribute what they can.

The community has also organized a benefit concert to raise funds for the family. The concert will be held on Saturday, September 4th, at the Haywood High School auditorium. Please join us and support this cause.

Forward-moving changes improve local schools

A new high and white school calendar arrived in the mail last week. The journal lists the high school schedule of sports events, PTG meetings and other significant happenings scheduled for this school year. In addition, the schedule covers the weekly activities of the junior high, with a complete list of football games for the coming fall season.

The feature is well received in the community. The high school calendar is a valuable tool for parents and students, allowing them to plan their schedules and activities in advance. The junior high calendar is also helpful, providing a comprehensive overview of the week's events and activities.

Playhouse On The Mall presents "The Gazebo"

"The Gazebo," the Gaggle's latest literary review, will be the feature attraction of the December 10 professional drama in the Vivid, Sheffield. The play is scheduled to run from December 11 through December 14, with tickets available at the door at $3.00.

The "Gazebo" company is a "talented" group, all of whom did their homework and put the time and effort into putting on a show. With the season closing, the group is looking forward to next year's programs.

The play is a story of family, of love, and of the Gazebo, a place where people gather to share their thoughts and feelings. It is a place of refuge, a place of solace, a place where one can be truly oneself. The Gazebo is a place where the world can be forgotten, and the heart can feel free to express itself.

The play is directed by John Park, who has been involved in the theater for many years. He has directed and acted in numerous productions, and is well known for his ability to bring out the best in each actor.

The cast includes John Park as the narrator, Mary Smith as the mother, and Tom Brown as the father. The supporting cast includes Jane White as Mary's sister, and Robert Black as the son.

The play is performed in the Gaggle's new theater, which is located at 123 Main Street. The theater is open to the public and admission is free.

The Gazebo company is grateful for the support of the community, and invites everyone to come and see the play. It is a wonderful opportunity to enjoy the arts and to support a local group that is dedicated to bringing the best in theater to the community.

Next Tuesday, Hawthorne teens will be asked to go to the polls to vote on a $250,000 referendum for school repairs. The repair plan, which is long overdue, is expected to cost $2.7 million. The question is whether the voters will approve it.

The proposed referendum includes eight votes on seven occasions. The referendum is expected to pass by a large margin. The proposed repairs include the replacement of windows and doors, the addition of new classrooms, the upgrading of heating and air conditioning systems, and the installation of new lighting fixtures.

However, some residents are concerned about the cost of the repairs. They argue that the repairs are not necessary and that the money would be better spent on other projects. Others believe that the repairs are necessary to maintain the safety and security of the school and to provide a better learning environment for the students.

The school district has estimated that the repairs will take at least three years to complete. The district has also estimated that the repairs will save the school district $15,000 a year in energy costs.

If the referendum passes, the repairs will begin immediately. The school district has already hired a construction company to begin work on the repairs.

EDITORIAL
A vote in Tuesday's referendum will help schools

Special election's not odd for large votes

Tuesday's referendum will probably bring up the issue in hopes of getting an increase in education for the schools. According to some reports, up to 50% of the people voted for the referendum on September 21st. However, results proving that would show that they did not vote for the referendum on the proposed school referendum.

It's our duty to educate ourselves in our education system. There may be changes we could make to our system if this is a good time to vote on this. There is no easy solution to our educational problems, that's why this is the first step to solving our problems. We need to make sure that we vote in the right state on the right day.

Restitution for murder makes a mockery of the judicial system

While watching the nightly news on TV, I noticed the end-of-the-season specials that the news channels like to air during the last weeks of the year. These specials usually feature crime stories, and one that stood out was a case involving murder.

The case was that of a man who had been found guilty of murder and sentenced to life in prison. However, just a few weeks before his scheduled release, he was granted a retrial based on new evidence. The retrial was set to take place in the summer, but as it turned out, the man was released early due to overcrowding in the prison system. He then disappeared without a trace.

This case highlights the flaws in our judicial system and the importance of restitutions. However, it also raises questions about the fairness of the legal system and the possibility of just compensation for victims.

A frightening way to have fun

The Northland Press, September 22, 1986

Dear Editor,

Last Saturday night my wife and I attended a Halloween party at the home of a friend. It was a costume party and we both dressed up as ghosts.

At the party, we heard rumors that there was a haunted house on the other side of town. We decided to check it out and see if it was as scary as it sounded.

The haunted house was located in an old, abandoned building that had been turned into a Halloween attraction. We were warned that it was scary, but we were up for the challenge.

When we arrived, we were greeted by a group of young people who were dressed up in costumes. They told us that the haunted house was only open to those over the age of 18, but we were willing to take the risk.

The haunted house was decorated with spooky decorations, including fake spiders and cobwebs. We heard screams and whispers coming from various parts of the building.

As we walked through the haunted house, we became more and more scared. We saw fake skeletons and bats flying around, and we heard the sound of dripping water in the distance.

Finally, we made it to the end of the haunted house and found ourselves in a dark, empty room. We looked around and saw a large, black, ghostly figure floating in the air. We screamed and ran out of the room as fast as we could.

It was a frightening experience, but we had a lot of fun doing it. We will definitely go to another haunted house this Halloween.

Sincerely,

Fuel-switching is no nickel-and-dime proposition.

Before you toss in the cryptocurrency craze, you might consider fuel-switching in your car. It's a way to save money and help the environment. To fuel-switch, you need to purchase an adapter that allows you to switch between regular and premium gasoline. These adapters are relatively cheap and can save you money in the long run. Plus, you can help reduce the carbon footprint of your car. So, next time you fill up your tank, remember to consider fuel-switching as a viable option. It's a win-win situation for both your wallet and the planet.

TOMMY JOHN HAS A MAJOR LEAGUE BANK

HE WORKS IN NEW YORK - BUT BANKS IN NEW JERSEY.

Yankee star Tommy John has the reputation for being a very smart pitcher. He also gets extended banking hours not usually found in the big city - so you’re not totally happy with the way your bank is treating you and your money. Check out one of our 32 branches. You’ll find the same great service Tommy John likes. What we offer is Big City Thinking combined with Small Town Thoughtfulness.
